GALE RIPS OFF SCHOOL'S ROOF; TREES TORN UP

36 Children in Building Saved as High Wind Hits Capital.

PHONE LINES BROKEN; WINDOWS SMASHED

MAN SUFFERS HURT WHEN BLOWN DOWN

Accompanied by thunder and a sharp drop in temperature, wind of near hurricane intensity damaged roofs, uprooted trees and blew down telephone lines and signs in Washington and nearby Maryland yesterday. Part of the roof of the Jefferson Junior High School at Sixth and School streets southwest was blown away, but none of the 35 students in the portable building was injured.

Police of the Harbor Precinct rescued three yachts blown from their anchorage by the gale, which the Weather Bureau estimated had reached a velocity of 50 miles just before noon.

Several large windows in the District Building were blown in, a brick chimney at 3002 M street was damaged, and superstructures on the Garfinkel Building at Fourteenth and F streets northwest and the Government Printing Office were dangerously swayed.

Man Knocked Down.

The only Washington casualty reported as a result of the short-lived thunderstorm was George Edward Smith, 63, a Negro, who was treated at Emergency Hospital for cuts and bruises received when he was blown down near the Washington Monument.

The bus waiting room at the foot of Georgia avenue was moved 10 feet by the gale, which blew down more than a dozen telephone poles in the Chevy Chase and Silver Spring neighborhood.

Two young women narrowly missed probable serious injury in the wrecking of the waiting room, according to Policeman Whitney Walters, of the Thirteenth Precinct, who was driving past as the fury of the storm struck Silver Spring. The young women boarded a street car, and two minutes later the wind picked up the structure and lifted it over an 8-foot fence, he said. The policeman said that his car was nearly turned over by the blast. He stopped and ran to give assistance to persons in the Silver Spring Building Supply Co. Building but found that they had escaped injury by huddling close to the wall.

Shaft Roof Carried Away.

The roof of the Washington Sanitarium's elevator shaft was hurled to the ground and several large trees were blown across the River road near the Kenwood Club.

James H. Harley, 78-year-old Negro, was found bogged to his knees in mud near Bladensburg, where water 4 feet deep was whirling across Defense highway. He was taken to Casualty Hospital suffering from exposure.

At Silver Spring the roofs of the Potter Radio Co. and the Silver Spring Building & Supply Co. were blown off, and in Bethesda the roof of Thomas Armstrong's drug store was damaged and a number of signs and windows were carried away.

Rockville's Lights Off.

Rockville was without lights for a time, and a 2,500-volt power line was sizzling in the water-filled streets of Takoma Park. Windows, telephone lines and trees suffered in Hyattsville and along the Baltimore pike.

Cherry blossoms along the Tidal Basin were damaged by the wind, but no trees were reported uprooted or broken.

The Weather Bureau predicted that last night would be fair and slightly colder.

Heavy winds about 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon uprooted a 100-foot hickory tree at the home of the American Ambassador to Argentina and Mrs. Robert W. Bliss at 3101 R street northwest, toppling it across Lovers' lane to obstruct that short street, and damaging another tree and a stone wall across the lane in Montrose Park.

Bristow Ransom Raised To $20,000 by Bandits

Mexico City, April 7 (A.P.).—Dispatches from Tepic today said that the bandits holding J. E. Bristow, American oil operator, had raised their demands of ransom to 40,000 pesos ($20,000).

Federal troops reported that the bands had reached mountain country so inaccessible that the troops are no longer able to use horses in their arch.

ILLINOIS NOMINATES IN PRIMARIES TODAY

BITTER CAMPAIGN ENDS

Chicago, April 7 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Last cannonading was heard today in the senatorial primary battle as the major candidates fired parting blasts at each other. As the day closed the campaign cries grew more shrill, and the last outbursts from rival camps were heard this evening when Senator Charles S. Deneen, in Chicago, and Mrs. Ruth Hanna McCormick, at her home in Byron, Ill., addressed the voters over the radio.

At meetings today in the loop each predicted victory, and a Deneen majority in Cook County was forecast at 200,000. His managers declared his State total will add nearly that much more. The senator was received with enthusiasm when he gave a resume of his stand on the vital issues of the campaign and told of his record in the Senate.

He attacked his opponent's alliances in local politics, and charged that by her opposition to the world court she is working against world peace.

A reiteration of their respective views on the international court and a denial of the charge that she had made any deals with local political factions were the only two points touched upon in her speech at the Apollo Theater.

Mark Hanna's daughter showed little evidence of the strenuous campaign she has waged in the city. Accompanied by a select group of her backers, she left immediately after her address for Byron. Tomorrow she will cast her vote in the primaries and leave for Chicago.

Judge Daniel A. Trude, on the Circuit Court, delivered what politicians declare to have been a serious blow at Mrs. McCormick's claims that she is free from political alliances when he produced a letter from her written four years ago when Trude was the Deneen candidate for county judge against Joseph P. Savage, friend of Robert E. Crowe, then State's attorney. In the letter Mrs. McCormick laid claim to being a practical politician and said she was sorry she 25 Parachutes, Valed at $10,000, Are Prey of Mysterious Fire.

Fire, which mysteriously started in a small building housing the parachute department at Bolling Field, yesterday afternoon destroyed the parachute building and Hangar No. 4, a large building constructed of steel and sheet iron.

The flames first started in a corner of the parachute building, where the repairs were made on the airmen's emergency wings, and rapidly spread over the entire building, which was constructed of wood with stucco exterior.

Mechanics at the air station attempted to extinguish the flames with their own fire aparatus, but the flames spread with such alarming rapidity that the Metropolitan Fire Department was called, finally having to turn in three alarms for more hose and trucks.

From the building of the fire's origin, the flames crossed a space about 30 feet wide and ignited the walls of the hangar which were covered with a tar preparation to guard against rust. Once started on this paint-like substance, it was only a short time until flames were shooting up into the sky from all parts of the building.

Soon after officers and mechanics, who were fighting the fire in the parachute building, saw that it was going to be impossible for them to extinguish the flames, the planes stored in No. 4 hangar were moved out to the field and only working tools and a few repair pieces for the airplanes were destroyed in the hangar. Only two planes were in the hangar when the fire started, a Sikorsky Amphibian and a Douglas 02C.

In the parachute building, however, more than 25 parachutes were destroyed in the flames. These were valued at $400 each. After the flames were extinguished many small boys, probably members of some airplane model club in Washington, obtained long rolls of the parachute silk from the smoking piles which had been carried out of the buildings and heaped on the ground.

Maj. H. C. Davison, commandant of Bolling Field, estimated the damage at $30,000.

The hangar which was destroyed was one ordinarily used for visiting planes. Among the many distinguished planes which have been stored there temporarily are the Spirit of St. Louis, Col. Lindbergh's transatlantic plane; the Question Mark, in which the continuous flight record was established last year; the Southern Cross, transpacific flier; the NC4 and many other nationally known planes.

The fire was witnessed by crowds of people from the top of St. Elizabeth's Hill, back of the field, and from the Naval Air Station, near there. Streets were blocked in the neighborhood of Anacostia Bridge and roads leading to the field, and extra details of police were called to handle the unusual flow of traffic.

BROOKHART PAY BILL PASSED BY SENATE

M'CARL RULING RAPPED

The Brookhart bill to double the pay raises given to certain poorly-paid employes by the Welch act of 1928 was passed by the Senate yesterday and sent to the House.

In effect, the bill would give to these employes the salary increases that Congress thought it was giving them when it passed the Welch act. Not only that, but the bill would make the increases retroactive to July 1, 1928.

Those employes who got a $60 raise would get a $120 raise, and those who got $100 would get $200.

The bill passed the Senate in the last Congress, and, as an amendment to a deficiency appropriation bill, also passed the House. When the appropriation bill went to conference, however, the Brookhart provision was killed.

In reporting the bill to the Senate, Senator Smith Wildman Brookhart (Republican) of Iowa, explained that it was designed to correct a situation which had resulted in "great confusion as well as disatisfaction and injustice."

"The present bill," he reported, "seeks to correct all of these matters. In a general way, the Welch bill as it reached the Senate, cut off the two lower steps in each grade, and advanced employes in those steps two steps higher in the pay scale.

"In most instances it only added one step at the top, and that made

Stimson Starts Work on Treaty Like That Made in Washington.

PREMIER WEATHERS STORM IN COMMONS

Attacks From Liberals and Conservatives Are Avoided.

AMERICANS IGNORE ANGLO-FRENCH ROW

By JOHN L. BALDERSTON.

London, April 7 (N.Y.W.N.S.).—Secretary of State Henry L. Stimson, head of the American delegation at the London Naval Conference, began work today on a rough draft of a three-power treaty among the United States, Great Britain and Japan, modeled, it is understood, upon the Washington Arms Treaty.

Meanwhile, Prime Minister Ramsay MacDonald skilfully averted an impending storm in the House of Commons over his negotiations with Foreign Minister Aristide Briand, of France, for an interpretation of British responsibilities under Article XVI of the covenant of the League of Nations and the Locarno Treaties. He prevented an immediate attack from the Conservatives and Liberals only by promising to consult with their respective leaders in Parliament, former Premiers Stanley Baldwin and David Lloyd George.

An Anglo-French security formula has been found, it is understood, that survived the test of meetings today of the French and British cabinets, the former presided over in Paris by President Gaston Doumergue. But, as expected, this formula proves to have nothing to do directly with the naval conference here. Attempts to satisfy the French as to British support sufficiently to get the French naval program seriously reduced collapsed last week.

Disposition of Formula.

The formula now apparently agreed upon, or almost agreed upon, will not be recorded in connection with the five-power parley at all; but will be incorporated in the report of the committee for revision of the league covenant now working at Geneva in an effort to bring that instrument into closer harmony with the Kellogg pact for the outlawry of war.

The formula itself has been altered since last week and the version now temporarily holding the field contains an interpretation of Article XVI and "Annex F" of the Locarno treaties embodied in a "declaration," which suggests that Great Britain back France at Geneva in trying to "close the gap" in the covenant.

EATON BARES SECRETS IN STEEL INDUSTRY AS STEP IN MERGER WINS

EUGENE G. GRACE.

Magnate Says He Owns $40,000,000 Stock in Sheet and Tube.

INJUNCTION TO STOP VOTE TODAY DENIED

Witness Says Billion Dollar Deal Arranged Without His Being Notified.

Cleveland, April 7 (A.P.).—Some of the guarded secrets of the Nation's industrial chieftains reached the ears of the public here tonight during the battle in Federal court in which Judge Arthur J. Tuttle refused to interfere with voting of stockholders tomorrow for the merger of Youngstown Sheet & Tube Co. with Bethlehem Steel Corporation.

Tuttle said, in denying the attempt to restrain the stockholders' meeting at Youngstown tomorrow, that the proposed deal was entirely up to Sheet & Tube stockholders.

Cyrus S. Eaton's attorneys served notice after their application for injunction was denied, that they would file a new suit in common pleas court at Youngstown tomorrow morning to restrain the merger committee from voting 80,000 shares which had been owned by Otis & Co., of Cleveland, alleging these shares have now been sold.

Favors Westward Development.

Eaton, leader in the fight against the proposed merger, was the witness who threw merciless light on many interesting methods employed in America's biggest business. He was on the stand before Judge Tuttle, sitting by assignment from Detroit, in the suit filed in the name of B. R. Shover, Pittsburgh, stockholder in Sheet & Tube, seeking to restrain stockholders from acting on the merger. The hearing was an eleventh hour effort to render ineffective what the Sheet & Tube stockholders will do with their votes when they meet in Youngstown tomorrow about noon.

Both during direct testimony and cross-examination, Eaton made startling statements about the steel industry in the United States. He not only offered the public a glimpse into the inner workings of big business but he surprised it with an inkling of his own vast business holdings, running into more than $50,000,000.

Eaton labeled Bethlehem's desire to merge with Sheet & Tube as "mere lust for size" and said he believed development of the steel industry in this country should be from the Middle West westward, instead of adding to Eastern control.

Clerks of Wall Street.

He struck openly at Wall street control of Middle Western industry. He said it was remote and impersonal and was confined to a small circle of men, concerned only with large monetary figures.

"Wall street control would make clerks of us all," Eaton declared on cross-examination by Newton D. Baker, former Secretary of War, acting as counsel for officers of Sheet & Tube and fighting Eaton's efforts to block the merger action tomorrow.

The fight for and against the billdollar merger with the Eastern concern has gone on for three weeks. By tonight, during the last hours before the stockholders meeting, five square suits had been filed to block the merger action of the stockholders and to demand from Bethlehem and Sheet & Tube officials figures upon which the transaction is based. Arthur B. Taylor, of Elyria, a stockholder, is the author of three of these suits resting in Common Pleas Court at Youngstown. In addition to

SENATE DRYS CLASH OVER ENFORCEMENT

MITCHELL PLEA HEARD

(Associated Press.)

Senate Republican drys clashed yesterday over the proposed Senate investigation of prohibition enforcement and over two law-enforcement chiefs—Secretary Mellon and Attorney General Mitchell.

Senator Brookhart (Republican), Iowa, accused Secretary Mellon in the Senate with conducting a campaign against the dry law. He gave notice he would demand a record vote on the resolution of Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, another dry, for a Senate inquiry into enforcement.

Senator Fess (Republican), Ohio, in reply defended Mr. Mellon as a "sincere law-enforcement officer" and pleaded that the drys unite for the "testing hour" of prohibition. He opposed the inquiry as harmful to enforcement.

Attorney General Mitchell appeared before the Senate judiciary committee earlier in the day and frowned upon the proposed inquiry. He pictured an improvement during the last year in administration of the law.

After hearing the Attorney General before his committee, Senator Norris contended he had seen no improvement in enforcement and reiterated his belief that politics was playing a part in it. The committee took no action, however, and the whole prohibition situation is still in its hands, so far as the Senate is concerned. The committee will not meet again until next Monday.

Senator Brookhart contended that Mr. Mellon was conducting a campaign against prohibition through W. W. Atterbury, Republican national committeeman for Pennsylvania, and through the Union Club, of New York, to which he said the Secretary belonged.

He cited the fact that Mr. Atterbury, who is also president of the Pennsylvania Railroad, was a director of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. He recalled that the Union League Club had adopted a resolution urging repeal of the eighteenth amendment.

Senator Fess characterized this argument as "unfair." The Ohio dry said he had no sympathy with Mr. Atterbury for "going out of his way" as a Republican national committeeman to work with the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment, but he said Mr. Atterbury could not be tied up with Mr. Mellon in this. Likewise, he said, Mr. Mellon could

GOVERNOR RITCHIE ASKS FOURTH TERM

Executive Has Served Longer Than Any Other in History of Maryland.

Baltimore, Md., April 7 (A.P.).—Gov. Albert C. Ritchie tonight announced his candidacy for a fourth

Elected first in 1919, Gov. Ritchie already having served longer than any Maryland executive in history, and one of the longest consecutive times of any governor in the United States first in 1919, Gov. Ritchie will have served eleven years in the executive chair when his present term expires. His number of years in office would have been twelve had one year not been cut from his second term through a reduction that time, due to his election reform law, which placed all State offices before the people at one time and made them uniform in tenure. The present term is four years.

Gov. Ritchie also will be nearing the all-time record for number of times elected. Former Gov. Alfred E. Smith of New York was elected four times, but the terms were for but two years and there was a break between his first and second terms, when he was defeated.

Gov. Ritchie, during the time he has been chief executive of Maryland, has effected many reforms in the State government, and his announcement today followed the publishing Sunday of a petition in the form of an open letter urging his candidacy. It was signed by 1,500 business and professional leaders of the State, among whom was Dr. William H. Welch, whose eightieth birthday tomorrow will be the cause for an international celebration.

Several times during his political life the name of Gov. Ritchie, devout advocate of State rights and seeker of a reform in the national prohibition law, has been mentioned for the presidential nomination. In 1928 he withdrew from the presidential race and threw Maryland's convention strength in the national convention to Gov. Smith, who eventually was the party nominee.

Third Convict Is Dead After Fruitless Dash

Folsom Prison, Calif., April 7 (A.P.).—Three convicts were dead today as the result of a dash for liberty during a prison baseball game yesterday. The men were shot down by guards.

W. H. Tinkelpaugh died today of wounds in the back and chest which ended his flight. The other two convicts, Harry Stewart, San Francisco robber, and Edward Baker, Orange County burglar, were killed almost instantly by rifle bullets.

Simmons Forces Seen In Trade With G. O. P.

Lobby Quiz of Raskob Held Inspired by Backers of North Carolina Senator to Aid Him in Hot Campaign.

By CARLISLE BARGERON.

The battle for national committee chairmen's scalps increased in its intensity and broke across party lines yesterday as it became very apparent that the Simmons forces of North Carolina had joined with the Republicans in their effort to obscure the Democratic issue against Chairman Claudius Huston by attacking Chairman Raskob.

It developed, in fact, that it was these forces that inspired Senator Robinson, of Indiana, to call Mr. Raskob before the Caraway Lobby Committee, and they are prepared to carry on with him at least until the forthcoming North Carolina primary at which Simmons' political skin is the stake.

Senator Simmons called for Mr. Raskob's resignation again yesterday, asserting that he had no right to remain as chairman of the Democratic party and at the same time contribute to the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. Revival of the Raskob issue, it was said very freely in Democratic ranks, is Senator Simmons' only opportunity of averting defeat.

And in these same ranks the feeling against him was as bitter as that aroused over his bolt of the national ticket in 1928. His action was referred to, in fact, as another bolt and there was considerable talk of reprisal.

The Democratic feeling against the North Carolinian was made more intense by the accepted belief that he will be openly joined in a day or two by Senator Heflin, of Alabama, while it is not at all impossible that the Raskob issue may be revived in other Southern States where anti-Smith forces have heretofore been trying to get in, but where the organizations have so far held intact.

Senator Simmons' likely defeat at the hands of J. W. Bailey was said in Democratic ranks to be the genesis of the fight on Mr. Raskob. Mr Bailey's candidacy, considerably discounted at the outset, has shown surprising strength, to the extent, in fact, that his supporters recently captured the election machinery.

The Simmons' workers realized that their greatest hope lay in arousing the church people who rallied to him on the religious issue in 1928, so they proceeded to work with Senator Robinson, who is very frankly out to retaliate for the Democratic attack on Mr. Huston.

In a way it might be said that it is the Ku Klux Klan sentiment of both parties coming together on very common ground. By pulling Senator Simmons' irons out of the fire as well as those of Senator Heflin, the Republicans, it is pointed out, are repaying them for the assistance they gave the Republicans in 1928 as well as beclouding the charges against Mr. Houston.

Senator Simmons in his attack on Mr. Raskob yesterday cited an edi-

Graf Zeppelin to Pay Navy $5,000 for Field and Crew

(Associated Press.)

If the Graf Zeppelin crosses the Atlantic next summer and lands at Lakehurst on schedule, remaining only hours, the Navy will be paid more than $5,000 to cover the cost of work necessary to land and take care of the huge airship.

The Navy announced today that it had reached an agreement with the German Luftschiffbau Zeppelin Co. on charges to be assessed for the landing at Lakehurst.

To prepare the Lakehurst Station for the Graf, the Navy will get $3,000; for every 24 hours the ship is at the post there will be a charge of $2,000 for use of the mooring mast, the ground crew and station facilities; if the ship should arrive late, there will be an additional charge of $1,000 for each 24 hours of tardiness.

The company also must pay transportation charges for additional marines, agree to reimburse the Navy for damages, post $15,000 as a guarantee that the charges will be paid and waive all claims of damages for injuries any member of the crew might suffer at Lakehurst.

When the Graf made its last flight, there was no charge for the use of Lakehurst, since the trip was experimental. The projected summer flight to South America, the United States and back to Friedrichshafen will be made to determine the feasibility of a commercial route.

Jamaica Ginger Paralysis Results in 35 Indictments

Work of U. S. Grand Jury in Kentucky Is Expected to Affect Not Only Nearby Territory, But New York, Boston and Philadelphia.

Louisville, Ky., April 7 (A.P.).—Ernest Rowe, acting prohibition administrator for Kentucky and Tennessee, announced today that the Federal grand jury at Covington returned indictments today against 35 men, growing out of the sale and distribution of Jamaica ginger, an adulterated form of which is blamed for widespread partial paralysis.

J. T. Tartar, deputy administrator at Covington, who made the report to Mr. Rowe, said that the indictments not only will affect eastern Kentucky and Cincinnati, but Boston, New York, Philadelphia and St. Louis will feel the effects of the jury session.

The indictments were returned as a direct result of an investigation conducted by V. C. Splane, prohibition investigator, who was assigned to the case January 11. This was the day after a raid made on the General Products Co. here, where seventeen gallons of so-called "jake" in bulk and seventeen gross of two-ounce bottles was confiscated.

Sidney and Milton Frens, brothers, were arrested but their cases have been continued to the October term of Federal Court.

Shover's application for injunction is another by International Shares Co., an Eaton interest.

Eaton Bares Holdings.

Eaton did not hesitate when he was asked questions about his own holdings. He said he owned 260,000 shares Sheet & Tube, or $40,000,000 worth; that the Wick Estate, with which his interests are aligned, controls 50,000 more shares; that he has purchased 30,000 shares since the merger talk began, and that three holding companies in which he was interested owned 135,000 shares more.

Eaton said he had been told Eugene G. Grace, president of the Bethlehem, received an annual bonus and salary of $1,000,000 and that some o fthe vice presidents get salaries of $300,000 a year.

ed a declaration he had made to H. G. Dalton, vice president of Sheet & Tube, that the steel business should not be concentrated in New York among a few men.

"They all go to New York sooner or later," Eaton said Dalton replied.

Grace's Change of Plans.

Eaton said he had gone to New York several months ago and conferred with Grace. He said he asked Grace if Bethlehem had any idea of attempting a merger with Sheet & Tube. Grace answered in the negative, according to Eaton.

"When I later approached Mr. Grace about the remark he had made before the merger plans, he told me he had not made any statement in behalf of the company, and that, anyway, he retained the right to change his plans if he cared to."

Baker asked Eaton what difference Wall street control made in a steel company's aspects. Eaton replied that Wall street control was remote and impersonal, whereas more than 70 per cent of Sheet & Tube stock was Ohio-owned.

Was Taken Unawares.

"I have no official interest in Sheet & Tube," Mr. Eaton testified, "but my interests own or control 260,000 shares with a market value of $40,000,000. In addition, the Wick interests control 50,000 shares."

Luther S. Day, Eaton counsel, was doing the questioning.

Mr. Eaton testified the first he heard of the proposed merger was March 7 this year, when he was called to the office of Mr. Dalton, in Cleveland. Mr. Eaton said that Mr. Dalton told him in March that the contracts for the merger were all drawn up and negotiations were practically closed. He complained that all these plans were finished and the merger practically assured before he was aware of it.

Compares Stock Prices.

"The steel business should not be concentrated in New York among a few men," declared Mr. Eaton. He said he told Mr. Dalton during their March conversation that such a merger as Sheet and Tube and Bethlehem would cause a steel war and disrupt industry.

Mr. Eaton said he had also talked with Samuel Mather about buying a large quantity of Sheet and Tube stock. He asked Mr. Mather at that time what the steel situation was. Mr. Mather told him, he said, that the steel industry was showing a tendency to moce westward.

"Does Bethlehem want Sheet and Tube?" I asked Mr. Mather.

"No," answer Mr. Mather. "The only expansions I know of is something on the Pacific Coast."

Mr. Eaton said that at the time Mr. Dalton talked with him Sheet and Tube stock was selling at 147 and Bethlehem at 101. "I consider the terms grossly unfair," Mr. Eaton testified. "About 1,400,000 shares of Bethlehem stock had been underwritten by brokers. Mr. Dalton told me he was not interested in market quotations.

Factor of Ore Contracts.

"I told Mr. Dalton that Pickands, Mather & Co. had a great stake in this thing in view of its ore contract with Bethlehem and Sheet and Tube and I hoped that his personal intefest would not lead him to sacrifice the interests of Youngstown Sheet and Tube and the Middle West."

Mr. Eaton testified that Pickands, Mather & Co. had ore contracts with Inland Steel of Chicago aggregating $35,000, $1,498,000 with Republic Steel and $20,958,000 with Sheet & Tube.

He added Pickands, Mather & Co. has a contract with Bethlehem Steel to haul ore, but he did not know the extent of its contract.

Mr. Eaton said that at a conference in Cleveland, James A. Campbell, chairman of the board of Sheet & Tube told him, "I have not had much to do with the merger negotiations; they were initiated by Mr. Dalton and carried on by Mr. Dalton and Mr. Grace." He said Mr. Campbell told him, "I think we could have driven a harder bargain, but as we are to become partners I did not consider it good judgment to press Bethlehem and I took the auditors' figures." In his deposition taken last Friday at Youngstown Mr. Campbell testified that he recommended the merger to stockholders without examining the financial statement of Bethlehem.

Alleges Short Notice.

Eaton testified that when he was apprised of the impending merger only a business day and a half remained before a meeting of the board called to vote on the matter.

"I told Mr. Dalton that it would be physically impossible for us to tsudy the proposal and know if the trade was a fair one. But they refused to delay.

"I called the attention of Frank Purnell, president of the Sheet & Tube, to the fact that in some 4½ to 5½ years Bethlehem had paid no dividends," Mr. Eaton continued.

"I told him that I was told Mr. Grace's salary and bonus amounted to $1,000,000 a year. I asked him if that was a fact. Campbell answered that Grace may have taken $1,000,000 in one year, but he did not think Grace had done so regularly."

"I said: 'Some of the vice presidents of Bethlehem, I am told, draw $300,000 annually.'"

GANDHI AIDS SEIZED AS RIOT AFTERMATH

LIEUTENANT TRIO JAILED

Bombay, India, April 7 (A.P.).—Three of Mahatma Gandhi's chief lieutenants in his civil disobedience campaign against the Indian government, and many local leaders and volunteers in different Indian districts were under arrest tonight as the aftermath to the Mahatma's overt violation of the salt monopoly on Dandi Beach yesterday.

The Nationalist leader himself remained at liberty, and in spite of a scuffle that took place between his followers and the police near Dandi today, announced that he would come in person tomorrow to collect salt with the volunteers.

Rumors in Bombay gave the impression that Gandhi's arrest was imminent, and that he might be taken into custody when he goes to Aat tomorrow.

Several Minor Encounters.

Several minor encounters occurred at widely scattered points between Gandhi followers and the police. But there were no disorders on a large scale. The only situation that threatened danger was a clash between police and workmen in the Mysore gold mines, near Bangalore, which was not directly connected with the civil disobedience campaign.

There were 50 casualties in the clash. Striking workers, who number 6,000 in all, stoned officials and were fired upon by the police. A squadron of the Mysore Lancers and police reinforcements were dispatched to the mines, which are in southern India, about 200 miles west of the important east coast city of Madras.

The first judicial sentence of any severity that has been passed on violators of the salt monopoly was meted out today at Nadiad, one of the towns where Gandhi stopped on his march from Atmadabad to Dandi.

Gandhi's Aids Punished.

A magistrate there imposed terms of two years' imprisonment and fines of 50 rupees (about $180) on Gokoldas Dwarkadas, Darbar Gopaldas and Rahai Menibhai, three of Gandhi's ablest aids, who broke the law by collecting salt in the Kaira district.

Today was Gandhi's weekly period for silence and meditation. He was, therefore, not present when the police made a descent up volunteers collecting salt on the beach at Aat, but came down soon afterward from Dandi, which is close by.

YOUNG PLAN SCORED IN M'FADDEN TALK

International Bankers Have Controlled News Agencies, He Claims.

REPARATION BONDS HIT

New York, April 7 (A.P.).—Representative Louis T. McFadden, of Pennsylvania, chairman of the House committee on banking, today charged that international bankers had brought "great American news agencies" under the control of foreign interests for the purpose of misleading the American public on the subject of German reparations. He did not mention any agency by name.

Addressing members of the Government Club in the Hotel Astor, he said that unless the State Department certified the legality of the issue of reparations bonds soon to be floated here he would introduce a bill to forbid their sale in the United States.

He charged that the "influence of these powerful financiers had also permeated the policies of American publishing houses, so that books and weeks and monthly periodicals have been used to mislead the American public, and to exclude from their pages authentic information upon the subject of German reparations and the movements of European diplomacy."

The Young plan, which led to the foundation of the International Bank that will float the bonds, he said, is the culmination of ten years of secret diplomacy that was effected with the "connivance of the international bankers of New York." He said the bankers had made the United States the victim of European diplomacy.

Mr. McFadden contended the International Bank contains seeds of a future war in which a United Europe would be arrayed against the United States.

"In proportion as the United States increases its holding of German bonds," he said, "the allied governments decrease their holds of them, for it is from the allied governments that the American investors buy the bonds."

He then suggested that in time the allied governments might have received reparations in full, while the "United States was still demanding payment of annuities by Germany," and that the bank relieves the "allies of the financial responsibility of collections of reparation debts."

Flier Killed; Farmers Say Engine Dropped Out

South Bend, Ind., April 7 (A.P.).—Samuel B. Lambert, of the Lambert Aircraft Corporation, of Moline, Ill., was killed this afternoon when the airplane which he was piloting fell about a mile south of the airport here. Mr. Lambert was flying from Moline to Detroit in a small monoplane. Farmers who saw the airplane fall said the engine seemed to drop out of the ship and one wing crumpled.

Mr. Lambert had been bucking strong head winds. He had not attempted to land at the local airport but apparently was contemplating flying direct to Detroit. The aviator's body was crushed by the wreckage of the ship. Word was received from the aircraft company that officials were en route here in another plane to take charge of Mr. Lambert's body.

SCENES OF DAMAGE DONE BY HIGH WIND

This is some of the damage done by the high winds yesterday in nearby Maryland. Upper: This was once a waiting room at the District line on Georgia avenue. The wind uprooted it from its foundations, lifted it over a 4-foot fence and deposited it in this condensed form on the other side. Lower: The wind took a peculiar dip at the Washington Sanitarium at Takoma Park, uprooted the tall tree in the foreground and tore down several telephone poles.

C. & O. GETS CONTROL OF HOCKING VALLEY

I. C. C. Gives Approval to Van Sweringen Deal Over Protest of Eastman.

OLD PLAN IS DISCARDED

(Associated Press.)

Acquisition by the Chesapeake & Ohio Railway of the Hocking Valley Railway, was authorized yesterday by the Interstate Commerce Commission simultaneously with the withdrawal by the Chesapeake & Ohio of its pending application for consolidation of eleven carriers.

The Van Sweringen road advised C. D. Mahaffie, finance director of the Commission, that it was not deemed advisable to urge consideration of the old plan in view of the subsequently issued consolidation program of the commission. The old plan was withdrawn without prejudice to the uling of a new one which is expected shortly.

Approval of the Chesapeake & Ohio's acquisition of the Hocking Valley on the basis of 2¼ shares of its stock for one share of Hocking stock and the issuance of $24,748,875 of common capital stock of the C. & O. was given over the protest of Commissioner Eastman, and with Commissioner Woodlock writing a separate opinion.

Eastman Is Dissenter.

The order provided that the parent road shall not without authority of the commission dispose of any of its own stock received in exchange for its holdings of Hocking Valley stock without authorization of the commission.

The approval also was conditioned upon the Chesapeake & Ohio canceling as soon as possible $12,801,000 of general mortgage 6 per cent bonds of the Hocking Valley now held in the treasury of the road as security for notes.

Commissioner Eastman contended that the so-called acquisition of control was so obviously actual consolidation of the two carriers that he could not concur in the majority opinion.

Hits Exchange of Stock.

"It is stated," he said, "that there is at present 'no intention to abolish the Hocking Valley as a corporate entity.' It will be a ghostly entity, for it is also stated that the Chesapeake & Ohio will acquire 'all of the properties, assets, rights and franchises of the Hocking Valley of every character, whether real, personal or mixed.'"

The commissioner also held that there was no need for any issue of stock by the Chesapeake & Ohio, except possibly to acquire the minority interest in the Hocking. He said there was no need for the "circuitous performance" under which for the majority interest the Chesapeake & Ohio will issue its stock to the Hocking, which then will hand it back to the C. & O. in return for its own stock. In this way, he added, the Hocking stock now owned by the C. & O. would be used directly as part payment for the properties and franchises.

Holding that the Hocking Valley had been a virtual subsidiary of the Chesapeake & Ohio, which owned a majority of its stock, Commissioner Woodlock said the approval conformed to the expressed purpose of Congress in furthering consolidation of carriers.

'Old Ironsides' Bill Signed by Hoover

U. S. to Contribute $300,000 Toward Restoration of Famous Frigate.

(Associated Press.)

Assurance that "Old Ironsides" again will sail the seas that she once commanded was given yesterday in the signature by President Hoover of a bill appropriating $300,000 for the completion of her restoration.

The historic frigate "Constitution," champion of a multiplicity of sea engagements, was refloated with a new hull a scant fortnight ago at the Boston Navy Yard.

The funds for this partial restoration, to the extent of $400,000, were contributed by the school children of the country. The money allotted in the measure approved yesterday is expected to complete the renovation.

A veteran of naval service, the Constitution, armed with more than 50 guns on its doubledecks, achieved its first prominence in the destruction of pirates who endangered American shipping years ago on the Barbary coast. She figured in the war of 1812 and remained on the active list of the Navy as a training vessel until Spanish-American war days. Retired, she lay rotting at a pier in the Boston Navy Yard until sentiment crystallized for her restoration.

Aged Man to Face Trial In 15-Year-Old Robbery

Cheyenne, Wyo., April 7 (A.P.).—Abram Cornelius, 62, charged with embezzling more than $18,000 from the Citizens National Bank of Englewood, N. J., fifteen years ago, today waived hearing in removal proceedings.

Cornelius will be returned to Trenton, N. J., for trial as soon as an order is signed by a Federal judge in Denver and sent here. He was arrested here last week at the county poorhouse in which he was an inmate.

G. O. P. REBELS TOLD TO SPURN PARTY AID

MONEY SEEN AS SALVE

(Associated Press.)

A suggestion that the Western Republican independents spurn the offer of aid from the Republican senatorial campaign committee was made yesterday by Senator Peter Norbeck.

The South Dakotan, who belongs to the group once designated by Chairman Moses, of the senatorial campaign committee, as the "sons of the wild jackass," issued a statement in response to the public offer of aid to all Republican senatorial nominees, either of the conservative or progressive class, made by Vice Chairman Steiwer, of the campaign committee.

Senator Norbeck is not up for reelection this year, so he did not say whether he would accept the proffered help of the Republican committee. Those of the Western independents who are campaigning this year, however, have indicated indifference to the party's offer.

Referring to the Steiwer declaration, Senator Norbeck said:

"I appreciate his generosity when he suggests that contributions from Pthe big party chest during the fall campaign should not be limited to sons of tame jackasses, but to some degree, at least, should also be extended to the sons of wild ones.

"I presume the underlying thought is that there is a factional rife in the party, due to the bad attitude of some of the progressive senators, and that a little money for the campaign might be salve that would heal their feelings. The assumption is erroneous, for the rift is due to the failure of the party to keep its platform promises, especially as relating to agricultural equality."

Woman Dry Crusader Freed on Rum Charge

Pampa, Tex., April 7 (A.P.).—Miss Beulah Allred, prohibition crusader, charged with possessing and transporting intoxicating liquor she claimed was purchased as evidence for a grand jury, was freed today. Clifford Brady, district attorney, said he investigated the charges and, while finding Miss Allred technically guilty, there was no actual criminal intent, "but rather a misguided impractical idea on her part that such a course would be a means toward aiding in law enforcement."

Miss Allred was arrested as she was displaying liquor she said she bought to bear out her contention that no effort on the part of officers was being made to stop bootlegging in Pampa.

Manager of Grocery Victim of Check Deal

Irwin E. Milburne, manager of a grocery store at 3420 Fourteenth street northwest, was the victim of an alleged check forger yesterday. He lost $15.50—the change from a purchase at the store—when a $20 check was presented to the boy who delivered the groceries.

The groceries were given to a boy to deliver and when a man stopped him on the street and asked him if he had brought the change, he was given the chick. At the address given no one there had any knowledge of the order.

Major Held in Murder Gets Bond of $17,500

Denver, Colo., April 7 (A.P.).—A reduction in the amount of his bond from $25,000 to $17,500 was granted today to Maj. Charles S. Shepard, Army surgeon, held here on a charge of murdering his wife by poison last June at Fort Riley, Kans.

Federal Judge J. Foster Symes also granted a request for a preliminary hearing on the case at Denver.

DAY IN CONGRESS

SENATE.

Met at 12 noon and adjourned at 4:15 p. m. to 12 noon today.

Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, moved to bring before the Senate his resolution calling for an investigation of campaign expenditures.

Senator Walsh (Democrat), Montana, introduced a resolution proposing that the Senate approve a settlement with the Sinclair Crude Oil Co., for $2,906,484.32.

John J. Raskob, chairman of the Democratic national committee, was criticized by Senator Simmons (Democrat), North Carolina, for contributing funds to the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

Passed a bill authorizing the Secretary of the Navy to proceed with constructions costing more than $10,000,000.

Passed and sent to the President a House bill appropriating $875,000 for the erection of a Federal building for the Pittsburgh branch of the Cleveland Federal Reserve Bank.

Passed and sent to the House the Howell bill authorizing the erection of a memorial to William Jennings Bryan in Washington.

Passed and sent to the House a bill authorizing the transfer of a former naval radio station at Seawall, Me., as an addition to the Acadia National Park.

Passed and sent to the President four House bills affecting Hawaii, one of which amends the island's organic act so as to place the Territory on a parity with the States of the Union in the matter of collection of taxes.

Passed the Copeland bill authorizing the Secretary of the Treasury to pay New York City $764,143 for expenses incurred in caring for troops in the Civil War.

Attorney General Mitchell advocated early action on the prohibition enforcement transfer bill and on prison relief measures before the judiciary committee.

District committee approved nomination of Maj. Gen. Hubert B. Crosby, retired, to be a commissioner of the District of Columbia.

HOUSE.

Met at 12 noon and adjourned at 5 p. m. to 12 noon today.

Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, inserted in the Congressional Record a list of fire arms furnished by the War Department to the Prohibition Bureau with a statement that a "disarmament conference for the prohibition unit would not be out of place."

Passed and sent to the Senate the Colton bill increasing from $7,500,000 to $12,500,000 annually Federal aid for the construction of rural post roads and trails in national forests.

Passed and sent to the Senate the Reed bill authorizing the appointment of an assistant commissioner of education in the Department of Labor.

PROPOSED DRY QUIZ DEBATED IN SENATE

not be held responsible for every resolution adopted by the clubs to which he belonged.

Senator Brookhart also attacked Chairman John J. Raskob, of the Democratic national committee, for his $65,000 contributions to the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment. He said Mr. Raskob was a "Wall street Republican, who was detailed by Wall street to run the Democratic party."

He inquired whether Mr. Raskob would support the dry Senator Walsh, of Montana, for reelection in his capacity as Democratic chairman, or would support a wet Republican against Senator Walsh in his capacity as director of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

At the secret session of the judiciary committee, Attorney General Mitchel urged enactment of the pending bills to transfer prohibition enforcement from the Treasury to the Justice Department and legislation to relieve Federal prison conditions.

Inquiry Up to Senate.

While he could see no good in the proposed Senate inquiry of prohibition, the Attorney General emphasized that this was a question entirely up to the Senate.

Chairman Norris asked Mr. Mitchell about the charges of politics in enforcement made by Mrs. Mabel Walker Willebrandt, former Assistant Attorney General in charge of prohibition cases, but he declined to comment. He excused himself on the ground that these charges related to a period prior to his administration.

Senator Norris conceded after the session that he had little hope for a favorable report on his resolution of inquiry and was undecided whether to press it before the Senate should the committee reject it.

Walsh Spurs Debaters On.

Obviously enjoying the outbreak in the Senate between the drys, Senator Walsh (Democrat), Massachusetts, a wet, spurred them on. He wanted to know of Senator Brookhart if he did not want to punish the man who drinks. Senator Brookhart said he thought those who purchase liquor under the present law were guilty of a violation. He said he thought any one who drinks is a "fool," but added, "There are lots of fools."

"It's like punishing a man for committing suicide," said Mr. Brookhart. "There is no use to punish them after they are dead."

Senator Fess said he shared with Senator Brookhart his concern for enforcement of the prohibition law and he lauded his efforts to improve it.

Mellon Is Defended.

"I have always quite understood," continued the Ohioan, "that Secretary Mellon is not what one would term a propagandist for the prohibition law. I don't even know if he believes in the law, but I do know he believes in enforcement of the law. There is no basis even of suspicion that he is winking at violations. On the other hand, I know that he is much concerned over enforcement."

Senator Brookhart referred to Mr. Raskob and Mr. Mellon as "the Amos and Andy of the present situation." He said Mr. Mellon was responsible for checking the diversion of industrial alcohol into bootleg channels, but that he had failed to provide this check.

"Five days after Commissioner Doran announces that there is no legal alcohol diversion," he asserted, "186 people are indicted in Chicago for the very same thing."

Border Unguarded, Claim.

Declaring not a single prohibition agent was on duty on the Canadian border from the Thousand Islands to Vermont, the Iowan said it also was the duty of the Treasury head to prevent the smuggling of liquor from Canada.

"But instead of doing this," he continued, "His Union League Club and the Republican national committeeman from Pennsylvania (W. W. Atterbury), has joined up with Mr. Raskob in a campaign against prohibition."

Another complaint was that "Mr. Mellon's Collector Campbell admits he went over the Mexican border to drink liquor and bring back Mexicans, against the law, to work on his own ranch."

"Yet Campbell remains in the service as Mr. Mellon's official," Senator Brookhart said.

LaGuardia Lists Firearms.

A list of the firearms furnished by the War Department to the Prohibition Bureau was inserted in the Congressional Record by Representative LaGuardia (Republican), New York, a wet, with a statement that a "disarmament conference for the Prohibition Unit would not be out of place."

"Perhaps when Secretary of State Stimson and his colleagues return from London," Mr. LaGuardia said, "they might take up the question of disarming the Prohibition Unit, thereby curtailing the death rate of innocent bystanders and peaceful citizens.

"It would be of interest to note," the New Yorker said, "that as late as January 7, 1930, two automatic rifles, caliber .8, were furnished to the acting prohibition administrator in Oklahome City, and two automatic rifles, caliber .30, to the prohibition administrator in Tulsa, Okla."

Mr. LaGuardia's list of Army firearms issued to the Prohibition Bureau included 2,270 revolvers, 593 pistols, 370 rifles, 14 machine guns, 64 automatic rifles, 6 sporting-type shotguns, and 825 riot-type shotguns.

Brother of Hoover Visits White House

Engineering Dean Here for Convention Is Greeted by President.

(Associated Press.)

For the first time since Herbert Hoover became President, Theodore Jesse Hoover, his only brother, is visiting him at the White House.

The two dined together last night and Sunday night, and after the older brother of the rPesident finishes attending the sessions of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers, he will move into the White House for a stay of several days with his brother.

Theodore Hoover, dean of engineering at Stanford University, wa sill at thetime his brother was inaugurated and could not attend the ceremonies. They spent some time together two years ago on the two occasions when Mr. Hoover visited California during the presidential campaign. The duties of the elder brother have not permitted him to visit the Chief Executive, however, since that time.

"The First Thing in the Morning"

I. C. C. HEARS PLEA OF FERRY BACKERS

TIME SAVING STRESSED

Business men of Washington and the Eastern Shore appeared at a hearing yesterday before the Interstate Commerce Commission to urge that the Chesapeake Beach Railway Co. be granted permission to operate its proposed ferry between Chesapeake Beach and Cambridge, Md., which would shorten the distance between this city and the southern part of the Eastern Shore by 24 to 36 miles.

Arthur C. Smith, chairman of the transportation committee of the Washington Chamber of Commerce, expressed the opinion that present conditions were not satisfactory and that the new ferry would improve matters greatly. Dorsey Hyde, secretary of the same organization, declared that tourist traffic is growing with enormous rapidity, that Washington is among the greatest of tourist centers and that visitors to this city are eager to explore other sections near it. By the opening of the new ferry, he said, the Eastern Shore would become a great playground for Washingtonians and tourists generally.

Moreover, he felt that it was vital for Washington to build up trade areas in this vicinity, and the new ferry would open a great field for local business on the Eastern Shore. The District now produces about $100,000,000 annually in manufactured products, but can not distribute them effectively on the Del-Mar-Va Peninsula. The ferry would be a great asset both to Washington and the Eastern Shore, and traffic between those points would grow with amazing rapidity.

J. M. Gignilliat, representing the American Automobile Association, said that the Annapolis ferry is now congested frequently on holidays and week-ends and that furthermore the streets of that city are so filled with traffic that motor cars are slowed up. The Chesapeake Beach ferry would provide a high-speed route with minimum mileage to the Eastern Shore. Tourists, he was confident, would greatly appreciate it.

The water trip via Claiborne-Annapolis, he pointed out, requires an hour and a half, and by the new route only one hour would be needed. Making Ocean City more accessible, he thought, would bring a great deal of tourist traffic there that now goes to Atlantic City or Virginia Beach.

Frank Robbins, of Cambridge, testified that the movement for the ferry had begun among business men there and that they were vitally interested in it. Further evidence of the importance of such a ferry to Eastern Shore communities was given by Dr. Charles W. Pernell of Ocean City, Robert H. Matthews, of Cambridge, W. R. Heron, of Cambridge; Herbert Hern, of Cambridge; Jerrold M. Bownes, of Salisbury and others.

Eugene Fox, executive vice president of the Chesapeake Beach Railway Co., said that the company planned to put into service two boats of capacity sufficient to carry 1800 passengers and 95 automobiles. The boats would cost about $350,000 each. He estimated that the new ferry would transport 250 cars daily the first year.

The Annapolis-Claiborne ferry represents the only opposition that has appeared to date. On behalf of this company it was announced that a new service from Annapolis to Kent Island will be put into effect soon, cutting the trip across the bay to less than 8 miles, but on behalf of the new ferry line it was asserted that this would benefit only the northern part of the Eastern Shore, not the section from which the Chesapeake Beach ferry expects to draw most of its business.

ENGINEERS TO HONOR PRESIDENT TONIGHT

RECEPTION IS TENDERED

Summaries of engineering development in nine foreign countries featured yesterday's opening session of the American Society of Mechanical Engineers' three-day convention here. Among hundreds of prominent delegates from all sections of the United States and 22 foreign nations is Theodore J. Hoover, brother of the President, who came from Swanton, Calif., to see the society award the Chief Executive a medal at a banquet to be held in the Mayflower Hotel tonight.

Ralph E. Flanders, vice president of the association, presided at the meeting held yesterday in the United States Chamber of Commerce's national council chamber. Those who presented summaries of engineering progress in their countries were: Dr. Adolf Giesel-Gieslingen, Austria; Baron Baston S. P. de Bethune, Belgium; Brig. Gen. Charles H. Mitchell, Canada; Dr. Joseph Schneider, Czechoslovakia; M. Georges Claude, France; Dr. Conrad Matschoss, Germany; Loughman St. L. Pendred, Great Britain; Dr. Luigi Luiggi, Italy, and Dr. Masawo Kamo, Japan.

Summaries will be presented by other foreign representatives at today's session, which will culminate in the annual banquet at the Mayflower. Last night officers and the council of the society were guests at a reception at the Mayflower, followed by a buffet supper and dancing.

The Hoover gold medal, instituted to commemorate the civic and humanitarian achievements of the President, who will receive the first award, will be presented tonight by a board headed by Dexter S. Kimball.

The convention marks the fiftieth anniversary of the society.

CHILDREN'S SLAYER IS GIVEN LIFE TERM

St. Paul Man Admits Killing of Young Pair and Causing Death of Adult.

SENTENCED IN 24 HOURS

St. Paul, Minn., April 7 (A.P.).—Three deaths, two of them fiendish slayings of a boy and a girl, were listed as solved by police tonight as Andy Mann, 48-year-old Negro, made a triple confession today, pleaded guilty to one killing and was sentenced to life imprisonment in the State prison.

Arrested Saturday night, less than 24 hours after the last of the three crimes was committed, Mann was returned here Sunday from Iowa, was indicted today, pleaded guilty, and was immediately sentenced by Judge Hugo O. Hanft. The speedy handling of the case is believed unsurpassed in the criminal annals of the State.

Mann was sentenced for the murder of Earl Tague, 16-year-old son of a tailor who was attacked and slain Friday night in the Negro's shack. The boy's nude and mutilated body was thrown beside a railroad embankment where it was found the following day.

Readily Admits Slaying.

Taken from a freight train at Dubuque, Ia., Mann readily admitted killing the Tague boy and then startled police by confessing he had assaulted and strangled Dorothy Aune, 12-year-old Minneapolis school girl, last August. He also said he had set fire to a house in which a 65-year-old Negro, Robert Howard, was burned to death here March 30. He disclaimed any intention of killing Howard, however.

Both the Tague and the Aune slayings were strikingly similar. Each body was mutilated and found abandoned near railroad tracks. That of Dorothy was wrapped in sacks and bound with wire and rope, while that of the Tague boy bore marks indicating he had bene similarly tied. Both had been strangled by gags jammed deep into the throat.

Police said Mann's confessions told in detail how he had killed the children. The Aune girl was waylaid as she started on an errand for her mother and dragged into an alley.

Had Been in Prison.

Young Tague was enticed to the Negro's shack by a promise that he would be todl where to obtain a job.

Records were produced in court today to show that Mann, who said he was born in Hackensack, N. J., had served time in four prisons, including a term at Clinton, Ky., for a statutory offense; one at Trenton for assaulting a woman, and two in Ohio for burglary.

Mann appeared unconcerned as he was brought into court.

COTTON FORECASTS THREE-POWER PACT

Acting Secretary of State Also Indicates Failure of Quintuple Treaty.

PARLEY HARMONY HOPED

By ALBERT W. FOX.

Abandonment of the five-power pact project at the London Naval Conference was officially forecast here yesterday by the State Department. Acting Secretary of State Cotton announced that plans were obviously being made for a three-power pact in the event of a five-power treaty proving impractical. All late information from the American delegation indicates that there is no real hope of concluding a five-power pact.

Mr. Cotton expects the American delegation to leave for home about Eastertime. He has not been informed of the precise date and it is understood that Secretary Stimson is so far undecided as to whether April 22 or May 4 should be chosen.

The possibility of some political agreement between France and Great Britain over the interpretation of article XVI of the League of Nations covenant is not excluded from further consideration by the probable abandonment of the five-power treaty. But the concessions which Prime Minister MacDonald is ready to make to France are not sufficient to warrant a lowering of the French tonnage figures so that the chief purpose of a political agreement along restricted lines would be to establish an atmosphere of harmony for the wind-up of the conference.

There is apprehension here lest the French and Italians leave the conference before the end of the week and thereby encourage an atmosphere of dissension before the three remaining powers undertake the task of agreeing among themselves. The departure of the French and Italians would in any event be postponed until the plenary session of the conference is held within the next few days but it is not yet certain how harmonious this plenary session may be.

M. Briand's return to London today is expected to clear the decks for the plenary session unless M. Tardieu and M. Briand have some purpose in keeping the negotiations in statu quo until next Monday when the MacDonald government will face the test in the House of Commons over the budget. If M. Briand desires to keep the present five-power negotiations alive until the end of the week it will be difficult to obstruct his program.

Mr. MacDonald would naturally desire to have some definite or spectacular development before next Monday, according to information received here. There is some danger to the Labor government in open abandonment of further efforts to bring about an amicable adjustment of Anglo-French relations. There is also political danger to Mr. MacDonald in another week's stalemate at the conference. Consequently, a plenary session which would bring a semblance of harmony between Great Britain and France and at the same time pave the way for a three-power pact would be most welcome to the British prime minister before he faces the House of Commons on the budget.

meaning an effort to forbid neutrality in war as permitted in Article XV by some scheme under which all league signatories would be compelled to take sactions.

Asked by Mr. MacDonald today whether Italy would agree to this formula, Foreign Minister Dino Grandi is reported to have replied that he would have to see it first. His reiteration of the Italian claim to effective fighting parity is held to prevent the lingering hope still held in some British quarters that France might reduce her tonnage in return for "security."

Briand Back From Paris.

M. Briand will return from Paris tomorrow, after which the heads of the delegations will meet here. It is strongly hoped on all sides that the five-power situation can be resolved in a few days. This is not certain, however, as it is feared that the French will attempt, in order to hasten responsibility for a five-power failure elsewhere, to negotiate further and offer small tonnage reductions. Signor Grandi, in his talk with Mr. MacDonald today, reiterated the Italian claim to parity with France and at the same time repeated minor concessions on tonnage repeatedly chronicled in the newspapers and which the French have already rejected.

The Americans are leaving the Anglo-French tangle alone and utilizing their time during M. Briand's absence in an attempt to get agreement on various points in the prospective three-power treaty. Some of these are not easy. The Japanese reservation as to the right to 70 per cent in big cruisers after the treaty expires is causing some worry and a clause may be inserted providing that none of the three powers is committed to the naval ratios laid down in the prospective treaty beyond the period of its life.

This would nominally make Anglo-American parity a bargain limited in time; but some Americans think it better for all three powers to do this than to permit a unilateral declaration by Japan which would look as though aimed at America and which, it is feared, might arouse opposition in the Senate. Japan would welcome a clause in which Great Britain and the United States would say the same thing that Japan insists upon saying either alone or jointly with the others.

Japanese Terms Discussed.

Senator David A. Reed and Ambassador Tsuneo Matsudaira discussed for an hour today a Japanese suggestion that Japan be allowed to replace two or more of their four 7,100-ton, 8-inch-gun ships with new 10,000 tonners before they become over age, which does not meet with American or British approval. The American experts have also asked the Japanese for shipyard data, showing just how many submarines it is absolutely necessary for Japan to replace during the life of the treaty in order to keep their shipyards going.

The Japanese submarine suggestions, which it is hoped are put forward merely for bargaining, would enable Japan to have 72,000 tons of submarines before expiration of the treaty, 20,000 tons more than proposed, less those scrapped in the meantime of submarines not of the age limit. The Japanese claim for the right to transfer between the different cruiser categories also remains unsettled.

Officially, all is rosy so far as the three-power treaty is concerned; actually, while there is not the slightest reason for any pessimism about Japan, there is a strong feeling that the Japanese are driving a pretty hard bargain and trying, in the shape of reservations, to get back some, if not most, of the concessions which they had apparently made in accepting the American proposals "in principle."

Debate in House Urged.

Refusal of Foreign Secretary Arthur Henderson in the House of Commons this afternoon to commit the government against making interpretations of Article XVI of the league covenant with other powers led Sir Godfrey Locker-Lampson, undersecretary for foreign affairs in the late Conservative government, to move adjournment of the House to debate the subject.

This motion was made in the absence of former Premier Stanley Baldwin and of Sir Austen Chamberlain, former secretary for foreign affairs, and was felt by more sober members of Parliament to be a mistake, as involving an attack on the government while the naval conference is proceeding. During the three hours elapsing, under the rules, before debate was due to start, therefore, the heads of the parties got together and averted the storm.

Mr. MacDonald conferred with former Premier David Lloyd George, Liberal leader, and with Sir Godfrey as Tory chief in Mr. Baldwin's absence, and then made a speech in which he promised not to commit the country to new security commitments without first consulting Mr. Baldwin and Lloyd George who, if they choose, can raise the issue in Commons. This was generally felt tonight to be a satisfactory compromise and the motion of Sir Godfrey, which amounted to a vote of censure, and which Labor M. P.'s at first called "monstrous," was peacefully withdrawn.

Lloyd George Takes Floor.

Lloyd George, however, speaking for the first time on that subject since the naval conference opened, gave Labor a guarded but unmistakable warning by saying:

"These commitments are matters of peace and war. There was much discussion as to whether we were committed (to aid France) in 1914. We gave the benefit of the doubt to others. We don't want those conditions to arise again. We don't want commitments where the French will assume we have taken obligations which we did not really intend to incur.

"Therefore, very often the very wording of any formula or proposal put forward by the government might be a matter of calamitous consequence to this country later on, although the ministers may have nothing of the sort in mind at the present moment. Therefore, I am very delighted the prime minister has assented to the suggestion that there be a meeting between the parties."

By RUDY VALLEE.

CHAPTER XVII.

$4,000 a Week and No Rest.

SYNOPSIS.

In the first chapter Rudy Vallee told of his coming to New York after his graduation from Yale in 1927. He had a hard time getting odd jobs as a saxophonist, but finally had an offer from the Heigh-Ho Club to lead his own orchestra there on trial.

By the time we were half-way through our vaudeville career I had aligned myself with the National Broadcasting Co. completely. Before we began our vaudeville tour they held a broadcasting contract with me under which they broadcast me from the Villa Vallee with no cost to me or the club.

Without my knowledge or permission I had been signed to play at a rival radio station which, of course, conflicted with my National Broadcasting contract. While we were at the Palace this had been litigated in court, and on one occasion my appearance in court almost prevented me from getting to the Palace in time for our act. Every act there went on before ours and good old Van & Schenk dragged their act out as long as possible and stalled for me until I got there. Just before I went on the manager gave me the good news of the judge's decision: the National Broadcasting Co. and I had won completely!

I knew that to be under the management of the National Broadcasting Co. gave me a tremendous prestige and would in the end secure me better contracts than any other management could. The National Broadcasting Co. secured my Paramount contract at double the figure that I had hoped for. Four thousand dollars a week for eight men even for a few weeks was unheard of, but when we did twenty weeks and Paramount announced its intention of exercising its year's option, the "I-told-you-sos" in the theatrical world who had predicted only ten weeks for us with Publix Theaters were completely flabbergasted.

Short Visit to Parents.

I went home for one day with my folks before we began the Paramount contract, as I realized that I would not see them for a long time; and a few days later, with banners flying outside the New York Paramount, we began our contract with Publix Theaters. I still have pictures of the crowds in line and I was told that police were called out to keep the lines in place. And the cold figures giving us the house record made me very happy.

The presentation for the week we opened was put together especially for us and we did just a tiny part at the end of the program, so we were still very much a vaudeville act, but I looked forward to my second week when, with baton in hand, it was my duty to make the announcements and direct the big orchestra on the stage, gag with the acts, set the tempos, and then eventually step forward for my own spot.

The Paramount management was frankly only interested in Rudy Vallee, but I had told my boys that when I made money they would make it with me, and the only condition on which I agreed to go with Publix was that they use my band with me. I did not care whether my boys were absorbed into the large band or whether they came out on a rolling platform just to accompany me in my songs, but I insisted that my accompaniment come from my boys only. To this the management agreed, and then I was surprised to find my boys did not think they wanted to do it, inasmuch as they doubted their ability to stand up under the strain of two early rehearsals in the morning, four shows a day with five on Saturdays and Sundays, and work at the night club every night from 11 until 3. My lot was considerably harder, though I enjoyed it.

I had tea dances at the Lombardy Hotel from 4 until 6:30 daily, including Sunday, and the dinner session at the Villa Vallee from 7:30 until 9:30. Obviously, our vaudeville made it impossible for my boys and me to play the full tea dance or the dinner session at the Villa Vallee, so at the Lombardy I formed an orchestra composed of six boys, which I called the Gondoliers, and which I had trained to play in practically the same style in which the Connecticut Yankees played.

Over the air they sounded practically the same, as I had very excellent men who had substituted for some of my boys at one time or another and who knew our style.

Although I could not be present for the entire tea dance at the Lombardy or the dinner session at the Villa, yet by driving fast in an automobile from one engagement to the other it was possible for me to put in an appearance varying from a half-hour to an hour at both; but I was forced to engage another band for the dance session at the Villa Vallee.

Request From Stranger.

Whil ewe were playing Keith's Palace a young man named Will Osborne met me at the stage door and asked me if I would listen to a little orchestra in which he was the drummer and leader, and which was playing at an Alice Foote MacDougall Coffee House. He had been using only one violin, but had recently added a second violinist, who, incidentally, had at one time played for me in a band which I presented at Lake Placid. I realized that this new addition to his band would give it the same violin quality of tone that has made our orchestra distinctive on the air, and so I made it a point to listen to his orchestra and then suggested their engagement to the owner of the Villa Vallee, whose word was final in such matters. He was satisfied with their work and agreed to engage them to play during the dinner session.

Later on we even permitted this orchestra to broadcast from the club during the dinner session for the same jewelry concern for which my boys and I had previously broadcast for more than a year.

My daily schedule was this: Usually I arose at 10, but if it was a rehearsal morning for the Paramount, it was necessary to get up earlier in order to be there at 9:30. On these rehearsal mornings I met the various acts, learned their routines and their gags (jokes), and rehearsed our own specialty. The unit of stage presentation usually began at noon. After the second performance, somewhere around 3 o'clock, I jumped to the Lombardy, where I sang for an hour and a half with the Gondoliers, then back to the Paramount for my third show. In my spare moments I listened to songs that various companies sent to me to try out; read and answered letters; autographed photos, and then went on for the fourth show.

End of Busy Day.

Immediately after this I hopped into a cab and went to the Villa Vallee, where I sang with the Osborne orchestra. It was necessary for me to show this orchestra how to play after my own style, because I have a peculiar style of singing against the beat which is very natural to me but which would throw the average band off if it were not instructed to hold the tempo, regardless of what liberties I took with the melody.

Of course I also had to initiate the band into the way I played choruses in sections, how we changed from one chorus to another, the tempos themselves, and the signals that I flashed out to them with my right hand when I was not using it to play the saxophone. I stayed at the Villa Vallee until about 9:30, when I rushed back to the Paramount for my fifth and last show. Then I returned with my own Connecticut Yankees to the Villa Vallee to play from 11 until 3. Thus I had very little rest and usually went to bed quite tired. Between every number it was necessary for me to go out and welcome friends and radio fan guests who asked the waiter to have me come over to say hello.

Much as I love work, this was a grueling routine that most men would probably have cracked under, but I inherited a strong constitution, am very careful of what I eat, and I sleep well, when I have a chance to sleep, and at no time have I ever felt the strain.

My boys did not find the Paramount work quite so difficult as they had anticipated, because in some of the presentations they did not appear until the last six minutes, and after that six-minute period, during which we played several tunes, they were free until the next show. True, they could go nowhere, and could only see bits of other shows. But considering the actual effort involved, they had never earned money quite so easily.

Cots Placed in Dressing Rooms.

They bought cots for their dressing rooms, which took on the appearance of barracks, and spent the hours between shows in various ways.

Many people have wondered, I suppose, how I could be way over in Brooklyn at a theater, broadcast from the Lombardy, be back at the next show in Brooklyn, and up to the Villa Vallee for dinner and fulfill all these engagements without splitting myself into three or four people. I have had to take some terrible chances in driving in order to make the various performances and I feel very proud of the fact that I have never missed a Paramount show or broadcast. Once or twice I was late at the Lombardy for the broadcast, but I always managed to get in before the middle of the program was over to say "Heigh-Ho" and to sing a few songs.

Friday morning was a terrific strain on me as master of ceremonies, because I retired at 4 or 4:30 from the club, arose at 8 to be at the Paramount at 9, where I rehearsed until 12, when the first unit went on. I had to keep in mind every name, every tempo, and the order in which the acts came. Because of this loss of sleep, I could rarely give my very best to the first shows at the Paramount.

Amusing Incident Related.

Of course it would be only too tragic had I forgotten the name of an act, or cued it at the wrong time if it were not in the wings ready to go on. I had to think very fast when certain emergencies arose. Once or twice my tired mind did not register the name of the next act and I had to invent one. At another time I announced a certain act, turned around, gave the band introduction, but no act! We repeated the introduction, but still the artists did not appear! Then I quickly went into my own specialty.

Once a very laughable thing happened. I announced an artist and pointed to the right, and like the old Mack Sennett comedies he came in from the left, leaving me in a very ludicrous position. However, such things as that touch my sense of humor and I am able to laugh them off.

In one unit I turned around after announcing an act that immediately followed the chorus girls, to find that one of the girls had fainted on the stage and had been left there as the line danced off. I thought fast. Should I say that at last one of the girls in the chorus had fallen for me or should I ring down the curtain, or should I simply carry her off. I decided on the last named procedure and lifted and carried her off, leaving the audience unable to comprehend it all, while the show went on as before.

There is a certain fascination about the stage, the footlights, the smell of the grease paint, the crowds and the orchestra. But I will not be sorry when this is all over, because, after all, it is a very odd feeling that comes over me as I go to a restaurant or to a place of business between shows and realize that I must be back in costume, made up and ready to go on in less than an hour and a half. A repetition of this procedure four times a day, five on Saturdays and Sundays, has broken the spirit of many men who did nothing but that, whereas I have also radio programs to be made up, work at the club each night, appointments between shows with people who seek aid, both employment and financial, and who try to interest me in insurance investments, advertising propositions and various other problems, so that I lead a hectic and busy life, and always, of course, I must be learning new songs and thinking of our own specialty which has to be changed weekly.

Also, six performances and two matinees will seem such a relief after 30 performances a week! And to have Sunday nights off and to be able to sleep Sunday morning will be a blessed relief, because, after all, this is the day of rest and has been set apart for that purpose, but the Publix Theaters do not agree with the Powers above and believe that one should work harder on that day.

The Villa Vallee remained open all summer, as it was air-cooled just like the interior of the theater, and was extremely comfortable to play in. Osborne had played the dinner session over a period of four months, but when I left to go to the Coast, the owner of the Villa Vallee made other arrangements and engaged Emil Coleman and his orchestra, which is very popular with New York society.

When I left for California I said good-by to the Paramount Theaters for a while, and it certainly felt strange to wake up in the morning and not wonder if I had overslept and missed the first show!

TEN DISTRICT BILLS PASSED BY SENATE

BUILDING RULE FAVORED

Ten measures of interest to the District of Columbia were passed by the Senate yesterday and sent to the House, including the Shipstead bill to regulate the height and design of private buildings erected near Federal buildings or parks.

The Senate also passed the Capper-Zihlman bill to increase the pay of local police and firemen, but a few minutes later reconsidered the action and put the bill back on the calendar.

When it is reached again, Senator Bingham (Republican), of Connecticut, will ask that the raises the bill would give high officials in the two departments be reduced. It was Senator Bingham and Senator Phipps (Republican), Colorado, who yesterday moved to reconsider the bill.

Other Measures Approved.

The District measures that were approved yesterday and sent to the House, in addition to the Shipstead bill, were these:

The Oddie bill to reimburse the navy yard employes who were "docked" while they were away from work for the Hoover inauguration.

The Capper bills to allow the District government to exchange two pieces of playground property in the Turkey Thicket area.

The Connolly bill to permit fraternal and benevolent organizations to separate their fraternal and insurance activities. It is designed to help the Knights of Pythias.

The Capper bill to authorize the Commissioners to widen Wisconsin avenue in the vicinity of Thirty-fourth street.

The Capper bill to amend the Workmen's Compensation Act so as to exempt civic organizations, not organized for profit, from the responsibility of paying compensation to part-time employes who are injured or to the dependents of those who are killed.

In asking that the police-firemen pay bill be reconsidered, Senator Bingham said that he felt the $8,500-a-year salaries that would be given to the police and fire chiefs were too high.

Senator Capper said that the bill would place local policemen and firemen on a salary equality with those in other cities.

Senator Phipps challenged this statement, and gave the impression that, in his opinion, some of the raises were inordinately high.

Senator Copeland (Democrat), of New York, defended the increases for the department chiefs, asserting that, even if they were granted, their salaries still would be below those who perform similar duties in other cities.

Senator Trammel (Democrat), of Florida, thought that the high salaries should be trimmed and the money applied to the salaries of the low-paid men on the two forces.

As matters now stand, it probably will be a week or more before action will be taken on the bill. The House may take it up Monday.

All in all, the two branches, in the busiest day of the session, acted on 182 bills, the Senate disposing of 126 bills at the rate of almost one a minute. The House meanwhile acted on 56 measures.

EVENTS OF INTEREST IN SOCIETY CIRCLES OF CAPITAL

Birthday Fete Is Enjoyed by House Leader

Capital Dignitaries Are Among Guests of Mr. Tilson.

BIRTHDAY celebrations form a distinct phase of Representative John Q. Tilson's cycle of endeavor these spring days. As a member of the commission for the celebration of the 200th anniversary of the birth of George Washington he is engrossed in furthering plans for the event which will bring thousands to Washington in 1932. But Mr. Tilson took time off last Saturday to celebrate his own birthday anniversary with a festive dinner at his home in New Haven. Journeying up from Washington were dignitaries of official and diplomatic life who joined with litterateurs of the State of Connecticut in observance of the interesting day.

Among Representative Tilson's guests were Senator Frederick C. Walcott, of Connecticut; Representative Sol Bloom, of New York; Mrs. Bloom and Miss Vera Bloom; Representative Florence P. Kahn, of California; Count Marchetti, Counselor of the Italian Embassy; the Consul General of Italy at New York, Commandatore Emanuele Grazzi; President Angell, of Yale University; Mr. William Lyon Phelps, professor of English at Yale; Mr. S. Z. Poli, retired theater magnate; Mayor Thomas Tully, of New Haven, and Dr. William P. Verdi, famous surgeon, whose arms are alleged to be insured for $250,000. Mrs. Tilson was not present as she sailed for Europe on March 31 to visit her daughter, Miss Margaret Tilson, who is attending school at Cannes, France.

Tribute also was paid Representative Tilson in recognition of the recent decoration conferred upon him by the government of Italy which presented the medal of the Grand Officiale of the Crown of Italy at a dinner at the Italian Embassy about three months ago. The decoration was presented in behalf of the King of Italy by the Ambassador of Italy, Nobile Giacomo de Martino, who offered praise to the Connecticut congressman for the high regard he has attained among the Italian population of his district, declared the largest settlement of Italians in the United States.

The official period of mourning set by President Hoover on the occasion of the death of William Howard Taft ended last night.

Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blake Dewey, of Chicago, have returned to Washington from Palm Beach and will be guests at he Mayflower until the early part of May. They will spend the summer in Europe sailing from New York on May 17 for Cannes and later in the season will go to Switzerland. Their son and daughter-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Albert Blake Dewey, jr., are making the trip with them as is also Mrs. Alberta Lynn, of Cadiz, Ohio, niece of Mr. Dewey, sr.

French Envoy to See Berlin Opera Premiere.

The French Ambassador, M. Paul Claudel, plans to leave Washington the end of the month, and will sail for Europe to attend the opening of his new opera in Berlin.

The opera is based on the life of Columbus, with the libretto by M. Claudel, and the music by Darius Milhaud, and will be given in German. The ambassador, who is one of the foremost poets of France, got his idea for the opera from conversations with Max Reinhardt.

There are departures from conventional opera in that the chorus plays a most important part, and while the characters have speaking parts, a film screen at the back of the stage will show their thoughts by pictures.

The Ambassador of Great Britain, Sir Ronald Lindsay, will be the guest in whose honor the Pilgrims of the United States will give a dinner on April 22, at the Biltmore in New York. The dinner is given in welcome to the return of Sir Ronald Lindsay, who was Charge d'Affaires at the British Embassy in 1910-1920.

The Minister of Canada and Mrs. Vincent Massey, who have been in New York for several days will return to town today.

The United States Ambassador to Germany and Mrs. Frederic M. Sackett will be among the many prominent visitors to attend the Passion Play at Oberammergau during the summer season.

Mrs. Sayre and Son Visiting in Princeton.

Mrs. Francis Bowes Sayre and her son, Francis Sayre, jr., have been the guests for several days of Prof. and Mrs. William Berryman Scott in Princeton, N. J. Mrs. Sayre was Miss Jessie Wilson, daughter of the late War President.

Miss Dorothy Fell, daughter of Mrs. Ogden L. Mills, and Mr. John R. Fell, of Philadelphia and New York, will be presented to society this fall in Philadelphia.

Another Philadelphia debutante of interest to Washington will be Miss Adeline Furness, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. James Wilson Furness, of Washington, who will be presented at a tea on September 25, by her uncle and aunt, Mr. and Mrs. Radcliffe Furness, of Jenkintown, Pa.

Mrs. Ray Lyman Wilbur, wife of the Secretary of the Interior, will be at home tomorrow afternoon in her apartment at the Mayflower.

Lady Lister-Kaye, who is at the Ambassador in New York, has postponed her departure for London for two weeks.

Mrs. George Morris entertained a small company at luncheon yesterday at the Carlton.

Mrs. Walter F. Brown Returns to Capital.

The Postmaster General, Mr. Walter F. Brown, has been joined at the Wardman Park Hotel by Mrs. Brown, who has been passing some time at Atlantic City with her mother, Mrs. George Hafer. Mrs. Brown will leave the end of the week for her home in Toledo, where she will be for several days before returning to Atlantic City to pass Easter with her mother.

Mr. and Mrs. Jesse W. Nicholson entertained at a supper party at their home last evening in honor of Mr. and Mrs. Charles J. Williamson, who are sailing for Europe the last of the month to pass the summer. Those asked to meet them were Senator and Mrs. John Marshall Robsion, Representative and Mrs. Maurice H. Thatcher, Gen. and Mrs. Stephan O. Fuqua, Mr. Jesse F. Nicholson and Miss Dorothy M. Nicholson.

LONG ILLNESS FATAL TO W. P. G. HARDING

FORMER HEAD OF BOARD

Boston, April 7 (A.P.).—William P. G. Harding, governor of the Federal Reserve Bank of Boston since January, 1922, died today at the Algonquin Club, where he had made his home. Death, due to heart trouble, followed a long illness. He formerly served as president of the Federal Reserve Board.

Mr. Harding was born in Greene County, Ala., 66 years ago. After cremation Wednesday afternoon at Forest Hills Cemetery, his ashes will be taken to Birmingham, Ala.

He had been for more than a year in poor health. Three weeks ago his condition became serious and he was confined to his bed.

Mr. Harding was appointed to the Federal Reserve Board at its formation in 1914 by President Wilson. In 1916 he became governor of the board. He successfully fought to keep the board out of politics. In 1918 and 1919 he served as managing director of the War Finance Corporation.

Mr. Harding was the youngest full graduate in the history of the University of Alabama when he was graduated from that institution in 1881. He began his banking career at Tuscaloosa, Ala., in a private bank, later going to the Berney National Bank at Birmingham. He was subsequently chosen President of the First National Bank of Birmingham.

(Associated Press.)

The death in Boston yesterday of William P. G. Harding, governor of the Boston Federal Reserve Bank, bought expressions of grief for his passing and praise for his work in life from two men most familiar with the manner in which he had performed the duties as head of the Federal Reserve Board during the trying days after the World War.

Senator Glass, of Virginia, who was Secretary of the Treasury, and worked with Mr. Harding in the crisis that immediately followed the World War, and Secretary Mellon, who later took up the duties of directing the Nation's financial affairs, joined in praising his ability and judgment.

Mr. Mellon recalled his years of association with Gov. Harding, and said:

"I have valued his friendship and have had the greatest regard for his ability and for the extent of his information and the solemn judgment, which have made him such an important factor in the work of the system, both during the war and in the difficult period of reconstruction which followed.

Death Called Loss to Nation.

"His death was a great loss to the Federal Reserve System and to the country."

Senator Glass said, "his administration of the affairs of the Federal Reserve System while he was governor of the board was characterized by exceptional discernment, rare courage and great ability.

"It was a distinct misfortune to the system and to the financial and commercial interests of the United States that he was not renominated by President Harding.

"Both the Boston Bank and the Federal Reserve System itself have suffered a distinct loss in the death of this notable man, who developed from the status of a country banker into that of a great financial administrator."

Funeral Arranged For Mrs. Bradley

Widow of Jurist Will Be Buried Today in Capital.

Mrs. Andrew C. Bradley, widow of former Justice Bradley of the Supreme Court of the District of Columbia, who died early yesterday, will be buried this afternoon in Rock Creek Cemetery following services at 3 o'clock in the Church of the Covenant.

Mrs. Bradley died at the home of her son, Charles H. Bradley, 1706 Twenty-first street northwest, following a brief illness. Death was caused by pneumonia. She lived the 82 years of her life in this city.

Mrs. Bradley's husband, the late justice, died in 1902. Her only sister, Mrs. Alexander R. Shepherd, widow of the former Governor of the District, died her less than a month ago.

Mrs. Bradley was identified with social, religious, charitable and civic interests in the Capital. For many years she was interested in the Church of the Covenant and the Washington City Orphan Asylum, of which she was a member of the board of managers for many years. In addition to her son, Charles, she is survived by four grandchildren and a number of nieces and nephews.

RITES FOR CHARLES PAXTON.

Funeral Services Will Be Held at Chapel This Afternoon.

Funeral services will be held today for Charles B. Paxton, 61 years old, a lifelong resident of Washington, who died Sunday at his home, 4804 Forty-first street. Services will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon at St. Columba's Chapel, on Murdock Mill road. Burial will be in Glenwood Cemetery.

In his early life he was well known in the Georgetown section, where he was employed as a grocery dealer. In recent years he was connected with W. T. Weaver & Sons, hardware dealers. He was a member of the Junior Order U. A. M. His wife, Fannie Paxton, survives him.

Jury Is Selected In Devilbiss Trial

Special to The Washington Post.

Berkeley Springs, W. Va., April 7.—A jury was quickly secured in Circuit Court here today from the first panel of twenty called to try Jacob Devilbiss, 25, of this county, indicted for the slaying of Theodore Wreckman, 25, a fellow miner, near here six weeks ago. Devilbiss entered a plea of not guilty. Police reported that he had made both oral and written confessions to the crime, with the only apparent motive that of getting possession of Wreckman's automobile. Wreckman and Devilbiss were mine workers at Crucible, Pa. Devilbiss was arrested there a few days after Wreckman's body was found by hunters just off a lonely road near Magnolia, W. Va., 8 miles from here. The body was partly covered by brush.

The jury includes C. L. Goller, Sleepy Creek; L. C. Corbin, Rock Gap District; W. T. Dailey, Berkeley Springs; Boyd Hunter, Berkeley Springs; George A. Goller, near Berkeley Springs; J. H. Limpo, Cherry Run; G. P. D. Cain, Allen District; John L. Bohrer, Timber Ridge; Walter L. Feight, Berkeley Springs; William D. Johnson, Berkeley Springs; E. L. Lawyer, Berkeley Springs; C. E. Aulabaugh, Brosius.

The State has summoned fifteen witnesses to testify, some of them from Crucible.

H. S. Ward Asks Apology to Wife

Directs Attack at Power Commission Clerk in Letter to Wilbur.

Herbert S. Ward, whose wife, Mrs. Minnie L. Ward, file clerk, recently hurled a number of eggs at F. W. Griffith, chief clerk of the Federal Power Commission, has written a letter to Secretary of the Interior Wilbur, acting chairman of the commission, denying the charge that Mrs. Ward had spent considerable time loafing around the file room during office hours.

"Since this charge is an unmitigated falsehood * * * I demand that you call upon said Griffith to prove this charge," the letter states. "Unless you see fit to take this action I shall expect to receive through you an apology from the said Griffith, accompanied by a notice of his removal from public service."

Mrs. Ward recently filed charges against Mr. Griffith and F. E. Bonner, executive secretary of the commission, charging that last August they took copies of letters, indorsing Mr. Bonner for his present position, from commission files. This was after the egg-throwing incident.

House Committee Will See Virginia

State Executive to Guide Party on Its Tour of Historic Places.

Special to The Washington Post.

Front Royal, Va., April 7.—William E. Carson, chairman of the State Commission on Conservation and Development, left here this evening for Washington, from which place he will accompany the public lands committee of the House of Representatives and other members of Congress, the party numbering about 50, on a trip through Virginia. From Washington they will go to Richmond, stopping en route at Fredericksburg, arriving for a reception, which will be held at the mansion by the governor at 12 noon in honor of the party.

Leaving Richmond they will go to Williamsburg, where Tuesday night they will be entertained at a dinner given by the president of William and Mary College. They will spend Tuesday night in Williamsburg, and Wednesday morning Dr. Goodwin, who is in charge of the Rockefeller restoration work at Williamsburg, will conduct the party over the historic city.

They will lunch at noon Wednesday as guests of the people of Yorktown, after which they will view the battlefields and other points of interest around Yorktown, going in the afternoon to Old Point, where they will be entertained at the Vanderbilt-Chamberlaine Hotel by the city of Newport News. The party will return to Washington by boat Wednesday night.

Burial of J. A. Chiles Is Held in Richmond

James Alexander Chiles, brother of C. R. Chiles, colored Treasury Department clerk, who died Saturday on a train between here and Richmond, was buried there yesterday at the Ebenezer Baptist Church.

Mr. Chiles, who practiced law in Lexington, Ky., for more than 30 years, was the son of Richard Chiles, of Richmond, a messenger in the War Department of the Confederate Army, who at the close of the Civil War carried the message from Gen. Robert E. Lee to Jefferson Davis that the evacuation of Richmond had begun.

University Shop Wins Court Fight on Name

The University Shop at 506 Ninth street northwest and 1350 G street northwest has the right to use that name, according to a decision handed down yesterday by the District Court of Appeals. Action of the high court reverses a decision of the istrict Supreme Court in refusing to restrain University Clothes, Inc., of 1201 Pennsylvania avenue northwest, from using the word "University" in its trade name.

Associate Justice Charles H. Robb, who wrote the opinion, pointed out that the plaintiff had been using the name University Shop since 1921 and held that "one has no right to incorporate the mark of another as an essential feature of his mark. Such practive would lead to no end of confusion and deprive the owner of the mark of the just protection which the law accords him."

Petersburg Leads In Tobacco Prices

Special to The Washington Post.

Petersburg, Va., April 7.—During the tobacco season, which closed March 14, the Petersburg tobacco market led the State in average prices of flue-cured tobacco, and a fair increase of volume in sales was made. Comparing three of the leading tobacco markets in the State, Petersburg, South Hill and Danville, the average increase in price here was $1.89 per hundred pounds and in South Hill, 44 cents, while in Danville the sales showed a decrease of $1.02.

Figures issued today by the Petersburg Chamber of Commerce revealed that the average price in Petersburg for the 1929-30 season was $18.85 per hundred, as compared with $16.96 the previous season. South Hill's average price in the season just closed was $18.27, while in the 1928-29 season it was $17.83. In Danville the average price was $17.84, while the previous year it had been $18.86.

The quantity of tobacco sold at Petersburg was an increase of 660,292 pounds over the previous season, Dan S. Hollenga, business manager of the Chamber of Commerce, said.

Divorce Suit Charges Husband With Cruelty

Alleging "excessive cruelty and mistreatment," Mrs. Daisy P. Mott yesterday filed suit in the Montgomery County court for a limited divorce from Thomas T. Mott, automobile distributor, residing at Edgemoor. The plaintiff asks custody of their 8-year-old son, Thomas T. Mott, jr., and alimony.

She alleges that her husband "has treated her with great cruelty, frequently flying into rages of uncontrolable temper, cursing and abusing, frequently striking plaintiff and bodily ejecting her from the house, sometimes when she was scantily clad." Mrs. Mott is represented by Attorney Stedman Prescott. She was awarded alimony of $75 per month pending settlement of the case.

THE CRAZY NORRIS SCHEME.

An effort is made to induce President Hoover to favor the Norris Muscle Shoals resolution on the ground that a lobby has been at work to turn the plant over to a private corporation and that Claudius H. Huston, chairman of the Republican national committee, was at the head of the lobby organization. Mr. Hoover is asked to approve of the plan for putting the Government into the power business in order that he may not appear to be in sympathy with the former lobbying activities of the chairman of the Republican national committee. Of course, this friendly advice comes from Democrats.

If the House should make the mistake of concurring with the Senate in passing the Norris resolution it will be necessary for President Hoover to veto the measure if the Government is to avoid making a costly and dangerous adventure in socialism. The lobbying activities of Mr. Huston have nothing to do with the question that will be raised if the Norris resolution should pass Congress. If the Republican party should decide that Mr. Huston's usefulness as national chairman has been destroyed on account of the lobby disclosures, it is free to rid itself of him. The question before it is political, having nothing to do with national policy in disposing of Muscle Shoals.

Among other Democrats offering advice to Mr. Hoover is the New York World. It remarks that Mr. Hoover will incur a heavy responsibility if he should veto the Norris resolution, because this is the only plan for disposing of Muscle Shoals that has passed Congress, and because the plan is "sound in theory," and "has no real opposition save that admittedly furnished by a lobby."

If the Norris resolution is "sound in theory," then the American system of government is unsound. The Norris plan proposes to take the public money to confer special favors upon certain classes and sections. It would set up a Government corporation to drive private citizens out of business. It would commit the Government to a ruinous policy of expenditures all over the country, under the false pretense of controlling floods and improving navigation.

Muscle Shoals has cost about $125,000,000. The Norris resolution provides for additional expenditures of $35,000,000 or more, in building a dam and in developing power to be sold by the Government. Cove Creek Dam, if built by Treasury money, would be the precursor of hundreds of fake waterpower schemes to be financed and operated by the Government, at a cost of limitless millions of tax money. Instead of scrapping Muscle Shoals, if it can not be sold or leased, the Norris resolution would throw good money after bad and transform the Government into a power manufacturer, under the direction of politicians.

It has been repeatedly shown that the Government is a failure in conducting business. It is not a business organism, and can not be made one. The spectacle of "bipartisan" politicians operating Muscle Shoals as a business venture is one that would invite derision even from the crazy theorists of Russia. Senator Norris' scheme out-Soviets the Soviet. Unless common sense has entirely disappeared, this scheme will meet its death at the hands of the House or the President.

EQUAL RIGHTS OF WOMEN.

An unsatisfactory situation has arisen in The Hague conference for the codification of international law, with respect to the equal rights provision of the nationality section of the proposed world code. Since 1848 the women of America have been working for equality as between the sexes, until today they stand, in large measure, equal before the law with their husbands and brothers. But at The Hague diplomats seemingly are about to launch an international nationality code based on Old World conceptions of the woman's status in law. In one fell swoop they seek to deprive women as individuals of rights that are freely granted to men.

The nationality treaty introduced by Dr. Cruchaga, plenipotentiary from Chile, a nation that by law guarantees the equality of women, reads as follows: "The contracting parties agree that from the going into effect of this treaty there shall be no distinction based on sex in their law and practice relating to nationality." This treaty was drafted by the inter-American Commission of Women, and was unanimously approved by the governing board of the American Institute of International Law at Havana last October.

When it appeared that the conference was about to let this treaty go by the board while it approved certain League of Nations proposals that would mean launching the nationality code on a basis of sex inequality, the American delegates proposed, with the approval of the State Department, the following resolution: "The conference recommends to the study of the governments the principle that in their law and practice relating to nationality there shall be no distinction based on sex, with particular consideration of the interests of children involved in the application of that principle."

The American delegates should fight to the limit to secure the adoption of the compromise resolution. No code at all is far better than one based on obsolete discriminations against the female sex. The questions of nationality and the status of women should be postponed to a later conference, so that the campaign of education away from the concept that woman is a chattel or serf may be carried forward.

DANGEROUS SCHOOL SHACKS.

Every high wind that blows over Washington spreads terror in the hearts of hundreds of parents who have children attending school in flimsy portable buildings. The District has been fortunate in escaping dreadful casualties from this cause, but no one knows when death may be visited upon the children housed in these shacks. Wind yesterday ripped off a portion of the roof of one portable on the grounds of the Jefferson Junior High School. Many children might have been injured. There will be no peace of mind for parents who must send their children to such schools.

Accidents of this kind are not uncommon in Washington. When a high wind comes up pupils in these flimsy buildings can expect to have their recitation interrupted by removal of the roof. The danger can not be eliminated until all school children of the District are housed in permanent buildings.

After children in several portables had been exposed to flying roofs and falling debris last spring an investigation of the whole situation was made. Several of the buildings were found to be in need of repairs, and many of them to have reached an age which makes their continued use hazardous. School officials announced that all unsafe buildings would be taken out of use, but the accident of yesterday indicates that that was not done. The risk will be great until all portable buildings have been scrapped. None of the portables can be considered safe against all kinds of weather.

Congress and school officials have engaged in a lengthy controversy over responsibility for the failure of the five-year school building program. Out of all that has been said on either side the most pertinent fact is that Congress failed to appropriate the funds authorized for this work. As a result school construction is far behind the needs of this rapidly growing city. The existence of dozens of fragile frame buildings to house school children of the District is proof that Congress is financially throttling the Capital City. Where is there among the congressmen one who would be willing to send his children to school in a shack that may be ripped to pieces?

PROFESSORS OF GOVERNMENT.

Dr. Frederick Tilney, of Columbia University, has a plan to make government a profession, similar to medicine, engineering and law. The present governments of the world are failing to give competent service, he says, because they are not realizing their opportunities. Dr. Tilney thinks the remedy is the establishment of schools for training in the profession of government. He would have graduates of these schools serve an apprenticeship in governmental positions of little responsibility, with a view to preparing them for public careers.

Training for the profession of government sounds interesting, but it is too abstract to mean very much. Certainly the young men who enter the Government service should be trained in their respective fields. The Government is demanding the services of scientists, economists, lawyers and other experts to a greater extent every year. But the training required for these positions, and for nearly all positions in the Government service, can be obtained in the universities and colleges already established. It consists not in learning the "profession of government," but in special preparation for the kind of work each individual will be called upon to perform.

Dr. Tilney seems to have in mind training for the profession of politics. He visualizes schools turning out young men who would be available as candidates to elective offices. "With such a system in operation," he says, "it would no longer be necessary to go out into the highways and byways to gather in candidates for our elective offices. Political expediency and selfish exploitation would no longer serve as the basis for candidacy."

But what machinery would be used to induct these exemplary and polished young statesmen into office? How could they get their names on the tickets? How could they hope for election unless they had more than college training and apprenticeship to back them? Obviously some alterations in the American plan of representative government would be essential to make Dr. Tilney's scheme practical, because the people often prefer the candidate who has been graduated from nothing but the university of hard knocks.

Government is not a profession, and as long as it is subject to expression of the popular will it can not be made one. The people insist on choosing their outstanding citizens to represent them in legislative assemblies and executive positions. If those persons are well trained in political science, history, economics, &c., that is well. But the idea of training any special group to become the lawmakers and the executives of a representative government is futile idealism. The objective of a democracy is to carry out the will of the people, not the dictum of a highly-trained minority. Education in the principles and problems of government is an excellent ideal, but let it be applied to all the people.

FROM LAKES TO GULF.

The report of the House rivers and harbors committee favors Federal completion of the Great Lakes to the Gulf waterway, in accordance with the Army engineer's report on the project, and recommends that an appropriation of $7,500,000 be authorized to complete dredging and deepening the Des Plaines and Illinois Rivers, with necessary locks from Utica, Ill., to Lockport. This report probably will not end the controversy that has surrounded the project practically since its inception. The opposition, originating on one hand from cities situated on the lakes which fear a diversion of shipping, and, on the other, from waterpower interests which sense eventual water diversion from the lakes, will be renewed in the debate on the floor. But the project promises to result in such widespread benefits that favorable legislative action may be anticipated.

The State of Illinois and the Chicago sanitary district have jointly poured $90,000,000 into the development of the water link that will join the Great Lakes with the Mississippi system, all but 65 miles of which has been completed. Once the Government takes hold, it is estimated that the canal can be driven through in 24 months or less. Thereupon grain from the Northwest may be shipped by water to New York, and West Virginia coal may be transported at a minimum cost to the Dakotas, Minnesota and Canada. Representative Hull, of Illinois, one of the leaders of the project, says: "The waterway will afford distribution of freight by water from Pittsburgh on the east, St. Paul and Minneapolis in the Northwest, Sioux City, Omaha and Kansas City in the Midwest, Corpus Christi in the Southwest, and Birmingham, New Orleans and Mobile in the South."

The entire water route from New Orleans to Chicago is now navigable to barges except for the 65-mile link which the Government is asked to complete. Congress should not hesitate to enact the legislation necessary to this end. Cheap freight rates benefit all the people. The proposed waterway will function as an adjunct and ally of the railroads. It will stimulate business and reduce living costs. With the $7,500,000 appropriation, the Government has an opportunity to purchase one of the greatest bargains in history.

MUSCLE SHOALS SINKHOLE

From the Wall Street Journal.

Passing again the Muscle Shoals' bill which President Coolidge refused to sign in 1928, the Senate upholds Senator Norris' plan for salvaging that $125,000,000 war loss of public funds. The bill directs a board of three presidential appointees to operate the works for the production of fertilizer and sale of excess power. Mr. Norris justifies government ownership and operation in this instance because:

"It has something besides the fundamental principle of government ownership. We have gone in here primarily for national defense. Power is incidentally developed. It is not a Government ownership proposition. It is only an attempt to make Government property more valuable."

Nevertheless, the bill inaugurates a new chapter of Federal expenditure by authorizing a dam on Cove Creek estimated to cost $38,000,000, which the Nebraska authority on the generation of electricity by friction declares will develop "great quantities of power," assist in flood control and render a stretch of the Tennessee River navigable. In familiar vein, he adds that the Tennessee River if properly developed will demonstrate that "the people who are now paying 8, 10 and 12 cents a kilowatt hour for the lights in the little homes and cottages of America ought to be getting it for 2 cents."

So it is, despite its author's denials and by the words of his own mouth, a government ownership proposition. Nominally power is to be incidental to the manufacture of cheap fertilizer, but excess power is promised to small consumers at a price that has nowhere been possible except to quantity consumers. The bill preserves the form of a contribution to the national defense, yet Maj. Gen. C. C. Williams, Chief of Ordnance, testified March 26 last that the Muscle Shoals plant for manufacture of ammonium nitrate, an ingredient of high explosives, could be scrapped without affecting the national defense. Gen. Williams believes that the United States is sure to become independent of Chilian nitrates but that Muscle Shoals will never contribute to that result.

In 1909 the War Department believed Muscle Shoals could be rendered capable of producing ammonium sulphate, a fertilizer, at $48 a ton. It was then selling at $65. Neither of the two plants on the Tennessee River has ever turned out a ton of this or any fertilizer, but ammonium sulphate is now selling around $38 and 200,000 tons are being exported; in 1919 the United States was importing 165,000 tons annually. The Muscle Shoals plants can be equipped to produce it by a great further but unmeasured expenditure.

Only one sound course in respect to Muscle Shoals is open. Let the Government sell or lease the plants, both power and chemical, to the private corporation offering the highest bid. It has no right to engage in either business in competition with private capital; if it had, common prudence would still dictate an end to the outlay of the taxpayers' money in unknown amounts for uncertain ends.

I find, to be truthful about it,
Whenever I'm eager to shirk,
And I'd much rather play, I am tempted to say
That I'm really too weary to work.

I can talk myself into believing
The flimsy excuses I make,
And a look woe begone I can always put on
As I speak of the rest I must take.

To be honest and candid about it
Self pity's my chiefest complaint
Though its hours may be long, for all pleasure I'm strong,
It's working that makes me feel faint.

I slip to the golf course by stealth;
My conscience I ease, just as nice as you please
By saying I go for my health.

By ROBERT QUILLEN

YOUTHS between the ages of 17 and 21 compose the most numerous class of present-day criminals.

In mental and physical equipment these youths are equal to the boys and girls who go straight, which means that some cause outside themselves makes shipwreck of their lives.

It is true that few of them are brilliant, but it is equally true that millions of people with dull minds are law-abiding citizens.

It is true that modern life offers them innumerable temptations, but millions of other youngsters meet the same temptations and keep straight.

Neither stupidity nor boyhood environment can explain their downfall.

They go down because they are weak and because they are given no training at home.

Boys with strong character and keen minds survive in any environment and with little guidance because pride keeps them clean and intelligence convinces them that the straight way is more profitable than the crooked.

But weaklings without the right background are doomed by an evil environment because the chief desire of the weak is to appear strong and the easy way to appear strong is to mimic those who dare to do the things that are forbidden.

The small boy who wishes to seem manly will smoke and swear—not because these accomplishments are manly in fact, but solely because they are adult practices he is forbidden to share.

The weakling goes wrong more easily than he goes right because he sees in the example of honorable men no opportunity to make a show of courage and thus hide his weakness.

Is he then doomed by weakness from the day of his birth? No. Millions potentially as weak become good citizens.

He is made weak by lack of training in childhood, just as other children are made physically weak by lack of exercise.

And he is untrained because his parents haven't intelligence enough or character enough to set him on the right way.

That doesn't necessarily mean that his parents are poor and ignorant. Very little intelligence is required to make money, and many people who are "educated" lack both character and common sense.

The child absorbs nine-tenths of its training from the example of its parents.

Given a constant example of good manners, dignity, self-control, truth and honor, and then taught to obey, any normal boy will make good.

But slapping, whipping, scolding and preaching will not save one whose stupid and ill-behaved parents afford him no background of decency and give him no training in obedience.

THE ONCE OVER

By H. I. PHILLIPS

PRESIDENT HOOVER ANSWERS THE CENSUS QUESTIONS.

1. What is your relationship to head of family?

A. A husband serving as President of the United States.

2. Is your home owned or rented?

A. California home owned. White House occupied by popular vote. Mayflower for sale.

3. Do you own a radio set?

A. Don't be silly. Didn't I say in all my campaign speeches that under the Republican party there was a radio in every home?

4. But is there?

A. There was up to the time the market broke.

5. How do you like it?

A. All right, except when some Democratic editor is on the air.

6. Have you an electric ice-box? Two-car garage?

A. Now you're just being sarcastic.

7. In what year did you immigrate to the United States?

A. That has nothing to do with the census; you're just trying to stir up an old campaign issue for Al Smith.

8. Are you able to speak English?

A. One more insolent question like that and I'll have your income tax return specifically investigated.

9. What is your occupation?

A. It becomes more puzzling to me every day I am in the White House. I had assumed I was to be an executive, but a lot of politicians seem under the impression my chief occupation should be answering the telephone, shaking hands with strangers, taking rabbits out of a silk hat and demanding resignations.

10. Are you an employer, employe or working on your own account?

A. This is no time for riddles, mister.

11. Are you in a gainful occupation?

A. I can't tell till the next election.

12. Were you actually at work yesterday?

A. Yes. Just because of those handball games and those articles about the opening of the trout season you needn't assume I wasn't.

13. What was your previous occupation?

A. I was an engineer.

14. Reason for changing occupation?

A. The World War lump-sugar crisis, the Mississippi floods and the belief of the voters at the last election that there could be prosperity only under the G. O. P.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR.

Suggests Barred Windows as Preventive of Suicide From High Buildings.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Scarcely a day goes by without reports of the suicide of some man or woman by leaping from the window of a building. If the falling body does not land on the head of one or more pedestrians, or on top of persons in automobiles, it frequently barely misses some one and crashes to earth before his very eyes.

Why should not the owners of all hotels, hospitals, apartment houses and office buildings be required to place strong bars at all windows from the second floor up? The Government has already set a splendid example, in the case of the Washington Monument. EMMETT JOHN.

Foolish Oceanic Flights by Plane Endanger Lives of Valuable Men.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Each spring and summer since 1927 there have been attempts made to span the Atlantic Ocean by means of planes. Most of the attempts proved fatal to the airmen, though several of the flights were successful. The time of year for these attempted flights is rapidly approaching. Seven pilots already have announced their intention of pitting their skill against the elements. Unless the countries which claim these aviators as citizens prohibit these intended flights there undoubtedly will be some fatalities.

It is usually the best birdmen of the different nations who try these perilous flights, and when they do succeed what have they accomplished? If they just could be forced to abandon these dangerous attempts they would be spared to develop aviation. They should not be allowed to throw their lives away.

Chinatown Raids Are Good, But More Persistent Action Against Dope Peddlers Is Necessary.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: By their action Saturday in swooping down on several opium dens in the Chinese quarter and seizing large quantities of opium and pipes, the twenty-three Federal and local narcotic agents and police who made the raids have once more brought to public notice the need for eternal vigilance if the dope evil is to be curbed in Washington. That the authorities are vigilant in a measure is clearly demonstrated by the results of Saturday's three raids.

Salutary as are such raids, there appears to be something wrong with the whole business of detection and prevention of this type of law-breaking. What is needed is more vigilance, more arrests, more convictions, and more cooperation with the Bureau of Immigration. If the Chinese arrested are not legally entitled to remain in this country, the Bureau of Immigration should see that they are deported. J. C. ACTON.

Comment on the Wet-Dry Controversy by a Friendly Canadian.

To the Editor of The Post—Sir: Speaking as an onlooker from a neighboring country, I rather wonder at the one-sidedness of the pleas made by the "wets" and the "drys" in the United States. One can easily see that their whole viewpoint is decided by the basic fact that they are "wet" or "dry." Their verdict is not that of a judicial unbiased mind. And the commission so regards it. The "wet" (a "moist") thinks, "Am I not as sane and responsible a citizen as these fanatics, and have I not as good a right to say what I shall eat and drink as they? Why should they usurp the power to dictate to me in this matter, while they themselves suffer no compulsion to refrain from an innocent habit? And, in addition, my State did not consent to this tyrannical edict, which was forced upon her in direct violation of State's rights, contrary to the original intention of the lawmaking power."

Per contra, the "dry" should point out, "What you contend is perfectly true, and I have no intention to overlord you. But what I would like to draw to your attention is the large amount of crime, poverty, misery and accident that may justly be laid at the door of alcoholic indulgence. So much is this the case that the law has found it necessary to interfere in various ways with its free consumption and production. Observe the startling contrast. No license, excise, or tax is placed upon the sale of milk, or tea, or other nonalcoholic beverage. Why this marked banning of the one, and the freedom of the other? It must be because that one has been found to be dangerous and the other beneficial. Why will you not give up your occasional glass for the good of your country, and prohibit the whole business?"

But, the other replies, "Supposing I do consent to what you are proposing, there are such a large number who will still drink, in spite of any law to the contrary, that the law will be an empty mockery, whose only effect will be to corrupt the police and degrade the courts in the eyes of all citizens. And this has really happened, and any fair mind must see and acknowledge it."

The dry replies, "And you and all other drinkers are the actual cause of the partial failure of the ordinance."

So it goes. Both sides follow Caesar's profound dictum, "People are generally willing to believe a thing to be true when they wish it to be so." TORONTO CANADIAN.

NORRIS WANTS FUND INQUIRY VOTE TODAY

Senator Asserts Expenditures in Several States Have Drawn Complaints.

IS CANDIDATE HIMSELF

(Associated Press.)

Drastic procedure was initiated yesterday by Senator Norris (Republican), Nebraska, in the Senate to hasten consideration of his resolution proposing a special committee of investigation into the campaign expenditures of the senatorial candidates.

The Nebraskan moved for the discharge of the elections committee from further consideration of the resolution and gave notice he would ask a vote on that motion today. He explained later he had received complaints on campaign expenditures from Illinois, Pennsylvania, Nebraska and other States where senatorial contests are being waged.

Indignant over the Norris motion to discharge his committee from consideration of the resolution, Chairman Shortridge, of the elections committee, said later it was "unnecessary."

Says Norris Agreed to Delay.

He said he had deferred consideration of it during the tariff and Muscle Shoals debates with the consent of the Nebraskan.

Explaining that he had attempted to get the committee together previously and that he was now engaged for five hours daily on the tariff bill conference committee, the California senator promised consideration of the resolution sme time this week.

Senator Norris said he did not want the investigating resolution to be directed at any particular State. He said he had received complaints from many States. The hotly contested campaign between Senator Deneen and Representative Ruth Hanna McCormick, for the Illinois Republican senatorial nomination, will be settled at the polls today. This is one of the campaigns which the Nebraskan said he wanted inquired into.

Norris Himself a Candidate.

Senator Norris himself is a candidate for renomination on the Republican ticket in Nebraska this year. He said he had received some complaints from that State.

"I want all charges investigated," he explained. "Let this committee, if it is authorized, go into all the campaigns where there is necessity."

In Pennsylvania Secretary Davis is running for the seat of Senator Grundy. The Republican primary will be held next month.

ILLINOIS PRIMARIES WILL BE HELD TODAY

could not support Trude because of her friendship for the other crowd.

While the limelight has been focused upon Mrs. McCormick and Senator Deneen, a third rival for the Republican nomination for senator looms as an impressive figure in tomorrow's balloting. That is Newton Jenkins, Chicago attorney, who six years ago polled almost 125,000 votes for senator against Deneen and the late Senator McCormick.

The excitement of tomorrow's battling at the polls is confined almost exclusively to the Republicans. Save for a few ward fights over party nominations for the Legislature or Congress, there is no serious contest in the Democratic primary.

James Hamilton Lewis, former United States senator and one of the leaders of his party in the Senate during the administration of President Wilson, is the candidate of the Democratic organization for senator again. Former Senator Lewis has announced that once the primary is over and the campaigning for the November election begins he will force the Republican nominee to meet the prohibition issue.

Senator Deneen and Mrs. McCormick are indorsed by the Antisaloon League, while in the United States Senate Senator Lewis voted twice against the Volstead act.

Preparations are being made by the Voters Nonpartisan Association to distribute volunteer watchers among the hundreds of precincts in Chicago where there is danger of election frauds being attempted.

BROOKHART PAY BILL PASSED BY SENATE

it impossible to advance the last steps more than one. By a ruling of the Comptroller General, in the grades with seven steps, the last four steps were advanced only one step each, and a like principle applied to the other grades.

"The present bill seeks to add the other step at the top of each grade, and thereby to automatically advance each step by two steps, as compared with the old law of March 4, 1923. Those employes who have already received their two steps advance are not further advanced or affected by this bill."

As passed yesterday, the Brookhart bill also provides that Federal employes who are compelled to take furloughs shall be compensated for the time they are off.

This provision is designed primarily for the benefit of employes of the Bureau of Engraving and Printing, who are frequently made to take involuntary furloughs because of a reported slack in work. The provision was put into the bill at the suggestion of Senator George (Democrat), of Georgia.

STEAMSHIPS

They Call It Politics

By CARTER FIELD

BITTERNESS of the Republican senatorial primary battle in Illinois between Ruth Hanna McCormick, member of the House at large, and Senator Charles S. Deneen has aroused high hopes in the breasts of Democratic leaders that they may gain a seat in the Senate in that rock-ribbed Republican State.

Most of the reports have been that Mrs. McCormick has at least a slight edge in the battle, this being a radical change from early opinion, which was that Deneen would retire Mrs. McCormick to private life, as he retired her husband six years ago.

Big Bill Thompson has lined up behind Mrs. McCormick, not because he is such an admirer of her policies or activities, but because he dislikes Deneen so cordially. Deneen in a way headed the "reform" battle of two years ago, when the regime of Gov. Small and State's Attorney Crowe went down to defeat. Thompson would like to pay off that score right now. He would like to eliminate Deneen as a force in Illinois politics for all time.

* * * *

BUT the battle for senatorship is bound to leave plenty of scars, the Democrats figure, all of which will keep Republican votes from being cast for the primary winner on election day. If Mrs. McCormick should triumph, they point out, many disgruntled followers of Deneen will either refrain from voting at all for senator in November, or will vote for J. Hamilton Lewis, the Democratic nominee.

Curiously enough, Lewis is the only Democrat Illinois has sent to the Senate for many years. He came as a result of the 1912 split in the Republican party, which resulted in the election of a Democratic Legislature, that being before the days of direct election of senators.

HE was defeated in 1918 by Medill McCormick, whose widow is now trying to get the nomination, in which event she will oppose the man her husband retired to private life, just as she is running in the primary against the man who defeated her husband six years later.

The Democrats also figure that a great many Republican voters will not be inclined to vote for a woman for senator, and that these either will not vote on the senatorship at all, election time, or will vote for Lewis.

On the other hand, if Deneen should win the nomination, the Democrats think their chances will be even brighter. They are counting on Big Bill Thompson to slaughter the senator in Chicago, where Lewis is rather popular.

* * * *

CURIOUSLY enough the old League of Nations fight is very much to the fore. Mrs. McCormick has been attacking the world court up and down the State, alleging that it is a mere back door which will take the United States right into the league. Thompson has always been a bitter opponent of the league, taking that fight on as a sideline of his war against King George.

Lewis intends to make his real fight, if he can control the issue, on prohibition. He is running dripping wet, as George Brennan did in 1924, but without several of the Brennan handicaps. In the first place he is not a Catholic, and yet has always been friendly with the Brennan faction. The organization is not particularly enthusiastic about Lewis, but recognize him as a good vote getter, and he has few enemies.

Of course, it would take a tremendous turnover to carry a State Democratic the normal Republican majority of which is in excess of 300,000, but with the present combination of factors the Democrats are very hopeful, indeed.

Hundreds of Bootleggers Freed by Michigan Ruling

Legislature Forgot to Provide Saving Clause in Substituting More Stringent Act for Former Dry Law, and Old Violators Are Immune.

Lansing, Mich., April 7 (A.P.).—Several hundred alleged violators of the laws against selling liquor will escape prosecution through a ruling by the Michigan Supreme Court handed down late today.

The court ruled that persons who violated the old Michigan prohibition law and who were not prosecuted before last August 28 can not be tried. The Cuthbertson law, providing mandatory prison sentences of one to four years for bootleggers, became effective on that date, but the 1929 State Legislature, in passing the Cuthbertson act, failed to provide a saving clause to account for violations under the old law. It is estimated that in Detroit and Wayne County alone 200 such cases against alleged bootleggers will have to be dismissed, and there are many more throughout the State.

The decision of the Supreme Court affirmed that of Judge Major L. Dunham, of Grand Rapids, who dismissed the case against Mary and Floyd Lowell on the ground that they could not be tried under the Cuthbertson act for an offense committed before the law was in operation, nor could they be tried under the old law after it was repealed by the more stringent act.

The Supreme Court in its decision pointed out that similar oversights have been committed by other legislatures and hinted that legislators should acquaint themselves with the fact that saving clauses must be embodied in legislation advancing penalties. Two justices who did not concur in the majority opinion contended that the 1929 legislature did not intend to turn loose several hundred bootleggers without penalty, regardless of language used in the Cuthbertson act.

Two Maryland Bandits Thwarted by Professor

Hagerstown, Md., April 7 (N.Y.W.N.S.)—An athletic college professor today gave a smashing surprise to two bandits who mistook him for an easy mark. Prof. James Widdowson, 38, of Greensburg, Pa., a guest at a local hotel, was pounced upon by two young men who leaped from behind a porch. One jumped upon his back and was thrown over the head of the professor, who then administered a hearty kick.

A moment later the doughty educator landed several solid wallops on the jaw of the second thug and the pair, concluding they had tackled the wrong man, fled.

HOUSE CONFEREES WIN TARIFF RISES

CONCUR ON PLATE GLASS

(Associated Press.)

Two major victories were chalked up by the House conferees on the tariff bill yesterday as they forced the Senate group to agree to higher duties on pig iron and pottery.

The House committee, however, concurred in the Senate reductions in duties on certain sizes of plate glass.

Reaching the third of the fifteen rate schedules, embracing metals and all metal articles, the conferees eliminated the 75 cents a ton duty on pig iron placed in the bill by the Senate coalition of Democrats and Republican Independents and restored the existing and House rate of $1.12½.

The 75-cent levy was the rate in existing law until raised 50 per cent a few years ago by presidential proclamation under the flexible provision.

The House group also won an additional levy of 10 cents a dozen pieces on decorated pottery, making the rate 10 cents a dozen and 50 per cent as against a Senate bill duty of 55 per cent and the present rate of 55 per cent.

Compromise on Plate Glass.

While the House bill provided additional duties of 10 cents a dozen pieces to the present rate of 60 and 70 per cent, respectively, on all plain and decorated chinaware, the conferees accepted the Senate amendment to apply the increase specifically to tableware, kitchenware, and all table utensils of chinaware.

The Senate rates accepted on plate glass were 17 cents a square foot as against 19 cents now in effect on sizes over 384, but not more than 1,008 square inches, and 19½ cents a square foot on sizes above 1,008 square inches, as compared with the present levy of 22 cents.

Under a rephrasing of the language, none of the foregoing plate glass measuring one-half an inch or over in thickness would be dutiable at less than 50 per cent ad valorem.

While existing duties on window glass were retained a provision was inserted placing a minimum duty of 50 per cent on this glass when weighing less than 15 ounces per square foot.

The present duty of 15 cents a square foot on plate glass not over 384 square inches and containing a wire netting within itself was restored by compromise. A similar tariff was given plate, cylinder, crown and sheet glass when made into mirrors and ranging in size between 144 and 384 square inches. The present duty on these mirrors is 13½ cents.

Comparison of New Duties.

Other duties agreed upon, compared with present rates, follow:

Glass perfume bottles and jars and bottles, vials and jars fitted or designed for fitting with ground glass stoppers, if machine made, 25 per cent, as against 55 per cent; same, handblown, 70 per cent, as against 55 per cent; glass prisms, 30 per cent against 60 per cent; glass chimneys, 55 per cent against 60 per cent; glass globes and shades, 70 per cent against 60 per cent; glass surgical rods, 40 per cent against 65 per cent; carbon and electrodes for producing electric arc lights if less than one-half an inch in diameter, 60 per cent against 45 per cent; incandescent electric light bulbs and lamps with filaments of carbon, and other nonmetal material, 30 per cent against 20 per cent.

Burr stones, free, against 15 per cent; grind stones, free, against $1.75 a ton; slate, 25 per cent against 15 per cent; crystalline lump, chip and dust graphite, 30 per cent against 20 per cent; crystalline slate graphite, 1.65 cents a pound again 1½ cents.

Pitched and limed granite, 60 per cent against 15 cents a cubic foot; travertine stone, unmanufactured, 25 cents a cubic foot against 15 cents.

Voiding of Paving Levies Is Upheld

Cancelling of Assessments Supported in Appeal Decision.

The Court of Appeals yesterday affirmed action of the District Supreme Court in cancelling assessments of $6,618.27 against the property known as Friendship, belonging to the estate of John R. McLean.

A similar assessment against property of Christian Heurich, on Wisconsin avenue, also was canceled by the lower court and affirmed by the higher court.

Justice Van Orsdel ruled that paving assessments present vivid illustrations of the impossibility of equitably applying the front-foot rule in assessments of property abutting on Washington streets.

Justice Van Orsdel declared that Wisconsin avenue presented a case similar to that decided by the court some time ago in connection with Rhode Island avenue assessments on a front-foot basis, and that such assessments are arbitrary, inequitable and discriminatory. Attorneys Wilton J. Lambert, J. Spaulding Flannery and George E. Fraser appeared on behalf of the McLean estate.

Williams Will Testify Today in Plane Quiz

(Associated Press.)

Alford J. Williams, former speed flier of the Navy, has been called to testify today before a subcommittee of the Senate naval affairs committee as the first witness in an investigation into airplane equipment.

The inquiry will be on a resolution introduced by Senator Tydings (Democrat), Maryland, who said he wanted to ascertain why the United States Navy lagged behind other countries in fast pursuit and bombing planes.

Williams recently resigned from the Navy after being transferred to sea duty. He has conducted experiments intended to develop a fast naval plane.

SENATOR IN HOT FIGHT

torial in The Post, asserting that it came "from a source that has always been friendly to Mr. Raskob and unfriendly to prohibition."

"It shows that even among the friends of Mr. Raskob, it is now recognized that his attitude in holding on to the chairmanship of the Democratic national committee is an impossible one.

"I desire to say that I was very much astonished and appalled, as I am sure that all Democrats who are in favor of the eighteenth amendment and its enforcement were, by the facts recently developed by a Senate committee, that Mr. John J. Raskob, who at present holds the position of chairman of the Democratic national committee, has been contributing, and is still contributing, large sums to the work of the Association Against the Prohibition Amendment.

"That association has for its purpose the destruction of prohibition and our prohibition enforcement laws. Mr. Raskob's own testimony before the Senate committee was amazing and disclosed that the money that he and others are contributing to the association in question, is being used or is to be used by that association for the election of wet senators and representatives, and, of course, in many instances is being used or will be used for the defeat of dry Democrats who are opposed by wet Republicans."

The Democrats of his State, he said, "in an overwhelming majority, disapprove, condemn and repudiate the action of Mr. Raskob in contributing to the funds to be used to elect wet Republicans over dry Democrats, while he still holds the titular position of national chairman of our party."

Of course, the senator was neither "astonished" nor "appalled" to learn of this situation. It has been known for a very long time that Mr. Raskob contributed to the wet association. His contributions have been a matter of record at the Capitol.

In view of the temper of the Democrats generally over Senator Simmons' second bolt within two years it might be said rather definitely that when Josepheus Daniels arrives today to carry Senator Simmons' cause before the lobby committee, that he will not be received by a delegation of Democrats and taken to view the cherry blossoms. Most anything but that may happen, though.

DEAREST GENEVIEVE: We are all so excited about the Women's Press Club stunt party tonight, that we scarcely know anything else is going on. It was postponed once you know, the original date having been the fourth of March. I will tell you all about it later.

With official mourning ended, the spring social season gets under way with dozens of gay events. The opera season April 23, 24 and 25 will be the high point in interest and brilliance. Gorgeous new gowns will be worn for the first time the opening night. It will be a sight worth seeing.

Family Portraits Are Cherished Possessions

—and nothing quite takes the place of beautiful photographs made in home surroundings of the assembled family. Underwood & Underwood's window this week has an exhibit of photographs of families which you will agree are most interesting. One picture showing a mother and father, a daughter and two sons is perfectly adorable. You know just by looking at it, that this photograph will go down in family history a prized possession.

The nice part about the Underwood & Underwood service is that you may have the sittings made in your own home without extra charge. The advantage of home sittings goes without saying. You all feel and look more natural in your home than in a strange place. Then too, the fun of seeing yourselves in later years amidst the familiar household gods, is a pleasure in itself. Whether you intend to have family groups made or not, do stop by Underwood & Underwood's and see the exhibit in their windows.

The Loveliest Prints at Schwartz

—may be purchased for only $16.50. You would never believe just from my telling you that it could be possible to buy such beautiful patterns in such attractive fashionings for this money. Many of the little models at this price have their own coats, boleros and jackets, in either matching or contrasting colors and materials.

Some of the models are short-sleeved, with bows and sashes, or with scalloped edges and colored pipings. The silks are too pretty to describe. The sizes are in a complete range, and the variety of styles infinite. At $16.50 you have never seen better models. Schwartz, 1325 Connecticut avenue.

Hariton Furs Has Just Opened

—at 1617 Connecticut avenue. I know you will be glad to find this splendid shop in this convenient new location.

Hariton has always taken pride in their fine fur work, in the selected skins and the workmanship which goes into their garments and trimmings.

Just at this time when you are thinking about putting your coats in condition and storing them for the summer, let me tell you that Hariton will store them free if they do your repair work.

You will like the shop, because it is new and fresh, with a bright, attractive interior, and a good window for display purposes. Remember the address, Hariton, 1617 Connecticut avenue.

Pasternak Attires The April Bride

—with the most exquisite gowns and hats for her own trousseau, as well as for her bridesmaids. Bridal gowns show slim bodice and fullness growing gradually toward the hem of the skirts which nearly touch the ground. Bridesmaids' frocks are developed in glorious color effect as subtle and delicate as the blossoms in a bouquet.

Pasternak, 1219 Connecticut avenue, in its present collections, has anticipated the wants and needs of the Easter bride more bounteously than ever. The frocks for day and evening, the tailleur, the utility coat, evening wraps, furs, sports things, hats all may be selected from extensive assortments in this famous shop.

Ask to see moderately priced models in junior and misses' sizes.

Elizabeth Arden Face Treatments

—are absolutely essential to the woman who would keep well groomed. Nothing can compare with the set-up feeling one has after one of these refreshing, fragrant, stimulating treatments. Surely nothing can compare with the way you look afterward. Stretched out in a long chair in the seclusion of the colorful little treatment room, while the skillful young woman in charge smooths away the lines of care, you are hoping you will look as much better as you are beginning to feel. When you sit up after a delicious hour, and look at yourself in the glass, your fondest expectations are more than realized.

Unusual Surroundings And Fountain Service

—make the tea room at the Hob Nob, 1010 F street, one of the most appealing places to stop in an afternoon. The tea room is really a series of rooms, each done in the highly modernistic manner, with special lighting, and striking color effects. These rooms are in constant demand for hostesses who wish to entertain at luncheon and bridge, or bridge with tea. It is an easy place to drop into, and offers everything for pleasure and comfort, once you have found it.

The Hob Nob Cafeteria on the street floor is an attraction in itself. Nothing in town like it either. It is open from 11:30 to 2:30 and from 4 to 7:30. The tea room is open continuously from 11:30 to 8 in the evening.

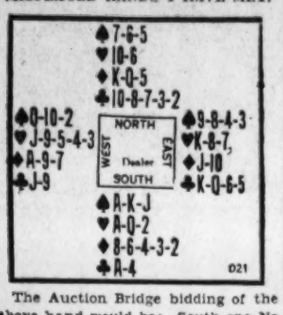
WORK ON BRIDGE

MISPLACED HANDS I HAVE MET.



The Auction Bridge bidding of the above hand would be: South one No Trump, followed by three passes.

The Contract bidding would be: South two No Trumps—his hand has a count of 18 with three suits stopped, and such great length in the remaining suit that it presents little danger for a No Trump declaration. North with a King and Queen would jump the two No Trumps to three.

When the hand was played, West led a Heart on which East played the King; South won and led a Diamond. West played small, and North won and led a Spade. South finessed the Jack, West won and led another Heart which cleared the adversaries' Heart suit; and when South, after winning with the Queen of Hearts, led a second Diamond, West had the Ace of Diamonds left with which to enter, make his remaining Hearts and save game.

THE CORRECT PLAY.

The first two tricks in the above play were quite O. K., but the Declarer erred seriously when he finessed the Spade on trick 3. The play of trick 2 indicated that the Ace of Diamonds was in the West hand; if East had held it, he would have taken North's high Diamond and returned his partner's Hearts. Consequently game was seemingly assured by leading a second Diamond from South to trick 4. Furthermore, losing the Spade finesse meant losing game if West had started with a five-card Heart suit; while winning it meant only one immaterial trick. The Spade finesse should have been refused at trick 3, South winning and leading a second Diamond. Played in that way Declarer will make two Spades, two Hearts, four Diamonds and one Club.

GOOD NEWS, BRIDGERS.

We are pleased to announce we can now renew the offer of Milton C. Work's great Contract and Auction booklet entitled "THE PLAYING PROBLEMS." Bridgers who received copies from previous offers are most enthusiastic over it.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS" presents eighteen hands, the complete auction and contract bidding for each hand with reasons for each bid, the answers to every question and the reason for each answer in complete detail.

"PLAYING PROBLEMS," which will be of much greater value to the auction and contract player than many high-priced textbooks, is not for sale. It has been prepared exclusively for readers of this newspaper by special arrangement with Mr. Work. One copy will be mailed to you upon request if you send self-addressed stamped return envelope, together with 6 cents in stamps to defray part of the cost of printing and handling this 48-page booklet. Requests not complying with these conditions will be ignored.

Jane Interprets the Mode

Chic, too, is Tollman's yellow, black and white mixture hat and bag.

LET'S call it Closet Inventory Day. Even the most chic of us can afford it, and those of us who have let ourselves become too occupied with this or that or the other thing are positively in glaring need of it.

It isn't as though you may not have everything that you need, because you may have, more or less, and still just as you get all dressed to go out to Mrs. Myh-a-ha-s' bridge party, find yourself sighing regretfully for that bag you forgot to buy, or the gloves that you knew were to be mended. It's maddening—and then all in a fury and a flutter of discomfort you go any way, feel conscious of your deficiency, and then come home and forget all about it until the next time.

I know, because I've just done it! And then all in a fury I sat down with a pencil and paper until 1:30 this morning, writing out a closet inventory for all the world as though I were making a will! Not piece by piece and dress by dress, understand, but ensemble by ensemble—complete outfit by outfit—with what I need to complete various outfits underlined and put down later on a separate shopping list as things to buy.

And you would be surprised at the little this and the little that that the various outfits need—this one must have a bag, that one a different kind of gloves, the other one a vest or a collar or a necklace.

Come on, let's you, too, have a closet inventory!

* * * *

Schiaparelli—you dont have to try to say the name unless you have a romantic Italian beau in the offing, like we have—but you do have to know that this couturiere makes the smartest sports things ever! There, for instance, is a black and white ensemble of hers that I sketched for you today, worn with a salmon-colored satin blouse, the scarf of which threads through the outside part of the coat of the ensemble. And it was bright and shiny satin, too, matched by the lining of the coat! Honestly, it was the last word—I haven't made up my mind whether I can really live without it or not—

* * * *

A screen for Petite Adorable's nursery! Made of pale blue linoleum, with modernistic waves on it, of two shades of lighter and deeper green—one that you can make yourself, too, for a tenth of what it would cost to buy.

And this is only one of the delightful screens you can make this week by sending a stamped self-addressed envelope to the Dare Department of The Washington Post for the illustrated leaflet which tells you how to go about it.

* * * *

And then there is a delightful tweed hat and matching tweed bag with wooden top that I couldn't resist sketching for you in the corner. They are Tollman's ideas and can be worn as a separate ensemble or with the tailored dress of the same tweed.

* * * *

Must we remind you again of the weekly Dare fashion letter? It's in The Sunday Washington Post, you know, each week.

Au Revoir!

Wives of Tomorrow

By FRANCES M'DONALD

"He Can Not Live."

DEAR MISS McDONALD: This is the story.

I am 19 years old, have been going with boys since I was 13. A couple of years ago I started going seriously with a boy my age. I had known him for sometime before, and he had seemed very likable and I quite lost my head over him.

The situation stands as follows at present. He is still in high school and expects to graduate next June. He has been working for his father, and knows the business very well, and as soon as he is through school will have a permanent position there. The salary will be $30 or $35 a week, and he wants to save up all his money between now and next September, at which time he wants to marry me. On the other hand, my mother and I are alone, without a cent except what we ourselves earn. Therefore, I went two years to business school and have been working in this office since I was 15.

I tell him that we can not be married next September for various reasons, among them the fact that my mother will be left alone. He seems to think that is the most silly of reasons, that my mother has lived her life, she is 61 now, and it is now my turn to live mine. Perhaps he is right. Every one, I believe, should live their own lives, but still there are circumstances in life that one must face. He can not see it that way, and believes in every one being for himself. He has offered to take mother and provide for her, but she would never do it, as she does not like him, and there would be no happiness under those circumstances for any of us.

I know you are thinking, "But where does love come in?" Do you think we are too young to be in love? We have been through an awful lot of hard things together, and have come through on top. He loves me. He is simply crazy about me. He says if I do not marry him he will not care to live. Everything he does is for me, and he thinks that since it has lasted for over two years it is real love.

To my knowledge he has not been out with another girl since I have been going with him, and I have been out with quite a number of other boys. He has never said much about it, but I know he feels terribly about it. At times I am perfectly happy with him, and could love him "to death," but at other times, even though I have promised him, I break away and go with others. Sometimes I feel as though I could never live without him, and again I think I could never marry him. What is the matter with me?

He has never had a real home, and so I sometimes feel that I am taking a mother's place with him. I feel so sorry for him because he has had it so hard, and to cap it all off he has an impediment in his speech, which is going to make it bad for him to be able to ever get anywhere in the world. My mother says the way I feel toward him is more sympathy than anything else, and I have thought perhaps she was right, and yet again I'm sure I love him.

He is a good boy. He doesn't drink, or keep bad company, or any of the other things a young fellow is liable to get into. He will not take me any place where he thinks people might say something to harm my reputation. Should I give up a fellow like that to go out into the world and get I know not whom?

Forgive me for making this so long, but could you help me to decide what's best? Thank you. Sincerely,
MARY.

You probably love the boy, Mary; but he is too young to be rushing into marriage in September. No boy should become a husband and a prospective father while he is experiencing the agonies of adolescence. When a boy talks of "not being able to live" if a girl does not marry him, he is warning her that he is only a boy and not a man.

Leaving your mother entirely out of the picture, you should wait before deciding the matter of lifelong companionship. You need not worry about mother. She can take an apartment and sublet a couple of rooms and soon be so busy making a home for other people that she will have no time to be lonely and no need to be dependent.

Your problem is the boy and his youth—not the question of how you shall dispose of a mother who is young enough to be able to dispose very satisfactorily of herself. Wait, Mary, at least another year, for forever is a long, long time.

ANSWERS TO INQUIRIES.

PLEASE tell me the name of the plant of which I inclose a leaf and a root, also its care. I have a pot of these roots. Should they be set aside to rest at this time? I notice that the leaves are all turning yellow, which I take for a sign that they require a rest. Please, also, tell me the name of the black leaf. This plant was beautiful until about six months ago, when the foliage suddenly turned black. I am also bothered with white insects which have attacked most of my house plants.
MATHILDA E. W.

The leaf and bulb you inclosed resembled parts of the crocus. When these bulbs are grown in a pot it is best to keep watering the bulbs until the leaves have turned yellow, at which time the pot may be set aside until fall. Then the bulbs may be repotted for house use or planted in the open. I am sorry, but the black leaf you mention was merely black dust when it reached my desk. Weekly spraying with cold, soapy water will keep your house plants free from insects.

Please tell me the name of the leaf I am inclosing. I am growing this vine in the house. Also please tell me why the section of the leaves of my cactus are so small. I grew this plant in the South a few years ago and at that time the sections were much larger. MRS. L. S. B.

Your vine is a parlor ivy and the leaf you inclosed showed a suggestion of the presence of mealy bug. Better begin to spray the plant at once with cold, soapy water. The piece of your cactus did not show any signs of disease, but seemed like a young shoot that hadn't attained its proper growth. Perhaps when it grows older the sections may become larger. The plant you had in the South may have been a different variety from the one you now have.

Please tell me if the inclosed envelope of sand is the same as the variety you mention as white, sharp-pointed sand. Also please tell me the name of the fern of which I am inclosing a frond. Does this variety require a daily supply of water?
MRS. A. D. W.

Yes, the sand you inclosed is the usual variety spoken of as white, sharp-pointed sand. The frond was from a pteris fern. Give this plant water every day and keep it in a light but not too sunny location.

Please tell me the name of the inclosed leaf and also the reason why all the foliage is dropping off the plant. This plant grew beautifully on the veranda last summer, but since it has been in the house it has never done well. M. A. K.

Your plant is a species of begonia, and it is no doubt losing its leaves because you are giving it too much or too little water and not enough fresh air. Better cut it back to the root at this time.

Please tell me the remedy for narcissus bulbs which each year send up most beautiful foliage but practically no flowers. Could these bulbs be lifted after blooming an dplaced in a shady spot until the foliage dies, then be lifted again and cleaned and stored until fall? Also can I lift gladiolus and tulips in the same way? I give my bulbs ordinary care, but I have never lifted them as I have described. X. Y. Z.

As a rule, it is not necessary to take up and reset narcissus bulbs until they show signs of needing more root room by shyness of bloom. Then they may be lifted at any time after the ripening of the foliage and before growth begins at the roots. If you reset them in late August they will likely produce blooms the following season. It is, however, unnecessary to lift them twice, being much better to allow them to ripen in the beds where they were originally planted. This also applies to gladiolus and tulips.

What Today Means to You

"ARIES."

IF April 8 is your birthday, the best hours for you on this date are from 9 a. m. to 10:30 a. m., from 5 p. m. to 6:30 p. m. and from 10 p. m. to midnight. The danger periods are from 7:30 a. m. to 8:30 a. m. and from 2:30 p. m. to 4 p. m.

Propitious influences will be in force on this date. You will view life through rose-colored glasses, and you will feel more than equal to your job. Unusual experiences, a new outlook upon life, and financial gains.

Children born on this April 8 will have changable and erratic natures, which will lead to a misunderstanding of their natures. They will be extremely loyal to their own people and friends, and indifferent to others. They will have a high degree of intelligence.

You, with your temperament, amble through life in a quiet, unassuming manner. You do not miss many of the conservative, worth-while things, but you do avoid the dangers which beset the speed artists. You are a mild-mannered person of a few words, so that neither your tongue nor your outward demeanor gets you into trouble. All your movements are calm and deliberate, and you carry on with dignity and ease. You are not a master of either your physical or mental energy, and you have no need to fight for "fitness"—you keep in good condition.

It is not easy for others to judge you on first acquaintance, for you make no pretense of "showing off." Time always proves to them, however, that "still water runs deep." Your conversation is not mere prattle. You think before you speak and you are concise in your expression. You have what is known as "dry wit," and your remarks are often too deep and too subtle to be appreciated by the slow witted. Your enemies are usually pelted with sarcasm of a most biting nature, to which there is no comeback. You are rather set and stubborn, although you do not argue. You simply go on thinking and doing as you please.

Successful people born April 8:

David Rittenhouse, astronomer.
Irving R. Wiles, artist.
Mary Pickford, movie actress.
King Albert of Belgium.

Behind the Screens

With NELSON B. BELL

WHILE awaiting my turn in the loge at Loew's Palace Theater last Saturday night, I was afforded an unparalleled opportunity to renew my acquaintanceship with the bull-headedness of the American public.

Two families, evidently not together—one consisting of father, mother and, I should say, 15-year-old daughter; the other of father, mother and two of the girls, aged approximately 5 and 7—put on the show. Side by side, these two groups placed themselves exactly in the middle of an aisle which fire regulations say shall not be blocked. They were requested to move, by members of the floor staff, and never budged. The two little girls insisted upon sitting on the balcony steps, where obstructing the passageway also is prohibited. The parents were asked please to have their children observe the police and fire regulations, and not only refused, but vigorously encouraged their offspring to sit where they were. Thereupon they dared the members of the house staff to put them out. All this time, the other family also was making itself a nuisance to everybody in the vicinity.

The argument of the men folk seemed to be that they had been sold SEATS at the box office and that if there were none, then they proposed to do precisely as they darn—and that was not the word—pleased, and let's see the management make them do any different!

I defy both of these bullies to find anything on their tickets to indicate that they have been old seats to the Palace or any other motion picture theater in Washington. I issue this challenge, furthermore, in the positive knowledge that the movie houses do not sell seats, but merely admission to the theater with the privilege of securing seats when, as and if they are or become available.

If the Palace floor staff had been a trifle more drastic than it was and brought the thing to a showdown, the kickers would have discovered that they had not a leg to stand on in the matter of recourse.

The courtesy, self-control and patience displayed by the uniformed boys on the floor—whom I have always found to be attentive and solicitous—caused their stock to rise a full 100 points in my estimation.

The secret inclination of each one of them must have been to sock the customers right heartily smack on their noses! I was in hopes they would!

Those who, like this column, have been wondering where they last saw Helen Chandler, feminine lead with John Garrick in "The Sky Hawk," at the Fox, may care to know that her last local appearance was opposite George O'Brien in the Fox production of "Salute," released September 1 last.

Can't imagine why they should have kept her hidden all that time.

Pretty sensitive microphones they used in recording "Under a Texas Moon," current at the Metropolitan. When the splendid-looking horses ridden by Frank Fay, George Cooper and Georgie Stone come galloping across desert country so sandy that it won't raise anything but cactus and bunch grass, their hoof beats sound as if they were running on asphalt pavement. They may have been, at that, when the sound was recorded.

And speaking of "Under a Texas Moon," there is a deal of Spanish spoken during the action, Raquel Torres and Armida rattling it off at a machine-gun rate with which these rusty old ears found it utterly unable to cope, although all that was spoken deliberately was easily understandable.

It is inexplicable that Frank Fay, whose voice recorded the best of all in "The Show of Shows," should sing only one brief ballad in his present vehicle. Armida, on the other hand, whom I do not recall as displaying any singing voice whatever in "General Crack," with John Barrymore, here discloses a soprano of considerable power and fine clarity of tone. I presume the idea is that you get what you get, and can take it or leave it.

No more eloquent example of the degree to which audibility is able to augment an actor's effectiveness on the screen is apt to come along than the case of Billy Bevan, cast as the helpful sergeant in "The Sky Hawk." Bevan for years was a Mack Sennett low comedian whose pantomime betrayed only a fragment of the man's ability. As Tommy Berry, the beer-guzzling mechanician, he does a corking good job and moves up into the first flight of articulate funmakers.

Al Evans mastered the ceremonies at the first Saturday night performance at the Palace without makeup and looked as rotund as usual, but pale as the white flannel suit he was wearing. And that's almost pale enough to kick the bucket, if you know what I mean!

So Mr. Fox took the $50,000,000,000 and . . . . . .

(Bureau of Home Economics.)

6 or 8 onions.
2 teaspoons butter or other fat.
2 tablespoons flour.
1 teaspoon salt.
Cayenne pepper.
1 cup of milk.
¾ cup grated cheese.
2 cups cooked rice.

Pare the onions under water and parboil them until tender, changing the water once. Make a sauce by melting the fat, adding the flour, the salt, a pinch of pepper and the milk. Cook this mixture until it is smooth, let it cool, add the grated cheese and bring the sauce slowly to the boiling point, stirring it constantly. Place in a baking dish alternate layers of the rice and the onions torn apart, pour on the cheese sauce and bake twenty minutes. This will make six or eight servings.

Daughter Is Healthy Now

"My thirteen-year-old daughter Maxine was troubled with backache and pain when she came into womanhood. I knew Lydia E. How to Keep Well

By DR. W. A. EVANS

To the limit of space questions pertaining to hygiene and prevention of disease will be answered in this column. Personal replies will be made to inquiries, under proper limitations, when return stamped envelope is inclosed. Dr. Evans will not make diagnosis or prescribe for individual disease.

CAUSE AND CURE OF BRONCHITIS.

L. T. Writes: Will you write on bronchitis (chronic), its causes and cure, and how it manifests itself?

REPLY.

The bronchial tubes are lined by membrane which is continuous at the outer end with that which lines the nose and mouth and beyond that with the skin itself, and at the inner end with the delicate wall of the air sacs. Over this membrane flows the inspired air with all its dust, smoke, gases, and bacteria. Fortunately, the membrane is pretty well supplied with protective apparatus. There is the hair screen in the nose, and a far more effective screen, made up of misroscopic hairs, located in the stretches below the nose. There is the fine sheet of fluid secretion which washes off deposits of foreign material, and much more protective still is a certain biologic capacity for destroying bacteria, the nature of which we do not know. Finally, there is the beneficent cough, the function of which is to clear the tubes.

All of this is in explanation of why everybody does not have bronchitis all the time. In spite of all these bulwarks, bacteria and some kinds of dust get from the bronchial tubes into its wall and set up bronchitis. If the bronchitis is acute it has a good deal in common with pneumonia. In fact, in a given case physicians are apt to disagree as to whether pneumonia or bronchitis, or both, is the correct diagnosis.

In some cases the infection holds on instead of running an acute course. These are cases of chronic bronchitis. In such cases it is always in order to search out the reason for the thing holding on. It may be an underlying heart disease or daily exposure to sand dust or coal dust, or it may be the nature of the infecting germ, for instance, the tubercle bacillus.

After a chronic bronchitis has persisted a long time there is probability that certain effects are acting as a cause. The tubes may have dilated causing emphysema, or dilated sacs, or there may be small cavities. The man may have become sensitized to the bacteria of his disease with a resulting bronchial asthma.

The cure depends on the case. Chronic bronchitis with profuse discharge does well in a warm, dry climate. One with more cough and less discharge does well in a warm, moist climate. Cases with cavities do well following operations to collapse the lung or otherwise put it at rest. Some cases of bronchial asthma can be desensitized. Bronchitis with tuberculosis calls for the treatment given the major disease.

ON THE ABANDONED SPACE SHIP WE HAD FOUND A MAN, IN A STATE OF SUSPENDED ANIMATION, SEALED UP IN A GREAT GLASS TUBE.
THERE ARE NO MORE OF THEM IN HERE, BUCK.
THEN WE'LL JUST TAKE THIS MYSTERIOUS BIRD BACK TO OUR SHIP AND GET UNDER WAY AGAIN.
COPYRIGHT JOHN F. DILLE CO. REG. U. S. PAT. OFF.
WE'RE NOT SURE HE'S SEALED UP IN AIR.
WHAT DO YOU THINK OF HIM, BOB?
NO. IT'S POSSIBLE THAT SOME PLANETS HAVE ATMOSPHERES OF OTHER GASES.
WE FLOATED DOWN TO THE SATELLITE UNDER THE GENTLE PULL OF ITS MAGNETO-GRAVITATORS.
WELL, HE'S A GOOD LOOKING LAD NO MATTER WHAT PLANET HIS HOME TOWN IS ON.
THEN, ON THE LABORATORY DECK.
DO WE DARE OPEN HIM UP, STODDARD?
THE SPECTROSCOPE WILL TELL IF THAT'S REALLY AIR IN THAT TUBE.

SUMS PAID ACTRESS BARED BY MAGNATE

SAYS LIFE THREATENED

New York, April 7 (A.P.)—Nathan L. Amster, 60-year-old traction magnate, father of two grown sons, told a jury in General Sessions Court today that he paid thousands of dollars over a period of eleven years to Olga Elde Edwards, young actress, who says her 6-year-old son, Lee, is his child.

On Amster's complaint Miss Edwards is being tried on an extortion charge. The money was paid at first, Amster said, in a spirit of philanthropy, and later to protect his wife and family from scandal.

Finally, he said, her demands became so exorbitant and her visits to his office here and in Boston, where he declared she called him names and threatened to "tell it to the reporters," so frequent that he could stand it no longer. So then, he testified, he took the matter up with the district attorney's office.

Amster testified that in 1923, before Lee, now in the care of the Children's Society, was born, Miss Edwards told him that she wanted a son, and that she was going to select the father.

"I want the child to be mine alone," Amster said Miss Edwards told him. "No one else shall have an interest in him but me."

Lee was born in Europe, Amster said, and subsequent to the baby's birth he said he received from Miss Edwards the following cable:

"I am going to send Lee to you, either by mail or express. He is a nice litle chap."

In outlining the State's case to the jury before Amster went on the stand, Assistant District Attorney Richard C. Gibbs made the statement that Lee's father was "a man named Young."

After Miss Edwards had created a scene and had threatened to shoot him, Amster testified, he established in February, 1927, a $100,00 trust fund for the child, and Miss Edwards signed an agreement purporting to release him from any further obligations.

She failed to live up to the agreement, however, he said, and last August demanded $900, which he gave her. In the same month, he said, she demanded $1,000 more.

"When I refused," he said, "she called me nasty names and threatened to tell her story to the reporters."

Peary Honored at Rites On Polar Anniversary

Banked with floral tributes, the tomb of Rear Admiral Robert E. Peary in Arlington Cemetery yesterday drew a large crowd at memorial services under auspices of the Admiral Robert E. Peary Ship, Veterans of Foreign Wars, upon the occasion of the twenty-first anniversary of his discovery of the North Pole.

In continuation of a custom started ten years ago, the program was marked by eulogies by Rear Admiral A. L. Parsons, chief of the Navy Bureau of Yards and Docks, and the firing of volleys over the grave by a detail of Navy Yard sailors. Wreaths were laid at the tome by Acting Secretary of the Navy Ernest L. Jahncke, representatives of the National Geographic Society, and by P. V. Templeton, as captain of the Admiral Robert E. Peary Ship.

A Real Sight-ation

While serving with Evacuation Hospital, No. 6, in Souilly, France, I saw a company of Algerian soldiers resting on the road on their way back from the front line. We went over to chat with them and started trading cigarettes for their souvenirs. One of them spied my eyeglasses and started following me all over the place trying to persuade me to trade them for an Iron Cross.

What the man wanted with my spectacles I was never able to find out, but I do know they were doing me much more good than an Iron Cross would have, so there was no trade made with me that day.

Naughty, Naughty!

Next to the "top-kick" the most abhorred man in any outfit is the guy who, simply to get out of a lot of work, becomes "dog robber" for an officer. Our outfit was no exception, and we never missed an opportunity to make things as unpleasant as possible for those in our midst. I'll never forget how we fixed two of this our return from Belgian soil. All farm yards in France have a pool in type while billeted in a farm house up near Dunquerke, after the center. This pool contains rain water and any refuse from the kitchen. The odor which emanates from this mixture could scarcely be called pleasant, nor is the spectacle one which would appeal to the esthetic sense. Our kitchen was located in a barn at one end of such a pool and the farm house was at the other end of it. Of course, all of our company officers were billeted in the farm house. Each night these officers were in the habit of playing cards up to a rather late hour and then sending a couple of their "doggies" over to the mess shack for some food, which, under orders of the mess sergeant, was always put away for them. Some of us conceived the idea of getting sweet revenge on a couple of the officers whom we didn't like so well by sending them to bed without their customary smack, and at the same tim taking a fall out of the two dog robbers. Four of us hid behind the corner of the house and when the food bearers were returning with the officers' food, skirting the edge of the pool, we rushed them in the cover of darkness and sent them hurtling head first into the sweetly scented pool, food and all. Of course, there was an investigation the next morning, but it was never learned who did the dastardly trick. And after that, every time any of us got near the two doggies we'd always hold our fingers up to our nose.

Worth Remembering

France had been engaged in a big struggle for four long years. All families had lost loved ones at the front, while others were still fighting. On November 11, 1918, I was on a train on my way from Nice to Marseilles. All along the road were French soldiers shouting "Fini la guerre" and "The war stops at 11 o'clock." And now the scenes which will always live in my memory. We passed several villages just before and at 11 o'clock. The houses were scattered, no two near each other, and we could hear the town bell tolling while the old people of the villages were hurrying to the town hall to receive the glad-some tidings that the war was at an end. What a relief to them we can only imagine. To be told their loved ones were safe and that husbands, sons and grandsons who remained alive would soon be home to stay. This may sound cold in print, but if you could have talked to those old people and heard their stories you would know why I will never forget armistice day.

The night of the 11th was spent in Marseilles. Hysteria reigned supreme. All the civilians were on the street, as were soldiers of all allied nations. Sailors of allied and neutral countries were given liberty and joined the throng. A jolly bunch would join hands and line across the street, sweeping all before them down the street. Here and there impromptu parades were started, sometimes all civilians, others of French soldiers, some of French and English, and some soldiers and sailors of all nations. Very few Americans were in the city, and when we would be spied, the French soldiers and civilians would clasp hands, form a ring around us and dance around and around us, singing "Vive l'Americ," "Fini la guerre." That was fine, but when they presented very pretty French mademoiselles for us to kiss—oh, boy!

ABE GRUDD,
Front Line Post, V. F. W.

Why Do They?

The natives of France, particularly those on the farms, had never seen chewing gum, but the American confection made rapid inroads on their appetites. Some of us were billed with an old padre at Brainville, in the Vosges, and one of the gang gave the old fellow a stick of gum, first explaining what was to be done with it. The priest gingerly put a quarter of an inch in his mouth and chewed it meticulously, after which he shoutd for four other members of the household, dividing the rest of the stick among them. The reverend and his followers stood in the middle of the room and chewed vigorously at the gum, to the great delight of the assembled soldiers. The next day we bought up the entire stock of gum at the "Y" hut and presented it to the old padre.

Speaking of chewing recalls an incident which took place when we were being taken up to the vicinity of Avocourt for the big push-off of the Argonne drive. The trucks which were transporting us were driven by Chinese. The particular Chink who was driving our truck had seen some of the fellows chewing tobacco and he asked for a bite, which, of course, was given him. Unfortunately, the linguistic attainments of the outfit did not include Chinese, and the donor was unable to give the necessary instructions. The Chinaman took a generous bite and after chewing it thoroughly, swallowed the stuff. The tobacco had barely reached his stomach when the latter wired his brain that something was wrong. His eyes popped out and, with a low grunt of despair, he stopped the truck and fell out. He was unable to drive the rest of the distance and he could not understand why Americans used that stuff for pleasure.

Defunct Taxi Firm Lists Its Liabilities

Schedule Reveals Assets as $47,250.58 and Debts as $74,982.87.

The Wardman Park Taxi Co., Inc., which recently was adjudged a bankrupt, yesterday filed its schedule of assets and liabilities, listing $47,250.58 of the former and $74,982.87 of the latter. The schedules were sworn to by Grace W. Rhodes as president.

Two judgments, one for $8,000 and the other for $10,000, are listed as liabilities as is a $9,000 chattel mortgage which is security on a supersedeas bond filed in connection with an appeal from the $8,000 judgment. The $8,000 item is in favor of Delia Flaherty while the $10,000 judgment is in favor of Thomas F. Sheridan as administrator of the estate of his son, Francis B. Sheridan, who was killed October 29, 1926, by one of the company's cabs. Wages totaling $2,836.18 are among the other liabilities.

Among the assets is listed a suit for $20,000 damages filed several months ago in District Supreme Court against the United Realties Co., Inc., operators of Wardman Park Hotel and other hostelries, in connection with its alleged action in repudiating a cab stand concession. Attorneys Wolf & Wolf appear for the bankrupt.

$25,000 Suit Is Filed In Automobile Accident

C. F. Collins, of Caroline County, Va., filed suit yesterday in District Supreme Court against Albert D. Gardner, of 472 L street northwest, seeking to recover $25,000 damages as the result of an automobile accident.

The plaintiff alleges that he was permanently injured March 23, 1929, when the automobile in which he was riding was struck by an automobile operated by the defendant. Charge is made that the defendant's automobile was being driven on the wrong side of the Richmond-Washington highway. Attorneys Brandenburg & Brandenburg and Robert S. Joseph appear for the plaintiff.

THE FIRST REALLY NEW OIL IN 25 YEARS

THIS is the simple story of the new oil that is now enjoying such remarkable acceptance: Conoco Germ-Processed . . . In the first place, this new oil is an extraordinarily fine paraffin-base lubricant. And then . . . under exclusive Conoco patents, this oil is endowed with the unusual faculty of penetrating and combining with metal surfaces. This faculty, we call "Penetrative Lubricity." The Germ Process, by adding a precious oily-essence lacking in all other oils, does this . . . And so provides constant unfailing lubrication for your motor under any conceivable strenuousness of motor operation. Germ Process is the first fundamental improvement in refining methods in the last quarter century.

So won't you come into the next station you see bearing the Red Triangle and join the thousands of other motorists who have changed to Conoco Germ-Processed Oil in the last few weeks?

WHAT THE CRITICS SAY!

NEWS — It is a pleasure to recommend "Ladies of Leisure." A piece packed with human characterizations—all good. And as you and I and the head usher darn well know, such pieces are all too rare. MABELLE JENNINGS.

TIMES — "Ladies of Leisure" has been brought to talking pictures with an extravagant excellence that marks it as one of the season's brightest comedy-dramas. ALICE K.

POST — The film version of Mr. Belascos pet offering achieves a distinction that places it very near the top of the list. It is a peculiarly gripping picture, and one that is steeped in beauty. Barbara Stanwyck's performance in the leading role will open up her door of the motion picture public's heart. MARY PORTER RUSSELL.

HERALD — With those painted ladies who gain a livelihood as extra girls for rich men's parties as the subject, a startling love story is unfolded in the all-talking version of a David Belasco stage hit, "Ladies of Leisure," at R-K-O Keith's this week. A fine array of stars are brought together, with top honors going to Barbara Stanwyck, who handles the lead as one of these "ladies." E. A. W.

WANT TO LOOK YOUNG?

The secret of keeping young is to feel young—to do this you must watch your liver and bowels—there's no need of having a sallow complexion—dark rings under your eyes—pimples—a bilious look in your face—dull eyes with no sparkle. Your doctor will tell you ninety per cent of all sickness comes from inactive bowels and liver.

Dr. Edwards, a well-known physician in Ohio, perfected a vegetable compound as a substitute for calomel to act on the liver and bowels, which he gave to his patients for years.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are gentle in their action yet always effective. They help bring about that natural buoyancy which all should enjoy by toning up the liver and clearing the system of impurities.

Dr. Edwards Olive Tablets are known by their olive color, 15c, 30c, 60c.

In six years on E street, the National Theater Players have turned in some mighty fine bits of dramaturgy. All of that is history. Now they come with a new production, the first time ever shown in stock, and present Herbert Ashton's play, "Brothers," with Walter Gilbert playing the role made famous by Bert Lytell.

Mr. Stephen E. Cochran, producing manager of the players, went out of his way to make this the production de luxe. He purchased, 'tis said, the complete original sets used by the Broadway company that closed its season last Saturday night a week. With the props, &c., went the paraphernalia and Japanese valet of Mr. Bert Lytell—all of which make possible the remarkably fine performance given this week in the National, the best so far registered.

By the very nature of the play, the lead role predominate. The story of "Brothers" has to do with two boys—twins—who are identical in every thing but opportunity. One, adopted by a learned jurist, becomes a lawyer. The other, remaining in the lower strata of society, plays a piano in a honky-tonk. Eventually, this fellow—Eddie Connelly—is tried for a murder he didn't commit, and his brother, totally unknown to the prisoner, defends him at the bar of justice.

Mr. Walter Gilbert plays the dual role — Eddie Connelly and Bob Naughton—and is masterful in the performance. In fact, if there are those who up to this entertained any doubts that the National Theater Players have a capable leading man, this play should dispel the clouds. Gilbert is an actor. Save at the outset of the play, when he showed a tendency to overact—which may, of course, have been first-night nervousness—Walter Gilbert is splendid.

All hands in the cast respond nobly to the demands put upon them. This play calls for suspense, and the players line up in back of Walter Gilbert like an athletic team supporting a star in sports. As a result, there is here offered the performance par excellence.

In the course of the play's action there is shown the interior of a dive along the waterfront—"Oily Joe's Place." Here is where some real red ripe melodrama is plugged. Romaine Callender, recently released from David Belasco's competent cast in "Mimi," is entrusted with the part of "Oily Joe"—and what a "tough mug" he turns out to be. As a rule, Mr. Callender is good at character studies; but this time he outshines himself.

Young Freddie Sherman also comes into the honor list with a neat interpretation of a dope peddler. Then, there are important roles played by Mrs. Hibbard, Miss Marion Wells, Forest Orr, and Edward Poland, who also doubles in brass, playing first a blind man and then a doctor. Dudley Hawley is capably cast as the jurist who adopts one of the twins.

Overshadowing all else, of course, is the work of Walter Gilbert. It really is astounding what the man has been able to do in a week of rehearsal, the while playing another part in another play. While there is similarity of the two brothers in face and form, an easy thing to assimilate, there is a difference in temperament and training—the one having been bred to the finer things of life the other seeing the seamy side. Gilbert makes the mental transition as rapidly as he does the physical; so that "Brothers" in his hands becomes at once a real piece of artistry—pure as the modern theater is likely to see.

'Twill be a long time before this performance is bettered in Washington or elsewhere. "Brothers" amounts to an event in theatricals.

Market Proviso In Bill Favored

Du Pont Citizens to Ask Inclusion in District Finance Measure.

Communications are to be addressed to the District Commissioners by the Du Pont Circle Citizens Association asking that a farmer's market be included among the provisions in the District appropriations bill. Admiral William L. Rodgers, who presided at a meeting yesterday in the Mayflower Hotel, said that it is unlikely that the market will be sanctioned before the bill is presented for passage.

The meeting was occupied mainly by the discussion of suffrage for the District. It was charged at the meeting that Station WMAL does not permit opponents of the movement for suffrage for the District to express their views over the station. No reply has been received by the association to the communication sent to the Federal Radio Commission asking that the license of the station be revoked.

Merchant Injured By Thrown Bundle

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 7.—Samuel Finkelstein, 24, merchant of Camp Parole Station, near Annapolis, is in a precarious condition in Emergency Hospital here, suffering from brain concussion. He was struck and rendered unconscious by a bundle of newspapers thrown off at the station from a Washington, Baltimore & Annapolis electric train Saturday afternoon.

Finkelstein was walking along the station platform at the time. The bundle, hitting him on the head, felled him and he was unconscious for several hours. Dr. Louis B. Hendel, attending physician, called a brain specialist from Baltimore in consultation. Though the injured man has rallied, his condition still is regarded as serious.

Wilbur's Power to Fix Oil Prices Is Upheld

Holding that the Secretary of the Interior has the power to fix the price at which oil taken from Government-owned lands under lease may be sold, the District of Columbia Court of Appeals yesterday upheld Secretary of the Interior Ray Lyman Wilbur in his action in refusing to approve a contract made by the Cody Petroleum Co. to sell oil from the Oregon basin in Wyoming to the Texas Co. for 53 cents a barrel at the well. The court also held that the Secretary was right in insisting on a price of 85 cents per barrel.

The opinion of the Court of Appeals reverses the action of the District of Columbia Supreme Court in granting the Texas Co. a permanent injunction against the Secretary of the Interior.

No Finer Food FOR GROWING CHILDREN

Delicious!

HERE is one healthful, nourishing food that children eat without coaxing. Mueller's Macaroni is made from farina—the most nutritious part of finest wheat. It contains an abundance of energizing, body-building, health-giving elements. No finer food for growing boys and girls could be imagined than this.

A Delicious Health Food

And how the youngsters love it! Mueller's Macaroni has a taste that appeals to every appetite—and a light and fluffy texture that makes children eager for meal time. It is most easy to digest, too—even for children just out of infancy.

Mothers who take keen interest in the nutritive needs of their children will be delighted to find in Mueller's Macaroni a health food that boys and girls eat with relish. Each delicious plateful will go far toward building straight and sturdy bodies—the foundation of healthy, happy manhood and womanhood.

Cooks in Nine Minutes

American housewives often overcook macaroni. The delightful fluffiness and lightness of Mueller's Macaroni is realized in its ideal form by following the directions on the package and boiling for nine minutes. If especial tenderness is desired, one or two minutes more may be allowed. Buy a package of Mueller's Macaroni or Spaghetti today. Serve it tonight. After that, your pantry will never be without several packages. Your grocer has Mueller's or can get it for you.

There are hundreds of ways in which Mueller's macaroni products can be prepared, all delicious. Send for our book of recipes illustrated in color. No cost or obligation. Just write to

THE MOST POPULAR ROUTE TO THE ROCKIES

GOSLIN CONTINUES SLUGGING AS NATS BEAT BRAVES

Dawson Tops North-South Golfers

oVigt Shoots 38—38 and Ties for Fifth in Qualifying.

PINEHURST, N. C., April 7 (A.P.).—Youthful John Dawson, of Chicago, led a field of 167 golfers at the end of the first eighteen holes of the 36-hole qualifying play in the thirtieth annual North and South amateur golf tournament here today. He scored 72, one over par.

He was three strokes better than his three nearest rivals who finished in a triple tie for second position. J. B. Ryerson, of Cooperstown, N. Y.; Kenan Smith, youthful contender from Raleigh, N. C., and C. Ross Somerville, of London, Ontario.

Following behind were George J. Voight, of New York, defending champion, tied with Forbes K. Wilson, of York Harbor, Me., a Yale player, each tallying 76. Richard Wilson, Georgetown University star, and James T. Hunter, of North Adams, Mass., were next with a 77 each.

Matches Par On Last Nine Holes.

Dawson, one of the last to start, went out in 37 strokes and came back in 35. His inward score was the best of the day and equaled par figures on every hole of that part of the route. Going out, Dawson was one over par in the fifth and the ninth, but his birdie two on the seventh made up for one of the lost strokes.

The players who started late in the morning had to contend with a stiff wind that sent scores soaring, and which lasted until well along in the afternoon.

The big field contained a sprinkling of college stars, only a few of whom did well enough to justify expectations that they will qualify in the championship division.

The leaders:

John Dawson, Chicago, 37, 35—72.
J. B. Ryerson, Cooperstown, N. Y., 38, 37—75.
Kenan Smith, Raleigh, N. C., 38, 37—75.
C. Ross Somerville, London, Ont., 39, 36—75.
Forbes K. Wilson, York Harbor, Me., 36, 40—76.
Richard Wilson, Southern Pines, 38, 39—77.
J. T. Hunter, North Adams, Mass., 38, 39—77.
Howard Tryon, Elmira, N. Y., 36, 42—78.
Thomas Staller, New York, 39, 40—79.
W. C. Fownes, jr., Pittsburgh, 40, 39—79.

Lumpkin, Grid Star, Charged With Cruelty

Portsmouth, Ohio, April 7 (A.P.).—Mrs. Edith Dopps Lumpkin, 20, wife of Roy "Father" Lumpkin, former Georgia Tech football star, today filed suit for divorce here, charging her husband with extreme cruelty, gross neglect of duty and failure to provide. They were married January 17 last.

Mrs. Haynes Leader In Minature tourney

Mrs. J. Marvin Haynes, former District amateur woman champion, yesterday led a field of nearly 50 players in the qualifying round of the initial miniature tournament this season played on the course of the Chevy Chase Club, with a total of 29 strokes for six holes. Mrs. Betty Mackley was runner-up with 31, and Mrs. H. A. Knox, third with 32.

At the conclusion of the round a sever thunderstorm broke over the course and compelled a postponement of match play rounds until this morning, the pairings being as follows:

First flight—Mrs. J. M. Haynes vs. Mrs. Betty Mackley; Mrs. H. A. Knox vs. Mrs. W. A. Nottingham.
Second flight—Miss Susan Hacker vs. Mrs. Everett Eynon; Mrs. J. M. Hodges vs. Mrs. Frank R. Keefer.
Third flight—Mrs. George H. Parker vs. Mrs. J. W. Harvey; Mrs. J. W. Beller vs. Mrs. E. T. Burchard.
Sixth flight—Mrs. J. O. Rhyne vs. Mrs. F. D. Letts; Mrs. George Bell vs. Mrs. Perry B. Hoover.
Seventh flight—Mrs. H. B. Hird vs. Miss Elizabeth Brawner; Mrs. David McPherson vs. Mrs. C. C. Crow.
Eighth flight—Mrs. W. A. Angwin vs. Mrs. L. C. Fray; Mrs. T. N. Beavers vs. Mrs. Gilbert Hahn.
Ninth flight—Mrs. J. T. Fieser vs. Mrs. J. D. Connor; Miss E. C. Harris vs. Mrs. Robert Lacey.
Tenth flight—Mrs. John C. Walker vs. Mrs. J. F. Dowall; Mrs. A. Hunt vs. Mrs. A. J. Kennedy.

GERMAN CHAMPION HURT.

Berlin, April 7 (A.P.).—Leonard Kugler, amateur welterweight champion of Germany and a member of the team that competed in three amateur tournaments in the United States last February, suffered a back injury today in an automobile accident. He will not be able to defend his title in the German amateur championships, two weeks away.

REDS SIGN CATCHER.

Cincinnati, April 7 (A.P.).—The Cincinnati Reds today purchased Lena Styles, catcher, from the Reading International League Club. Styles formerly was with the Athletics. He also played with Toronto when his present manager, Dan Howley, piloted the Canadian club. Styles will be the Reds' third-string catcher.

MARYLAND U. IN TIE WITH N.C. STATE

Rival Nines Battle to 5-5 Score in Ten-Inning Game.

Special to The Washington Post.

RALEIGH, N. C., April 7.—Maryland got away to a 5-1 lead against N. C. State in the first four innings today but when darkness halted things at the close of the tenth the score board showed five runs each way.

State tied the count in the ninth and neither club could score in the extra frame.

Bill Averette, State right-hander, whiffed a baker's dozen of Old Liners and only one visiting tally was earned. He had the better of the pitching argument with Milburn and Phipps, but didn't get the kind of backing accorded the Old Line chunkers.

Cronin Hits Double And Single.

Cronin was the only Maryland player to get more than one hit, securing a double and single. Bill Brake had three safeties, including a double and triple, to lead the Tech offense.

Gaylor, at the hot corner, and Chalmers, shortstop, featured Maryland's defensive play, the duo handling 17 chances.

Maryland moves to Chapel Hill tomorrow to meet the University of North Carolina club in another tri-State league contest.

College Tennis Season Delayed by Weather

The opening of the college tennis season was further delayed yesterday by the inclement weather. Georgetown and Yale calling off their match after George Washington and Edgemoor Club were forced to idle on Sunday.

Georgetown is scheduled to meet Johns Hopkins tomorrow, probably on the Hilltop courts. The scene may be Columbia Country Club, however, if arrangements can be made today. On Friday George Washington and American will clash in the first tennis match ever scheduled between the two institutions

Ruth Likely to Play Today, Says Shawkey

Little Rock, Ark., April 7 (A.P.).—Manager Bob Shawkey, of the New York Yankees, announced here tonight that Babe Ruth would be in uniform tomorrow and "will play, if at all possible, in the game with the Memphis Chicks at Memphis."

Ruth remained in his hotel room here today recuperating from a leg injury received at Dallas yesterday. Shawkey said the injury was trivial.

DYKES SAYS MACKS WILL REPEAT

Athletics' Chatterbox Declares Club Is Strengthened.

By BRIAN BELL.

NEW YORK, April 7 (A.P.).—Jimmy Dykes, who does the talking for the Philadelphia Athletics on the field, but leaves most of the conversation off the diamond to Connie Mack, today stepped out of character long enough to suggest that the world champions repeat.

In New York on his way to Troy to be the guest of honor and principal speaker at the semiannual dinner of the Industrial Athletic League, Dykes came out flat-footed for the A's to win in the American League again "after a battle."

Sees Trouble From Tigers, Indians.

"There should be a great race in our league," said Dykes, who is the pepper-pot of the team and keeps up a running fire of chatter throughout every game. "We are better than we were last year. The Yankees will be better, too, and I look for a lot of trouble from Cleveland and Detroit.

"Yes, I see we are being quoted at 1 to 2. That's pretty short odds We are good, but I don't believe we are that good.

"Don't be surprised if Howard Ehmke pitches a lot of games. I never saw him look better than he does this spring, and say, some of the young pitchers have a lot of stuff.

"Nobody has to say how good the regulars are. Is Grove still throwing birdshot? I'll say so. When he is right he is unbeatable. I have heard that said about a lot of pitchers, but I know it is true of Grove.

Foxx Never Looked Better.

"Simmons isn't in Philadelphia yet, but I am convinced he will be all right when the season opens Foxx never looked better. Underweight? Certainly not. He never was heavier. Hit? The only place Foxx doesn't look good as a hitter is in the parks where there are no fences for him to hit the ball over."

Jimmy looked suspiciously at overhanging clouds threatening to disgorge rain in huge quantities at any minute. "Say," he said. "I guess I didn't get such a break at that. Connie gave me leave of absence to go to Troy to make this speech, although we are scheduled to play the Phillies today. I'll bet it rains in Philadelphia and I won't get out of playing a game after all."

He was right. As he spoke the game had been called off on account of rain.

MANAGER SUSPENDED.

Chicago, April 7 (A.P.).—Baseball Commissioner Kenesaw W. Landis today suspended Henry Wingfield, manager of the Keokuk (Iowa) Club of the Mississippi Valley League for 90 days of the playing season for his assault on Umpire George Schreck last September.

GEORGETOWNS MEET.

Georgetown insect, midget and peewee nines will meet tomorrow night at 3506 T street northwest at 7:30 o'clock. The Georgetown and Lionel Peewee Nines will clash Saturday.

YALE AND G.U. TO CLASH TODAY

Rain Wipes Out First Game; Catholic U. Plays Lafayette.

BALKED by rain, local college nines failed to get into action yesterday, but today, with fair weather predicted, they hope to resume in two contests, Georgetown meeting Yale at Washington Barracks and Catholic entertaining Lafayette at Brookland Stadium. In North Carolina, Maryland's nine is due to engage North Carolina University.

The Georgetown-Yale set-to will commence at 3:15 o'clock, 15 minutes ahead of the usual starting time for the Hoyas, while the Catholic-Lafayette game will open at 3:30.

Both Georgetown and Catholic are out to maintain winning ways this afternoon, the former seeking to chalk up its eighth successive win and the latter its fourth in a row. Both, too, anticipate difficulty in succeeding.

Yale, presenting Albie Booth, sensational football star of 1929, at shortstop, is coached by "Smokey Joe" Wood, former professional star, and is reported to be stronger than it was last year when it defeated Georgetown twice in three games.

Lafayette of Unknown Quality.

Little is known here of the strength of Lafayette except that the Leopards were defeated last Saturday by Washington and Lee. However, that result affords no basis for a comparison with Catholic.

The probable pitching selections for the locals will be Lomax for Georgetown and Hurley for Catholic, with the respective eligible relief hurlers being Poole and Frankovick. Lomax has won both of his previous starts.

Georgetown's strong pitching staff was further reinforced yesterday when it was announced that Russell "Packy" White, veteran left-hander, had rejoined the ranks by wiping out scholastic deficiencies which rendered him ineligible before the opening of the season. The Blue and Gray now has four dependable hurlers in White and Noznesky, left-handers, and Poole and Lomax, right-handers.

Hurley in Impressive Start.

Lou Hurley, Catholic University pitcher, already has scored as many victories as he registered during the 1929 season by winning his first two starts. He let Dartmouth down with two hits in the C. U. opener last Monday and came back on Friday to defeat Vermont.

Hornsby Told Injury Is Slight

By PAUL MICKELSON.

CHICAGO, April 7 (A.P.).—Rogers Hornsby came back to town today and learned from a specialist that the soreness in his right heel had been grossly exaggerated.

Barring unforeseen complications, the big stick wielder of the championship Cubs was advised he could return to work the latter part of this week in the Kansas City exhibition series and certainly for the opening festivities of the National League pennant race at St. Louis April 15.

The verdict, made by Dr. Howard Chislett after a minute examination of the heel, which has been bothering the "Rajah" since last September, was a welcome surprise to Cub fans and President William Veeck, in particular, who was given to understand that his star would be lost to the team for half the approaching season

Bony Growth Almost Disappeared.

Dr. Chislett said the bony growth on the heel had almost disappeared and that the soreness now centered wholly in the right ankle because of Hornsby's recent habit of walking on his toes to favor the heel. He advised the "rajah" to walk normally hereafter and to take a few days rest at St. Louis, his home. While there Hornsby will confer with Dr. Robert Hyland, who cut the bony growth from his heel last November.

"There is nothing serious and Hornsby could play baseball now if he wanted to do so," Dr. Chislett said. "His right ankle is swollen slightly and sore because he has been trying to save his heel by walking on his toes. I have advised him to walk normally and have ripped off the heavy adhesive tape he has been wearing around his heel. Exostosis, as his trouble is called, rarely comes back again after such a successful operation as he was given last fall, but it does affect the ankle for a short time."

Hornsby, Jubilant, Leaves for Home.

Hornsby was jubilant and confident that he was ready to play baseball right now.

"It's nothing," he said, "but Mr. Veeck, Manager McCarthy and I wanted to be certain. Guess I have been making a mistake by favoring that heel. Tell the boys I'll be in there swinging against the Cardinals April 15."

Hornsby boarded a train for St. Louis tonight and expected to rejoin the Cubs at Kansas City Thursday or Friday. He was glad to get back home for a few days, admitting he was a trifle homesick for his farm on the outskirts of the Mound City.

Carnera Fights Negro In Derby Eve Program

Louisville, Ky., April 7 (A.P.).—Primo Carnera, the Italian heavyweight, and "Bearcat" Wright, Omaha Negro who weighs 222 pounds, will head the annual derby eve boxing card of the local American Legion Post. Announcement that the two fighters had been signed for the bout May 16 was made late today.

Ernie Nevers Released By San Francisco Club

Sacramento, Calif., April 7 (A.P.).—Ernie Nevers, husky right-handed pitcher, has received his unconditional release by the San Francisco Mission Reds of the Pacific Coast League. The former Stanford University football star failed to round into form in spring training.

He has been with the Missions for two seasons, coming to the Coast League outfit from the St. Louis Americans.

G. U. Denies Defeat Of Golfers by W. & M.

The reported defeat of the Georgetown University Golf Team by William and Mary College, at Williamsburg, Va., last Saturday, was denied yesterday at the Hilltop athletic office where it was said that no team officially representing Georgetown had visited the Virginia town for a match. Furthermore, it was said, none of the players supposed to have been playing under Georgetown colors are even known to the Hilltop authorities.

Gonzaga May Play All Local High Grid Teams

An opportunity to win outright the football championship of the Washington high schools, though not entered in the interhigh league, is facing Gonzaga High with the prospects of scheduling Tech for a grid game next season. Should the proposed game for December 5 be definitely arranged, Gonzaga will be on the football schedule of every public high school for the first time in history, games with Central Western, Business and Eastern having already been scheduled.

Gonzaga's present schedule lists for Central on September 26, Business on October 10, Western on November 21 and Eastern on Thanksgiving Day.

If Tech does decide to schedule Gonzaga, it will do so on the same basis as Central has done—the arrangement of a home-and-home series with the Purple. The 1930 game will be played at the Bennings Road Stadium, with the expectation that Tech's new field would be ready for the contest in 1931. Only Central will be met away from Gonzaga's home site next fall, the contract calling for the first game of the Central-Gonzaga battles to be played at the Columbia Heights Stadium.

Waivers Asked on Barnes, Is Report in Nats' Camp

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 7.—Emile "Red" Barnes has lost out in his fight for an outfield berth with the Nats, it is indicated in the Washington camp following reports that waivers have been asked on the former Alabama University star.

While Manager Johnson says he is not aware that waivers on Barnes have been requested, he admits that President Clark Griffith has often asked waivers on players without his knowledge. It is known also that Barnes has lost caste with Johnson through his failure to hit in training games and that the Nats' manager has gained a feeling of security in the outfield as the result of the impressive play of George Loepp, former Baltimore Oriole.

As the result of much experimenting with his outfielders, Johnson believes that Loepp is now his best prospect for the vacant spot in center and will give him priority over Sam West, whose hitting weakness has been a disappointment. West's forte is his fielding, but Loepp also is a clever outfielder and has displayed far better hitting qualities with the result that Johnson may abandon the plan to alternate the two against left and right-handed pitching and use Loepp exclusively.

Powell May Stick With Club.

The probability of Barnes' release also marks a victory for young Jake

GEORGE LOEPP.

Powell, the Takoma Tiger Bearcat, who has gained favor with Johnson daily as a result of his consistent hitting. Young Powell is now considered a better prospect for an outfield post than Barnes despite the fact that he lacks the Alabaman's experience. He is a smooth fielder and fast on the bases and has displayed natural hitting talen that Barnes never possessed. The twisted ankle suffered by Powell while at bat today may set him back a week in his bid

SHIRES STAR AS CHISOX WIN, 11-10

EVANSVILLE, Ind., April 7 (N.Y. W.N.S.).—The far-famed Giants-White Sox series of 1930 is now tied up again in all kinds of knots, for the Sox staggered home in front in a ten-inning knockdown and drag out struggle this afternoon, 11 to 10, while some 1,500 Hoosiers applauded the antics of the big leaguers.

This town is in the Three I League and the Sox and Giants played Three I ball today. Three pitchers appeared on each team, and the score was tied and untied three times by each team.

In the last accounting, the great Shires was too much for the Giants, for in addition to hitting a home run which helped his team greatly, he batted in the last tying run in the eighth inning and the winning run in the tenth.

There were other home runs. Smead Jolley made one as early as the first inning and Carl Reynolds made another. Travis Jackson made a gallant try for one which would have won the game for his side in nine frames, but was caught at the plate on a fine play. All in all, it was the most exciting game of the series. The Sox have now won five games, the Giants five and one was a tie way back in San Antonio.

Tigers Pound Rookie; Rout Louisville.

Louisville, Ky., April 7 (A.P.).—Pitcher Brown, a Louisville American Association rookie, was put in today's exhibition game against Detroit to get experience, and the Tiger batsmen gave it to him to the tune of fourteen hits and eleven runs. Louisville could do little with three Detroit hurlers, but tallied four runs on some timely hitting. McManus and Akers, of Detroit, garnered home runs, and Olivares, of Louisville, got one.

Atlanta Rally Futile As Dodgers Win.

Macon, Ga., April 7 (A.P.).—The Brooklyn Dodgers defeated the Atlanta Crackers, of the Southern Association, 8 to 5, today. The Dodgers gained an early lead, but had been forced to stave off a last-inning rally, which netted the Crackers three runs.

Frederick, with two doubles; Herman, with a triple and a double, and Bissonette, with a three-bagger, led the major leaguers' attack.

Ruthless Yanks Slam Homers to Win.

Little Rock, Ark., April 7 (A.P.).—Babe Ruth was out of action today, but the New York Yankees were not lacking in home runs as they defeated Little Rock of the Southern Association, 7 to 5.

Johnson, Bell Pitch Cards to Victory.

Bradenton, Fla., April 7 (A.P.).—Good pitching by Sylvester Johnson and Herman Bell gave the Cardinals a 7-1 victory over the Rochester Club of the International League in an exhibition game here today. The Rochester Club outhit the Cardinals, 8-6, but could not get hits when they meant runs.

Hudlin Fans 12 As Indians Win.

New Orleans, La., April 7 (A.P.).—Willis Hudlin, Cleveland Indian pitcher, fanned twelve batsmen and Cleveland defeated the New Orleans Pelicans 10 to 6 here today. Johnny Hodapp led the hitting with two doubles and a single in five trips to the plate. The Indians hammered two Pelican rookie pitchers, Conklin and Perrin, for sixteen safe blows.

The final exhibition game between the Indians and the Pelicans will be played tomorrow.

Browns Get 19 Hits In Victory.

Oklahoma City, Okla., April 7 (A.P.).—After three defeats in a row at the hands of the Kansas City Blues, the St. Louis Browns moved to Oklahoma City today and hammered out a one-sided victory at the expense of the local western league entry. The score was 14 to 1. The Browns collected nineteen hits, four of them by O'Rourke.

Carlson Opening Day Choice of Cubs.

Phoenix, Ariz., April 7 (A.P.).—As the Chicago Cubs journeyed toward Kansas City today to play their final training series, Hal Carlson, veteran right-handed pitcher, appeared to be Manager Joe McCarthy's choice to face St. Louis in the opening game of the championship season.

Carlson's work this spring has been more steady than that of the other veterans, giving him the edge for the starting assignment. Guy Bush also is a possibility, but is not as far advanced as Carlson.

Roush, Giant Holdout, Ready to Quit Game.

Oakland City, Ind., April 7 (A.P.).—Eddie Roush, outfielder who has not yet signed a contract for 1930 with the New York National League baseball club, said at his home here tonight that "if we don't get together, I might as well quit baseball."

The Giant holdout said he and the club officials were "not so far apart" on salary terms, but added that "It looks like they are not going to pay any more, and I won't accept any less than I have named."

Roush said he probably would spend the summer at Oakland City.

Seven-Run Rally Ties Game for Red Sox.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 7 (A.P.).—One "big" inning saved the Boston Red Sox from defeat by the Indianapolis team here today when the game ended 7 to 7. The fracas only went eight innings as the Sox had to be on the move.

Indianapolis had a 7 to 0 lead until the last inning when the Boston bats began to rattle and they secured enough counters to tie the score.

Bankers Meet Tonight To Discuss Net Plans

Plans for the Bankers Tennis League for the coming season will be discussed tonight at a meeting to be held at 2539 Third street northeast at 8 o'clock.

Representatives of all banks and financial institutions desiring to enter are asked to be present.

REDS ARE IDLE.

Louisville, Ky., April 7 (A.P.).—Cold weather and a strong wind caused Manager Dan Howley to give his Cincinnati Reds a holiday today. The majority of the players went to the American Association Ball Park this afternoon and watched the exhibition game between the Colonels and the Detroit Tigers. The Reds are scheduled to play here for the next three days.

HomerCounts In 5-2 Defeat Of Boston

Powell Twists Ankle at Bat, Is Forced to Leave Game.

By FRANK H. YOUNG
(Staff Correspondent of The Post).

CHARLOTTE, N. C., April 7.—Twenty-five hundred shivering fans turned out here this afternoon to see the Nationals and Braves battle on a diamond which was swept by a half gale that played all kinds of tricks with fly balls and forced many minutes to be taken out while the players were brushing dust from their eyes. The Nats made it two in a row over their National League rivals, winning 5 to 2.

The pitchers were generally in control of the situation, Bob Burke and Myles Thomas doing the Washington flinging and allowing eight hits while the Nationals accumulated nine from the combined offerings of Bruce Cunningham and Ben Cantwell, both right-handers. The biggest of these blows was a homer by "Goose" Goslin over the right-field wall in the ninth, his third since he joined the team, giving the fans their only excuse for any real enthusiasm. The Goose also was credited with a double which gave him stick honors for the day, although Myer of the Nationals, and Berger, of the Braves, also cracked out two safeties.

Clark and West Star Afield.

Earl Clark, Washington boy, who cavorted in right field for the Braves, divided fielding honors with Sammy West, each making some good catches, despite the tricky wind. As Capt. Joe Judge reported a sore throat, he was excused and Jack Hayes covered first, turning in a surprisingly good performance.

At the start of the sixth frame, after Burke and Cunningham had turned over the pitching duties to Thomas and Cantwell, respectively, the Nats were fighting desperately to hang on to a 3-to-2 lead. They had broken the ice in the first, dropped a run behind in the lower half, knotted the count in the second, and forged to the front in the fourth.

The first run was made after two were gone. Then the tricky wind gave Goslin a double on an ordinary fly ball and Myer singled him home.

Nats Presented With Tally.

The marker scored in round 2 was a gift pure and simple. After Hayes' single and two passes had packed the sides, West rolled to Cunningham, but Catcher K. Smith dropped the throw home and Hayes registered. Run No. 3, coined in the fourth, resulted from Bluege's single, Hayes' sacrifice, and a surprise single off Burke's bat.

ROBERTSON RIDES 4 WINNERS ON BOWIE PROGRAM

Jockey Wins With 4 of 6 Mounts

Scores With Chickweed, 19-1, Frank Fullen, Equipoise.

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

BOWIE had its high spots and low ones in racing today. Walter J. Salmon's colt, Annapolis, won the Parkway Purse in a two-horse race, making the third at the meeting for the Man o' War colt, which carries off the belt so far. A. Robertson, H. P. Whitney's jockey, rode four winners during the afternoon, striking close to the records made by Sande, at Havre de Grace, and Abel, at Laurel, a few years back. H. P. Whitney won his first race of the meeting after many trials. There was a storm with thunder and lightning in the early afternoon, and the racing was over a heavy track. But very good form was preserved, and a large crowd finally gathered, many who came by automobile being late on account of the storm.

A. G. Weston, steward of the track, had the satisfaction of winning the feature race, the Old Maryland Spring Purse, for horses foaled in the State, with Macil, and Robertson had the mount, making his third on the way to his fourth in his big day, which crowning victory came in the sixth race, when he piloted Frank Fullen. His first victory was in the first race, when he rode George Lerian's Chickweed, which returned $39.40 for $2. Wild Fowl, another outsider, was second, and Kitty Marie, the favorite, was third. Robertson's next victory came in the third race, when he rode Mr. Whitney's Equipoise, 2-year-old colt by Pennant-Swinging, which is the best juvenile the New York sportsman has shown at this track. He won easily from Glidelia, and was the favorite. Drydock was third.

Man o' War-Sir Barton Duel Recalled.

There was some history recalled when the field in the Parkway was scratched down to two horses, making it a match race. Annapolis, the Man o' War colt, was the odds-on favorite, meeting Clear Sky, by Sir Barton. It was ten years ago that the sires of these two horses fighting it out at Bowie yesterday today met in a match race in Canada that will long be remembered, ending by Man o' War humbling Sir Barton, just as Annapolis humbled Clear Sky today, only more so, the superhorse winning $80,000 of the $100,000.

Annapolis led all the way, under mild restraint by Schaefer, winning by two lengths, and paying 15 cents on the dollar, shortest price of the meeting. The time was 1:53 4-5, a mile and a sixteenth.

Robertson's feat appears even more sensational in view of the fact that he won as many races today as the leading jockey of the opening week, Soni Workman, first-string Whitney rider, scored in five days.

Robertson was astride six horses during the program, riding unplaced in the second and last events.

The Old Maryland Purse was styled for 3-year-olds and upward foaled in the State. Macil, a 3-year-old son of Mackenzie and Ilaria, was bred at Weston's farm, Middleburg, Md.

The distance of the race was 7 furlongs. Macil took command immediately after Starter Milton dispatched the field and he remained in front until a sixteenth from the finish, where Aziz stuck his nose in front. Robertson went to the bat and Macil rallied once more and come on to gain the verdict. Jockey Hebert put up a rather weak race on Aziz. The latter raced in second position most of the trip.

Water Lad was outpaced in the early stages. He moved up with a rush in the turn, but he was in the deepest going on the rail and flattened out when the racing began. Fair Anita could not keep up. Macil raced the seven furlongs in 128 1-5 over a track deep in mud. He paid $13.20.

A heavy rain fell shortly after noon with a high wind, but after the skies cleared up the crowd grew rapidly until 8,000 people were at the track.

Chickweed First Winner For Robertson.

Chickweed, with Robertson astride, walked away from her field in the opening attraction which was run over the short distance of five and a half furlongs. The winner, a daughter of Wrack, stepped away with the leaders, and appeared beaten coming into the stretch, but Robertson started working with hand and heel, and she closed gamely to catch the tiring Kittie Marie at the furlong pole to win by five lengths. The time of race, 1:10 4-5.

The victory of Chickweed was popular with the Baltimore crowd as she is owned by George Lorain, who hails from Baltimore. The price of $39.40 was an excellent one.

Kitty Marie, the favorite, rated into the lead and after fighting for the lead with Chickweed took a lead of two lengths only to weaken badly when reaching the stretch. She was lucky to finish third. Wild Fowl closed a big gap to finish second. Marie Macqueen ran out reaching the stretch.

The rain in the early afternoon made the track very heavy and the first race showed it was slower than at any time during the current meeting. The weather had cleared up somewhat after the storm.

Equipoise Wins Whitney's First Purse.

The second race, for 3-year-olds and up at six furlongs called thirteen to the post, with four horses in the field. A Brent's Propus, won with Snyder up, by half a length from Valley. One Cent was third, Fire Belle was fourth. Valley led to the sixteenth when Propus came on with a rush and took command drawing away at the end. The time was 1:14 3-5. The winner paid $19.50.

The Expectation for 2-year-olds at half a mile with 11 starters marked the first victory for H. P. Whitney at this meeting when Equipoise, the well named colt by Pennant-Swinging, won by four lengths. The Rancocas stable's Glidella, making a game challenge in the stretch, was second, three lengths in front of Brandon Saint 4th. Time, 48 1-5.

The winner, ridden by Robertson, paid $6.30 and was favorite. The field broke evenly, with little delay at the barrier. Drydock was off in front, with Equipoise close up and Robertson soon had the Whitney colt in front. At the stretch turn, Steffen improved the position of Glidella, but the race already was Whitney's.

Robertson Shines On Frank Fullen.

Jockey Robertson made it four winners when he rode Frank Fullen, a well-supported choice, home in the sixth race, over the distance of one mile and a sixteenth. The Whitney contract rider rode a great race on the winner. Off with the leaders he saved ground on the rail until the bend in the back stretch was reached where he drove the son of Lucky Hour through to take the lead and then rated him in front all the way. The usual $2 ticket brought a return of $5.60.

Searington was always close to the winner but never could seriously threaten him. Eager Play loomed up dangerous at the head of the stretch but failed to make up any ground. Rundale, close up in the early part of it but never showed a thing, was badly beaten. He appears to have gone away back.

Brother of Man o' War, My Play, Is Found Dead

Chicago, April 7 (A.P.).—My Play, 11 years old, a noted sire and brother of Man o' War, was found dead today of a heart attack in his stall at Cold Stream Farm, near Lexington, Ky. He was owned by C. B. Shafer, Chicago sportsman and breeder.

Lord Derby to Present Cup at Kentucky Classic

Louisville, Ky., April 7 (A.P.).—The Earl of Derby will present the gold cup this year to the owner of the winning horse in the Kentucky Derby. Lord Derby, who will be a visitor to the fifty-sixth renewal May 17 of the $50,000 added classic of the American turf also will speak over a coast-to-coast hookup of the National Broadcasting Co., under plans announced today at Churchill Downs.

The English Earl after whose family the historic English Derby was named has been formally invited to attend the race by Gov. Sampson and Mayor Harrison and will be extensively entertained while here.

Swavely Prep Eleven Plays Tech Nov. 27

A game with Swavely Prep School to be played at Manassas, Va., on Thanksgiving Day, has been added to the Tech High 1930 football schedule, it was announced last night by Coach "Hap" Hardell.

The game will be one of three outside the interhigh series arranged for Tech, Handley High School, of Winchester, Va., and Gonzaga, of this city, also having been scheduled for next season.

Brentwood, Takoma Fives Clash Again

The Takoma Firemen have a chance to clinch the laurels tonight when they meet the Brentwood Hawk Five in the second game of intercounty court series at 8:30 o'clock in the Takoma-Silver Spring High School. The Firemen won the first game, 27 to 22, and hope to trim the Prince Georges County champions tonight to clinch the series honors. The Hawks were minus several of their regulars for the last game, but will have all hands on deck tonight. The Hawk players are requested to report at the school.

START SCHLAG PRACTICE.

The Happy Hollow Playgrounds will start their schlag practice today. Capt. Libby Hall and anager Dot Thompson urge all candidates to be present at 3 o'clock.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—PROPUS, $19.50, $9.00, $6.10; VALLEY, $4.80, $3.40; ONE CENT, $5.30.

PROPUS BEATS VALLEY IN SECOND.

PROPUS, at home in the going, worked his way up on the inside and, finishing gamely, won going away. VALLEY was much the best, but received a very weak ride through the stretch. ONE CENT was taken wide in stretch and finished with a rush. FIRE BELLE, well up from the start, ran a good race. REA and MANAGER EVERS did not appear to like the going. MAURICE was practically left.

THIRD RACE—Four furlongs. Purse, $1,200. The Expectation. For 2-year-olds. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 3:24. Off at 3:26½. Winner, H. P. Whitney's ch. c. (2), by Pennant—Swinging. Trained by F. Hopkins. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23, 0:35 3-5, 0:48 1-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—EQUIPOISE, $6.30, $5.40, $3.40; GLIDELIA, $6.00, $3.60; DRY DOCK, $5.10.

EQUIPOISE OUTCLASSES JUVENILES.

EQUIPOISE broke well, displayed good speed and, showing a decided liking for the going, drew away to win nicely in hand. GLIDELIA, away fast on the outside, made a game effort and was next best. DRY DOCK broke fast, followed pace closely and ran a good race. BRANDON SAINT was pinched back at the top of stretch, but finished gamely. JUSTICIARY broke fast, but was knocked back right after the start. TRAITOR was outrun.

FOURTH RACE—Seven furlongs. Purse, $1,500. The Old Maryland Spring Purse. For 3-year olds and upward. Start good. Won driving; place, easily. Went to post at 3:54½. Off at 3:55½. Winner, A. W. Watson's ch. c. (3), by Mackenzie II—Ilaria. Trained by R. W. Mitchell. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $300; third, $150; fourth, $50. Time, 0:23, 0:47 2-5, 1:13 3-5, 1:28 1-5.

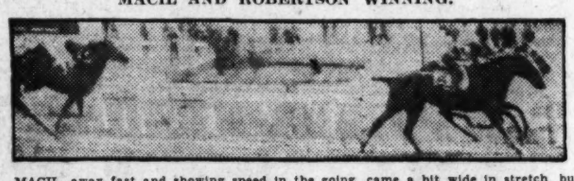
MACIL AND ROBERTSON WINNING.



MACIL, away fast and showing speed in the going, came a bit wide in stretch, but stood long drive gamely. AZIZ was kept close to the pace, came around MACIL in stretch and closed gamely, but could not get up. WATER LAD was miserably ridden. He broke slow, was rushed up on inside, suffered slight interference on turn, came again in stretch, but tired under poor handling in the final sixteenth. KEYDET was badly outrun in early pace, but finished with a rush. FAIR ANITA was hard ridden all the way.

FIFTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. The Parkway Purse. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won galloping. Went to post at 4:20. Off at 4:21. Winner, W. J. Salmon's br. c. (4), by Man o' War—Panoply. Trained by J. R. Pryce. Value to winner, $1,000; second, $225. Time, 0:26, 0:53 1-5, 1:20 1-5, 1:46 2-5, 1:53 4-5.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—ANNAPOLIS, $2.30, out; CLEAR SKY, out.

ANNAPOLIS OUT FOR AN AIRING.

ANNAPOLIS broke fast, was sent to the front and, under strong pull for entire trip, won galloping. CLEAR SKY followed pace closely and ran a good race.

SIXTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 4:50. Off at 4:50½. Winner, C. Graffagnini's b. h. (5), by Lucky Hour—Rainbow Division. Trained by owner. Value to winner, $850; second, $200; third, $100; fourth, $50. Time, 0:26, 0:52 1-5, 1:17 3-5, 1:43 2-5, 1:50.

Two-dollar mutuels paid—FRANK FULLEN, $5.60, $3.80, $2.70; SEARINGTON, $4.60, $2.80; EAGER PLAY, $2.70.

FRANK FULLEN BREEZING HOME.

FRANK FULLEN, away fast, ran into early lead and just galloped along in front, winning easily. SEARINGTON moved up very fast and was next best. EAGER PLAY lacked his early speed and failed to make up any ground. WOOLORAC had no mishaps. RUNDALE stopped badly.

SEVENTH RACE—One and one-sixteenth miles. Purse, $1,200; claiming. For 4-year-olds and upward. Start good. Won easily; place, same. Went to post at 5:20½. Off at 5:22. Winner, G. B. Foley's br. g. THYMON ON WAY TO HIS STABLE.

THYMON, much the best, won galloping. LEONARDEAU moved up fast and was next best. REALTOR closed a big gap. LUCIE ANN was running strong at end.

SCHOOL BALL CLUBS PLAY 3 GAMES

Devitt, Coached by Henningan, Meets Charlotte Hall.

ONE high school baseball team will make its debut before home fans this afternoon and two prep school nines will play games on local diamonds, one of them inaugurating its 1930 season with a new coach.

Johnny Hannigan, Georgetown University athlete, is the one who will be handling a scholastic team for the first time, the Hilltop star having been named to coach Devitt Prep for the coming season. Hannigan has been at Georgetown since 1926 and has earned letters in football and baseball. He will graduate from Georgetown in June.

Hannigan's team will meet Charlotte Hall in its opener today on the East Ellipse diamond at 3:30 o'clock, at which hour Eastern will swing into action against Emerson at the Lincoln Park stadium, and St. Alban will take on Laurel High at the St. Alban diamond.

Devitt Undecided On Line-Up.

With the exception of right field and its starting pitcher, Hannigan last night announced his line-up which will take the field at the outset of hostilities with Charlotte Hall. Kreuzberg and Tangora are both hurling possibilities for the opener, while either Nathanson or Gleeson will play in right field. Davidson will catch, while the infield will be made up of Bralove at first, Fletcher at second, Schriver at short and Beazley at third.

Millard, erstwhile Western High athlete, will be in the outfield, flanked by Bradley and either Nathanson or Gleeson. Joe Hennigan, of Georgetown University, is handling the team this year for the first time. With only Taylor and Kessler at first and short, assured of regular berths with the Eastern High Team, Coach Guyon planned to use today's fray as another means of testing his candidates under fire. The Light Blue and White mentor has at least two aspirants for every post, while his mound staff includes Turner, Phillips, Lieb, Noone, and Lamahan. Emerson, today's foe, has been a bit more active than Eastern this year, having engaged in three games.

If St. Alban can continue to win ball games as it took its opener, all will be well. The Saints found themselves on the short end of a 5-to-0 score at the end of the first inning Friday with Episcopal, but, holding the Alexandrians to one run over the remainder of the route, annexed the verdict by scoring four times in the fifth and the three winning tallies in the ninth. Laurel High will be today's foe on the Cathedral diamond.

Capital Club to Stage Field Trials Thursday

The ninth annual spring puppy trials of the National Capital Field Trial Club will be held on the Cooke Hutchinson Farm, near Chantilly, Fairfax County, Va., on Thursday. Entries from various sections of Virginia, Maryland, Delaware and the District of Columbia are numerous and a classy field of pointers and English setters will be on hand to compete for the trophies offered by the club.

Several of the Great Alexander pointers from Richmond will try to maintain the supremacy they have shown this year in other trials. The judges will be J. W. Dorsey Cooke, of Potomac Beach, Va., and H. B. Mitchell, of Herndon, Va., both of whom are experienced field trial men.

WANT SATURDAY GAME.

Georgetown Peewees want a game for any Saturday afternoon at 2 o'clock. Call West 0071.

COLUMBIAN INSECTS PLAY.

The Columbian Insect Nine, which meets the St. John's Prepmen today at 3:30 o'clock on west Ellipse diamond, is booking games. Call Nick Rinaldi at North 1600.

SEEK DEL RAY GAME.

The Monroe A. C., which was rained out of its game Sunday with the Del Ray Nine, would like to schedule that team for next Sunday. The Del Ray manager and other teams desiring games should call North 6238.

Boots and Saddles

(Reg. U. S. Patent Office.)

—Bowie Selections—

By J. B. SNODGRASS.

THE track was well soaked yesterday, after partly recovering from Sunday's rains, and will be heavy today. Bowie offers the Midway Handicap for 3-year-olds and up, at 6 furlongs, an old fixture at this track.

FEATURE RACE—GUN ROYAL, on a muddy track, should win, but he is loaded up to the danger point with 122 pounds. He carried this weight in the Inaugural, but the track was fast, and he was beaten by Bocaratone. PENNANT LASS and STAR O' MORN. The last two mentioned are entered today, but PENNANT LASS has had two very hard races and has up 115 pounds. The probability is she will feel the effects of these hard efforts, especially her last when she was beaten a nose by Dinah Did Upset. In the Inaugural she set the pace all the way, but was beaten a length by Bocaratone. STAR O' MORN is fresher and better treated by the handicapper and is picked for the contender, with PENNANT LASS third. For the track and distance GUN ROYAL appears the solid horse. JUDGE DIXON has worked well and may get close to the leaders. He has an outside chance to get first money. CLOUDY ran well the other day and quit.

FIRST RACE—This race is for 2-year-old maidens. ZINN is a mudder and ran well at New Orleans, and this appears to be her chance to earn brackets. The BARKLEY-DIXIANA ENTRY of MY BETTY and NEA-JOYCE will be well backed on breeding and trials and should be contenders. YPRES ROSE has a chance to show. But there is little line on the large field, and it may as probable as not go to any of the non-starters.

SECOND RACE—This race for 3-year-olds at 6 furlongs is given to SUNVIEW on his New Orleans form. He won his last race at the Southern course from a field the equal of this. COLUMBUS, from the Rancocas Stable, which started once at this meeting, will be the contender. The track was muddy, but he kept at his task resolutely and finished second to ST. TUSCAN. EASTER should get in the money on 2-year-old form.

Third race — BLACK PATRICIA looks best in the Fads and Fancies, for fillies, 3-year-olds and upward, at 7 furlongs. The Rancocas Stable's ZUBLENA, which won brilliantly last week, probably will be the favorite, but she was running that day in her own class, and today she meets older horses. BLACK PATRICIA is a 4-year-old and especially good in mud. She won several races in the South. The Rancocas filly should be second. CHATTERING is next best, and also a winner at this meeting.

Fifth race—In this number NAYLOR is selected. He ran well at Miami and likes a route. This race is a mile and a sixteenth. TALKY is a recent winner and doubtless will be the contender. BAKED APPLE has been frequently backed by the stable connections and is tagged for third money. PRINCE TOY may be better than rated here.

Sixth race—LAURIE appears to be well placed. Throw out his last race. On his previous start he finished a nose behind Searington, and many believed the horse had won the race. On that race he should win this mile and a furlong gallop. MAINSHEET will have FORCE to beat for place. Both have good winter records and are in form for this test. MULATTO and FAIR BILL are others which on some races would be given a good chance.

Seventh race—MOCKERY, in the seventh race Saturday, beat a better field than he will meet in the seventh event today and is selected to repeat. He beat DANGER SIGNAL and FORCE in his last out and the strongest horse among the rivals today is JUDGE CAVERLY, not as good a horse, but more consistent than MOCKERY. PRUDE II will show improvement. Throw out the last race. He can do better than that. He has worked well at Bowie.

BOWIE NOTES

C. M. Waite, inventor of the stall gate bearing his name, has returned from installation of the device at Havre de Grace yesterday, where the gate will be used during the twelve-day meeting beginning there next Monday.

There are fourteen horses on the schooling list by the addition of Turkey's Neck.

The first five days of the Bowie meeting haltermen dropped $18,500 into the claiming box and took eight horses.

Louis Feustel registers 1.000 per cent among the trainers, having started only two horses at the meeting and winning with both. They were Billie Blake and Saki.

Pop Flynn, of Baltimore, who can be seen at Bowie every morning at the workout hour, is 83 and says the sport of racing keep people young.

Paul Bunyan struck himself in the Old Dominion Handicap Saturday and may be on the shelf for a week or so.

There is much interest in the probable meeting at Havre de Grace in the $10,000 Aberdeen, and possibly other races, of the Epinard colt, Siskin, and the Campfire colt, Vander Pool, the latter having captured the Bowie fans by his good race last week, making his fourth winning effort with no defeat. Siskin won the Agua Caliente Futurity and will make his first Eastern start at the Harford course.

DIXIE PIGS PRACTICE.

The Dixie Pigs will practice today on the Seat Pleasant diamond at 4 p. m. in preparation for their game Sunday with the French A. C.

SECOND RACE—

BARNETT AND DIFFENBAUGH VICTORS IN PRO GOLF

District Pair Win by One Stroke

Triple Tie for Second Place in Best Ball Competition.

Mather Becomes President of Middle Atlantic Group.

By HENRY LITCHFIELD WEST.

At the annual meeting of the Middle Atlantic Professional Golfers Association, held last night at the Indian Spring Club, officers were elected for the ensuing year and a program of events for the coming season was adopted. There was a large attendance of members from the District of Columbia and Maryland, many of whom participated in the 18-hole, best ball tournament which preceded the meeting.

This event was won by Robert T. Barnett, Chevy Chase professional, and George Diffenbaugh, assistant professional at Indian Spring, with a best ball of 36—40—76, the crucial point in their victory being a birdie 3 on the sixth hole which Barnett scored by running down a 10-foot putt. Their best-ball card was as follows:

Out ..... 4 4 4 4 5 2 6 4 3—36
In ..... 5 4 5 4 3 4 7 3 5—40—76

There was a triple tie for second money, Warner Mather, Woodholm, Baltimore, and Alex Armour, Congressional; Ralph Beach, Suburban, Baltimore, and Gene Larkin, Chevy Chase, and A. L. Houghton, Harper, and Cliff Spencer, Maryland Country Club, scoring a best ball of 77. The other scores were as follows:

Douglass Brook (Hillendale, Baltimore) and Mel Shorey (East Potomac Park, 79; J. Monro Hunter (Indian Spring) and Lawrence Wisner (Suburban, Baltimore), 38—41—79; R. C. McKimmie (Army, Navy and Marine Corps) and Julius Platt (Forest Greens), 40—39—79; William Schrieber (Catoctin, Frederick, Md.) and Frank Cunningham (Burning Tree), 38—42—80; Charles P. Betschler (Rodgers Forge) and Archie Clark (Congressional), 39—41—80; Dave Thomson (Washington Golf and Country) and Irving Schloss (Rodgers Forge, Baltimore), 40—41—81; Carroll T. McMaster (Rolling Road, Baltimore) and Frank Hartig (Army, Navy and Marine Corps), 41—43—84; Glenn Spencer (Maryland Country Club) and Walter Cunningham (Burning Tree), 43—44—87; A. B. Thigpen (Woodmont) and Al Treder (Manor), 44—43—87.

Warner Mather, Woodholm, who has served during the past year as first vice president, succeeded automatically to the position of president, and J. Monro Hunter, second vice president, became first vice president. The office of second vice president was filled by the election of Ralph Beach, Suburban, and A. F. Bergman, secretary, and Charles P. Betschler, Rodgers Forge were re-elected secretary and treasurer, respectively.

Membership Applications Received.

The association received a number of applications for membership and decided to hold four meetings each year, with the annual election scheduled for the last week in December of each year. It was also agreed that the Middle Atlantic open tournament which has not been held for two years should be resumed this season on a course and date to be selected at a future date.

The selection of a course and date for the Middle Atlantic closed championship was left to a committee consisting of Ralph Beach, Alex. Armour, Charles Betschler and Robert T. Barnett, but it was agreed that the qualifying round for the Professional Golfers Association annual championship should be played on the course of the Indian Spring Club on the date selected by the national association. The following schedule of events was adopted:

May 5—Congressional, sweepstakes.
May 19—Maryland Country Club, 36 holes, medal play, professionals.
June 2—Bannockburn, 18 holes, medal play, professionals.
July 7—Army, Navy and Marine Corps, pro-pro, best ball, 36 holes, pros to select partners.
July 30—Catoctin Club, Frederick, Md., Scotch foursome, pros and pros.
August 11—Columbia Country Club, competition to be decided by the club professionals.
August 25—Forest Greens, 18 holes, medal play, professionals only.
September 8—Chevy Chase, senior amateurs and pros, 18 holes, combined score, less handicap for amateurs.
Week of September 15—Middle Atlantic open, 72 holes, medal play, course to be selected.
September 22—Woodholm, Baltimore, 18 holes, medal play.
October 6—Woodmont, 18 holes, medal play, amateur-professional.
October 20—Suburban Club, Baltimore, competition to be decided by club professionals.

ALEXANDRIA SPORTS

ALEXANDRIA, Va., April 7.—Rain washed out the opening baseball program for the sandlot teams in this city yesterday afternoon. Next Sunday the St. Mary's Celtics have arranged to bring the Bridgeport team here for a game.

Len Shires, brother of the famous Art Shires, is playing with the Bridgeport Club.

City Manager Lawrence announced this morning the appointment of Prex Wilson, former William and Mary star, as athletic director of the public recreation department. Mr. Wilson is at present athletic director of the George Mason High School. He was first appointed in 1928 under City Manager Morton and has been appointed each year since.

Mr. Wilson came to this city as athletic director of the Alexandria High School, going from there to Washington and Lee High School and later to George Mason High School. Since taking charge of the public recreation in this city he has made a number of improvements. The municipal swimming pool was opened under his supervision and since has increased its attendance over 50 per cent. Other features that he has created are the city tennis tournament, Twilight Baseball League for juniors and midgets, annual field day, swimming meets and interplayground competition.

Coach Reynolds learned today that he would be without the services of his baseball captain for the remainder of the season. Capt. Travers broke his ankle during a practice game with the George Mason High School. It was first thought that he had only sprained it, but an X-ray picture shows that he has a broken bone.

MARINES SEE SUCCESSFUL SEASON

Boast Clever Pitchers for 40-Game Schedule.

With three victories out of five games played thus far, the All-Marine Baseball Team operating at Quantico, Va., is looking forward to another successful season under the guidance of Coach Tom Keady, veteran baseball and football mentor.

The Leathernecks have scheduled 40 games for the current campaign, most of them with college nines and one with McKinley High School of this city. The latter will be met at Quantico on May 3.

The optimism of the Marines is based chiefly upon the strength of theri pitching staff, of which Jesse Kidd, a sensation in 1929, is a member, one of the few athletes who serve more than a year on an All-Marine team in any sport.

Kidd's Slugging Also Strong Point.

At present Kidd is incapacitated with a leg ailment, but he is expected to be available for duty within the next week or ten days. His return to action will be hailed joyously by his teammates, as he also possesses exceptional hitting ability, having averaged better than .370 with the bat last season. He performs in the outfield when not pitching.

Supporting Kidd, and at the same moment bearing the mound burden, is Lefty Smith, another veteran of the 1929 season. Coach Keady has declared him one of the most improved ball players that has served under him at the nearby Virginia post.

The Marines have lost Jimmy Levey, crack shortstop, whose signature was sought by several major league clubs last season, and his absence has left a hole in the defense which so far has not been capably filled. Levey joined the Tulsa Western League Team last summer, but was said to have become in reality the property of the St. Louis Browns, who operate the Tulsa Club.

On May 14 the Marines will be seen at Brookland Stadium, where they will play the Catholic University Nine. The Cardinals will visit the Quantico diamond on April 28. In concluding their campaign, the Leathernecks will invade New England late in May to engage Vermont, Norwich, Dartmouth, Holy Cross, Porvidence, New Hampshire, Tufts, Harvard and Coast Guard Academy. Most of these teams rank with the strongest in college ranks.

15 Insect and Peewee Clubs Enter Capital City League

Two Sections Formed With Entries Open Until May 1.

Another successful season was assured for the Capital City Baseball League, sponsored by The Washington Post, last night when representatives of seven Peewee and eight Insect class teams applied for franchises in the first two sections to be organized. Spirited meetings were well attended in the Municipal Playground office in the District Building.

Both of these sections voted to permit other teams to join the league until May 1, when teams are required to have their franchise fees posted with the league secretary. Both divisions voted to open the season on May 17. The Peewee section, reorganized after several years' abandonment, will have an age limit of 12 years and under. No player will be eligible who is 13 years old before June 1. The insect maximum age remains the same as last year—no player who becomes 15 before June 1 is eligible to play.

Teams to Play Each Rival Twice.

The schedule for each section will provide that each team meet each other twice. Motions were passed in both sessions providing that no scheduled game will be postponed after Thursday prior to the date scheduled unless managers of the rival teams agree. With few exceptions, all games in these two divisions will be played on Saturday dates.

The peewee teams represented last night are the Lionels, Georgetown, Army Medicos, St. Paul's, Kennedys, Montrose and Emersons.

The franchise fee for each section is $5, which will pay all umpire fees throughout the season.

Insect team managers voted to declare all contracts signed before April 7 void. It was pointed out that some managers have signed scores of players and that many of these players desire to sign with other teams now, but are unable to do so. It was further stated that some managers have not had league contracts and are placed at a disadvantage to rival managers who have been signing players for a month or more. Players signed before last midnight are not bound by these contracts the ruling determined.

Virginia Unlimited Nines Meet Tonight

All of the unlimited baseball nines of nearby Virginia section are expected to be represented tonight at a meeting in the Sports Department of The Washington Post tonight to organize a league to be conducted in conjunction with the Capital City League. The meeting will start at 7:30 o'clock.

The Cherrydale Firemen, Jefferson District Firemen, Cardinal A. C., Fairfax, Ballston, Bauserman Motor Co., Anandale White Sox, Del Ray A. C. and other teams have been invited to have delegates in attendance.

Interest among the unlimited teams of Northern Virginia has been lax in recent years and it is expected that the league will serve to revive the once popular interest.

Bridgewater Nine Bows To Juniata by 4-1

Special to The Washington Post.

Harrisonburg Va., April 7.—With Lefty Snyder twirling brilliantly, Juniata College, of Pennsylvania, today opened its Virginia baseball invasion with a 4-to-1 victory over the Bridgewater College Eagles. Snyder allowed one man to reach base in the first six innings and gave up but four hits. The Bridgewater infield defense went to pieces in the second, making four errors which contributed to the visitors' quartet of tallies. Capt. Cupp performed well for the Eagles, allowing only six hits. Bridgewater's run came in the eighth on three hits. The game was staged in a chilly atmosphere with a strong wind blowing, these conditions making the work of the two pitchers all the more commendable.

ENGLISH WIN IN VIRGINIA GAME, 9-0

Cambridge - Oxford Invaders Triumph at Lacrosse.

Special to The Washington Post.

CHARLOTTESVILLE, Va., April 7. The combined Oxford-Cambridge lacrosse team, in its American conquest, defeated the Virginia twelve here this afternoon 9 to 0, and tonight left to meet Swarthmore tomorrow afternoon. Today's victory gives the Britishers a 23-point lead in the contest for the Flannery International Cup as the result of four games against American rivals.

Today's contest was played on a gale-swept field. The invaders exhibited superior team work throughout and nearly all of their nine goals came after the attack had cleverly worked into shooting position.

The Virginians attempted to pierce the air-tight defense the visitors threw around their goal, but each time they were repulsed. The British goal was seriously threatened only three times.

The Cavaliers made a splendid showing on defense during the first half, which ended 3 to 0. This good showing was kept up until mid-way the second frame when the Britishers launched a terrific drive which netted four goals.

Two of these were made by a substitute, Farinholt, Rhodes scholar from Maryland, former member of the John Hopkins team and captain-elect of the Oxford team. The boys from Cambridge led in the scoring, Robert Ainsworth and Astle each counted twice and fielding once for the Cambridge contingent. All of the scoring of the Oxford group was done by Americans, Giddens, Alabama youth, and Farinholt, who played on the last American Olympic team, both tallied twice.

ON THE SIDELINES by BRIAN BELL

BILL KILLEFER, manager of the St. Louis Browns, abhors "conventions" during his baseball practices. When pitchers are sent into outfield to "shag" flies, sometimes they gather in groups and discuss the state of the Nation and other topics, when Manager Bill would like to have them running around the place, getting in shape and hardening their legs for the coming campaign.

"The Elks are about to have a convention in left field," he said during a practice. "I see the brothers gathering about Johnny Ogden. I will have to see what can be done about it."

The manager supplied himself with half a dozen balls and a fungo bat and began to drive ball after ball into the group. The pitchers scattered as the sarcastic voice of Killefer rang out on the still air of West Palm Beach: "Ah, hah, Brother Elks, you decided to adjourn, heh?"

TRIPP SIGMAN, recruit outfielder of the Phillies, who can hit the ball about as far as any one of this hard hitting team, played with Jackson, Miss., in the Cotton States League with a small group of players now in the majors.

"We had quite a team at Jackson," said Sigman. "Bill Dickey, now a star with the Yankees, was our catcher; Ed Durham, a pitcher with the Red Sox, was one of our pitchers, and Sam Leslie, then a first baseman, now an outfielder with the Giants, played first for us.

"Don't let anybody tell you that Leslie can't hit. For plain and fancy slugging, I'll bet my money on Leslie against anybody in the game. When he hits that ball, he gives it a ride.

"Dickey caught all our games as I remember it, unless it was late in the year after the pennant was won. Some one may have gone back behind the bat just to knock the ball down when it didn't matter, but during the season when all the games counted, Bill did the catching.

"We started out with two catchers, but when the manager saw Dickey could catch 'em all, he got rid of the extra catcher so he could take on another pitcher."

SEVERAL seasons ago well posted baseball men advised ambitious young players who wished to become major leaguers to take up catching. The advice was sound. Not in recent years has there been such a dearth of catchers in the major leagues. At least three clubs in Florida now with season at hand are looking about for likely youngsters to supplement catching staffs. The Browns have Ferrell and Manion but need a third and will pay well for the right man. The Braves are starting out with the veteran Hank Gowdy as one of the regular catchers and while Gowdy can catch, he will be more useful as a coach. Tife Reds have two good catchers in Clyde Sukeforth and Johnny Gooch but need a third. It is not too late now for the youngsters to shift positions. Catchers always will be in demand.

JEAN DUBUC, a great pitcher with the Cincinnati Reds 20 years ago and later one of the American League's best when he wore the colors of Detroit, perfected a slow ball and carried it around with him for two years before he dared use it.

"Yes, I had the slow ball and perfect control of it, but was afraid to throw it in a game," said Dubuc, who is now coaching the Tiger pitchers in the Detroit training camp at Tampa.

"I knew that I had to have a slow ball but I could not master it. I tried watching Matty (Mathewson) but I couldn't tell how he threw it. The solution came by accident. I was playing billiards with 'Dummy' Taylor, the old Giants' pitcher, and he showed me how to 'draw' a billiard ball, indicating with his hands in sign language that a baseball would do the same thing, with a slight draw of the wrist as it was thrown.

"I tried it and it worked. However, I kept practicing for control and eventually could throw it where I wanted it to go. But I did not use it in a game.

"An attack of sickness kept me out of the game later and I was released to Montreal. Warming up there one day after I had lost my first two starts, I threw the slow ball and the Montreal catcher at once became excited. 'How long have you had that?' he asked, meaning the slow one. 'Two years.' I replied. 'But I have never thrown it in game.' 'You are going to throw it today,' he said.

"The answer was that I won eleven straight games, lost one, and then won twelve more.

I WENT to Detroit and the slow ball served me well there. I had great success with it against Joe Jackson, one of the greatest hitters I have ever seen. Clyde Milan, then a Washington star, used to say that I could throw him off his stride for a week.

"I never could stop George Sisler, though. He wouldn't swing hard at it. He would just push it over the heads of the infielders. He got many a hit off me.

"Walter Johnson and I had some great battles, with his speed and my old slow ball. Several times the score was 1 to 0. I think the first time we met, Detroit beat Washington 1 to 0 with Detroit getting two hits, and Washington only one. I got a double that day, or maybe, it was a single, scoring Del Baker with the only run of the game.

"I will be very much disappointed if some of these young Detroit pitchers don't bob up this season with a good slow ball. They have been working hard on it and as they catch on rapidly I am confident several of them will come through."

New Navy Boathouse Is Named for Admiral

Special to The Washington Post.

Annapolis, Md., April 7.—The new boathouse at the Naval Academy will be named "The Hubbard Boathouse," after Rear Admiral John Hubbard, of the Navy, retired, of 1451 Belmont street, Washington, it was announced today by Capt. Henry D. Cooke, director of athletics, at the Academy. Admiral Hubbard is known as the "daddy" of Navy rowing, having stroked the first Navy crew, a four-oared gig, back in 1870. He retired from the service in 1911, after a distinguished career.

Formal dedication of the structure will take place on April 19. An appropriate program of ceremonies is being arranged, and the veteran admiral has signified his intention of attending. Others participating will include Assistant Secretary of the Navy Ernest Lee Jahncke, ardent devotee of aquatics, and a number of prominent rowing officials from colleges have been invited. The occasion will be a gala one, as it will mark the opening of the intercollegiate rowing season here. A program of four triangular races will be staged on the Severn River—varsity, junior varsity, freshmen, and 150-pound eights of Columbia and Massachusetts Tech competing against like crews of the Midshipmen.

OPEN HANDBALL COURTS.

Two new handball courts were dedicated yesterday at Catholic University, the opening ceremonies including an exhibition match among players of the Y. M. C. A. The courts were built at the suggestion of the students and were approved by Father James H. Ryan, rector.

CHURCH LOOP ENDS PLAY THURSDAY

Calvary, Mt. Vernon Fives to Clash to Decide Title.

OFFICIALS for the play-off between Mount Vernon and Calvary Methodist Episcopal for the Sunday School League basket ball championship next Thursday night will be picked tonight when the league committee meets at 8 o'clock in the Central Y. M. C. A. Building.

One game will decide the championship between the teams, which were tied with the record of 19 wins in 23 starts at the end of the regular season, which closed last Saturday night. Although topping the league since the beginning of the season, the Mount Vernons were deadlocked for top honors last Saturday night when the Calvary Five were returned victors in their clash, 28 to 26, to climax a long, uphill fight.

The Mount Vernon Team won the championship last year in the regular league period. Twelve teams composed the league in which the quintets battled this year.

Navy-Orioles Game Canceled for 4th Time

Annapolis, Md., April 7.—The Navy-Baltimore Orioles exhibition baseball game, scheduled to be played here today was prevented by wet grounds. It was the fourth year straight running that such a contest was canceled by similar conditions. The Middies and University of Pennsylvania will engage in their annual clash Wednesday, and Thursday the Tars will tackle the New Haven Club of the Eastern League, which has been holding spring training here the last two weeks.

STOCK PRICE TREND PROVES IRREGULAR

FOX FILM "A" ADVANCES

New York, April 7 (A.P.).—Strenuous bullish demonstrations in today's stock market found traders increasingly nervous over the market's technical position, and for the most part merely attracted profit taking. A few shares made sharp gains, but these were offset by a long list of small losses at the close, and the price index of 90 representative shares showed a loss of ½ point for the day.

Price trends shifted frequently. The market opened strong, sagged during the morning, turned upward toward midday, made rapid progress around midafternoon and sold off swiftly in the last half hour. Oils and utilities were turned over in huge volume, more than a score reaching new high ground for the year some time during the day, but the majority closed under the day's best levels, and several showed small net losses. Stocks changed hands in blocks of 5,000 to 40,000 shares, and total sales approximated 5,500,000 shares, the second largest day of the year, coming within about 440,000 of Friday's turnover.

Aside from settlement of the Fox Film refinancing controversy, the day's news was not of a character to influence share prices, and the market appeared to be governed largely by varying sentiment regarding its internal position. Although many large traders and several commission houses firmly maintained a bullish stand, there was a growing feeling that the market was entitled to a moderate reaction, after the rapid advance of the past few days.

Business News More Favorable.

Slightly more favorable business and trade reports, however, have made the bear faction cautious, and short selling was not aggressive. In fact, shorts appeared to be severely pinched in a few issues. Wall street understands that some of the more powerful interests committed to the advance are governed by the desire of effective mergers. With business recovery proceedings at an irregular and gradual pace, however, they apparently find wide bullish enthusiasm difficult to maintain.

Fox Film "A" shot up more than 9 points to a new 1930 high at 55, and closed at 48. The settlement evidently caught a large short interest napping. Loews and General Theaters Equipment were also carried to new high levels for the year. Extreme gains of 8 to 10 points in Vanadium, National Bellas Hess, and United Aircraft also indicated that shorts were being trapped. The bidding up of United Aircraft, however, was also attributed to the efforts of the management to acquire National Air Transport through an exchange of stock.

American Telephone, up 5 points, rose to a new peak at 274, and closed at 272. Wall street rumor has it that rights worth from $10 to $20 will shortly be granted. United States Steel sold up more than 2 points to a new high at 198¾, then lost its gain. Rumors of a merger of American Radiator and Johns-Manville were renewed, and the former reached a new top for 1930. Other conspicuous strong spots at the close were Corn Products, Bendix Aviation, Motor Products, Public Service of New Jersey, and Stone & Webster.

Anaconda Copper Declines.

Coppers sold off again, Anaconda losing nearly 3 points. Cutler Hammer, Eastman Kodak, General Electric, Chesapeake & Ohio, Liggett & Myers, and Western Union lost 2 points or more, and American Machine & Foundry, 5.

Credit conditions showed little change. Call money, after renewing at 4 per cent, was cut to 3½ for the first time in more than a week, but this was said to reflect the placing of a single large block of funds in the market. Time money was slightly firmer. Foreign exchanges were steady to firm. French francs were in demand, the cable rate rising ⅛ of a point to 3.91¾ cents. Sterling cables held at $4.86½.

Commodities generally eased. Wheat lost about a cent a bushel, reflecting a slump in export buying, and corn sagged about ½ cent on bearish weather. Cotton futures advanced early in the day, but encountered realizing and only the May position closed higher.

NEW YORK COTTON.

New York, April 7 (A.P.).—An early advance in cotton today on continued covering by near months shorts and fairly steady Liverpool cables on the later months was followed by reactions under realizing. After selling up to 16.77, or 27 points net higher, May declined to 16.49 and closed at 16.57, with the general market closing barely steady at a net advance of 7 points on May, but 6 to 18 points net lower on the later deliveries.

The opening was steady at an advance of 1 to 8 points. Spot house brokers were reported buyers of May and July, while the strength of the near months, combined with the steady showing of Liverpool on the new crop deliveries, led to some covering and commission house buying in these later positions. Fluctuations were rather irregular, but the buying of May continued and the advance extended to 16.72 for July and 15.64 for the new October contract in the middle of the day, making net advances of about 10 to 27 points on the general list.

The difference between May and October widened out to about 120 points and May sold several points over the price of July, but the demand tapered off during the early afternoon and prices eased under realising. May broke to 16.40, or a point under Saturday's close, while July sold off to 16.39 and the new October contract to 15.30, making net losses of about 13 to 18 points on the active months.

Closing prices were a few points up from the lowest on coverings. Notwithstanding the easier late ruling of the market May held a premium of 120 points over the new October at the close compared with 103 points at the close of Saturday, and was about 38 points over the closing quotation in New Orleans compared with a difference of 31 points at the close of last week.

There may have been some buying on new crops early on reports of further rains in the Eastern belt over Sunday and continued dry weather in the Southwest, but offerings of new crop positions seem to increase when the demand for old crops tapered off.

Liverpool reported that realising had been absorbed by continental and Bombay buying in that market, but said that sales of cotton cloths and yarns were smaller.

Port receipts, 10,989. United States port stocks, 1,799,792. Exports, 6,214, making 5,973,800 so far this season.

CONVERTIBLE BONDS AGAIN SCORE GAINS

OIL LIST PROVES ACTIVE

New York, April 7 (A.P.).—Activity in stocks was again mirrored by the share feature bonds today. Several convertible and warrant issues soared to new highs on large turnovers, although part of the advance was obliterated in the late trading as stock prices softened.

Rates on time loans firmed about a quarter of 1 per cent, but call money slipped back to 3½ per cent after renewing at 4. Turnovers in investment rails and utilities showed a small improvement, but prices moved narrowly, and the general list was only steady. A slight increase in bank inquiry is reported, and investment bankers and dealers are encouraged by the firmness of the market's undertone.

Evidence of this satisfactory situation was seen in the announcement that the Erie Railroad's $50,000,000 issue of 45-year refunding and improvement 5s is being offered tomorrow at 95½. These bonds were authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission about a week ago, but their appearance was apparently deferred pending the market's readjustment to firmer money rates.

Share Option Group Active.

The share option group fairly boiled today. American Telephone 4½s climbed to 193¼, a new 1930 high, on enormous trading. The last sale was at 191, a net advance of ½. The day's business in the debenture totaled nearly $3,300,000, principal amount.

Even more volatile were the General Theaters Equipment 6s which soared 12 points to 152 before reacting with the shares. The final quotation was 147½, up 7½ from Saturday.

Loew's 6s, with warrants made the new high of 125, up 5¼, and closed at the top. Warner Bros. Pictures 6s and International Telephone 4½s eased. Baltimore & Ohio 4½s, were steady.

Pennsylvania Rail Gains.

Active spots in the less spectacular sections of the market included Santa Fe general 4s, Rock Island 4s, Gulf States Steel 5½s, New York Central 4s, Northern Pacific 6s, Union Pacific 4s, Utilities Power & Light 5½s and Western Union 4½s. The demand for oil stocks was accompanied by rather brisk dealings in Shell Union Oil 5s, with warrants, and Sinclair Pipe Line 5s. Pennsylvania Railroad Consolidated 4½s made a new high at 102½, up 1½.

United States Governments held firm in an active market. Changes in the more prominent European bonds were of minor size, but there was an easier tone to the secondary issues.

New bond flotations expected soon include a $10,000,000 issue on Starrett Investing Corporation secured 20-year 5s, with warrants for Starrett Corporation common stock.

$7,000,000,000 SEEN AS BUSINESS RELIEF

U. S., State, Rail and Utility Projects Will Furnish Unemployed Work.

BANK REVIEWS OUTLOOK

By THOMAS M. CAHILL.

Seven billion dollars planned to be expended for construction and maintenance by States, railroads, public utilities and the Federal Government in 1930 is seen by Lincoln National Bank in its current business review as one of the principal hopes for speedy relief of the unemployment situation.

This amount, it explains, is the estimated total of projected expenditures reported to the White House by State executives and representatives of rail and utility groups, and while the entire sum may not actually be spent this year, use of even a part of it to finance construction operations will insure steady employment to many thousands of workers now without jobs.

At the meeting of stockholders of the Corcoran Fire Insurance Co. yesterday the following officers and directors were reelected: Frank McClelland, president; Robert D. Weaver, vice president; F. H. Ridgway, secretary, and James H. Pugh, assistant secretary; directors, Albert T. Coumbe, Watson F. Clark, B. Lowndes Jackson, Charles E. Marsh, William L. Miller, Walter S. Pratt, jr., F. H. Ridgway, Robert D. Weaver and Frank McClelland.

Asheville Pleases Bankers.

District of Columbia Bankers Association convention committee chairmen who visited Asheville, N. C., place of this year's convention, over the week-end, have returned enthusiastic regarding prospects for the coming meeting June 5 to 8. Hotel and golf facilities are reported to be the finest. The Grove Park Inn management has arranged for use by the bankers of the Biltmore Forest and Asheville Country Club courses.

Committee chairman who made the trip were George O. Vass, Riggs National Bank, general; W. W. Spaid, W. B. Hibbs & Co., entertainment; Robert S. Stunz, Park Savings Bank, sports, and Luther E. Schreiner, Merchants Bank & Trust Co., hotel.

Stein Bros. & Boyce opened for business yesterday in their new street floor quarters in the recently completed addition to the Woodward Building on H street. Their modern office is equipped with every convenience. The firm, established in 1853, has its main office in Baltimore and is a member of the New York, Baltimore and Louisville Stock Exchanges and an associate member of the New York Curb Exchange.

Suter Joins Brokerage House.

George R. Suter, for several years manager of the Connecticut avenue branch of Franklin National Bank, has joined the brokerage staff of Westheimer & Co., in the Woodward Building. Mr. Suter, a native Washingtonian, began his banking career in the former Northwest Savings Bank, absorbed several years ago by Riggs National Bank.

President William D. Hoover, of the National Savings & Trust Co., was a week-end visitor at Old Point Comfort, Va.

ADVICE ON INVESTMENTS

By CHARLES W. STORM.

In making inquiries address Charles W. Storm, financial department of The Washington Post, and inclose a self-addressed, stamped envelope for reply.

Swift; International Combustion.

J. M. D.—I will appreciate it if you will give me some facts and your opinion regarding the stocks of Swift & Co. and International Combustion. Is the former company contemplating a split-up and do you consider the stock a safe investment? What dividend does it pay?

Answer—Swift & Co. new common, on which annual dividends of $2 per share are now being paid, with every indication that it will be maintained, looks inviting around current price levels from a speculative investment viewpoint. Thus far there has been no official intimation of an impending stock split-up by the company. International Combustion, as you undoubtedly know, is in receivership. A recapitalization plan is expected shortly. If you are a stockholder, it might be advisable to hold on until this plan is made public. To a prospective purchaser, the stock at present is decidedly unattractive.

Kolster Radio.

G. F. J.—Can you give me some advice as to Kolster Radio, whether or not you think the contemplated reorganization will help the price of the common stock, or do you think it is a good time to sell at the present market price? Also, what do you think of Kolster-Brandes (American shares)?

Answer—This column never gives advice concerning speculative market commitments; neither does it ever attempt to predict future movements in any stock or suggest at what price any stock should be either bought or sold. Both these issues are extremely speculative in their present status.

General Motors and Others.

R. J. C.—I would appreciate it if you can inform me on the following which I am considering buying, but first prefer to get your opinion as to their appreciation at some near future time: General Motors, Cities Service, common; International Superpower Corporation, International Carriers, Ltd., International Hydro-Electric System.

Answer—International Carriers, Ltd., pays no dividend, consequently it must be eliminated from consideration as an investment. The same also applies to International Hydro-Electric, which has a very indifferent dividend record. These two stocks are highly speculative. International Superpower, on which annual dividends of $1 are being paid, has some little attraction. General Motors and Cities Service, common, are both very well thought of from a speculative investment viewpoint. However, no attempt can be made to express an opinion as to the probability of market appreciation in any of these issues, either near or remote.

American Stores; Ludlum Steel.

J. O.—Will you kindly give me your opinion of the stocks of American Stores and Ludlum Steel as speculative investments to be held over a period of seven or eight months? Please state current assets and current liabilities of each company as of December 31, 1929, and the capital stock and surplus of both as of that date.

Answer—At present prices, and on the basis of current dividends American Stores yields to the investor approximately 4 per cent, while Ludlum Steel returns in the neighborhood of 5 per cent. Both, and particularly the latter, are well thought of from the standpoint of speculative investments. Total current assets of American Stores December 31, 1929, $22,873,763; total current liabilities, $4,694,182; capital stock, $21,659,740; profit and loss surplus, $17,359,405. Total current assets of Ludlum Steel, December 31, 1929, $4,923,045; total current liabilities, $882,142; preferred stock, $4,500,000; common stock, $3,399,766; profit and loss surplus, $2,020,120. Publication you speak of regarded as thoroughly responsible.

Mid-Continent Petroleum.

R. F.—I am seeking some advice and information on Mid-Continent Petroleum. What do you think of the stock?

Answer—The company represents a complete unit in the oil business and operates in Oklahoma, Kansas and Texas. Profits for 1929 were $4.10 a share, as against $2.50 in 1928. Dividends on the common were resumed on February 15, 1929, by the payment of 50 cents quarterly, or at an annual rate of $2. At present prices the stock returns nearly 7 per cent, which is an attractive yield, and it may be regarded as a speculative investment with some merit.

General American Tank Co.

V. H. M.—I am writing for an opinion of General American Tank Co.

Answer — Earnings are running ahead of this time last year, and there has been a revival of reports of a merger of this company with Pullman. General American Tank Car, through subsidiaries, manufactures and rents railroad tank, refrigerator and other cars. Earnings for 1929 were equal to $7.56 per capital share, as compared with $5.64 in 1928. Income last year showed an increase of nearly 50 per cent over the year previous. Larger profits in 1929 is a reflection of increased sales of cars to railroads and higher rentals on its cars. Cash dividends of $4 are paid per year and 4 per cent in stock.

General American Tank Car may be classed as a speculative investment, with considerable attractiveness for long-term possession.

Roosevelt Field, Inc.

Miss M. H.—I have Roosevelt Field, Inc., stock, purchased at $18, and wish to place the small amount now available where I may perhaps recover my loss. Are there any good prospects for Kolster Radio? What would you advise about Fox Theater "A" on the curb, or Sunray Oil, or General Alloys?

Answer—In their present status all these stocks are extremely speculative, and this column always refrains from giving advice concerning speculative market ventures. Sunray Oil and General Alloys, it is true, pay small dividends, the former 40 cents a share annually and the latter 80 cents a share yearly. Even so, they are not to be included in the class of investments. It would appear advisable not to purchase either Kolster Radio or Fox Theater "A" in the present unsettled state of affairs confroting both companies.

American Foreign Power.

G. V.—I am holding stock in the American & Foreign Power and desire an opinion of the stock.

Answer—American & Foreign Power is among the leaders of the public utility companies, being a large holder of securities. Earnings for 1929 were nearly double those for 1928, but as the stock pays no dividend at the present time it must be regarded as a speculation. However, with its vast holdings and representation in utility corporations it holds considerable promise. This company was formed by the Electric Bond & Share Corporation, and with suoh a strong backing the stock possesses some speculative attractiveness.

CHICAGO GRAIN.

Chicago, April 7 (A.P.).—Insect and bin damage to 1,247,000 bushels of wheat in a few elevators here dominated the Chicago wheat market today. Almost regardless of other factors, heavy selling and general unsettlement of trade resulted from announcement that the wheat had been posted as out of condition because of weevil and heat injury. Warehouse receipts for all other grain in Chicago public elevators were guaranteed formally by the elevator owners, but this action came after the close of the market, too late to influence prices.

Wheat today closed heavy, ¾c to 1¼c a bushel lower than Saturday's finish. Corn closed ¼c to ½c down, oats a shade off to a shade up and provisions varying from a shade decline to a rise of 10c.

News that a comparatively large amount of elevator wheat in Chicago had deteriorated to such an extent as to be no longer available to meet ordinary contract requirements put everything else most wheat traders here were concerned. It was taken for granted generally that temporarily in the background, so far as the market would be burdened with cheap offerings made under disadvantageous circumstances. Although, in some quarters the view was expressed that curtailment of the quantity of wheat which could be delivered on Chicago May contracts ought really to be construed as bullish. The majority of traders chose to consider only immediate market effects, and turned aggressively to the selling side.

Forecasts of cloudy weather tonight in Kansas and Nebraska, pointing to chances of a possible break-up of drought conditions, did a good deal also to stimulate wheat selling here. Meanwhile dispatches told of persistent lack of moisture and of high winds. Furthermore, the amount of wheat on ocean passage showed decided additional shrinkage today, making the total quantity afloat far less than half of the aggregate at this time last year. Notice of 2,837,000 bushels decrease in the United States wheat visible supply and of a general port strike at Buenos Aires was also virtually ignored, as well as official figures showing serious dearth of subsoil moisture in Canada.

CURB MARKET REVIEW

New York, April 7 (A.P.).—Prices on the New York Curb Exchange displayed considerable irregularity today with the oil and aviation issues replacing the public utilities as the market leaders. The market was called upon to absorb a rather large volume of profit taking, inspired in part by a growing feeling that a technical reaction can not long be delayed. Trading was in fairly heavy volume, total sales of 1,605,100 shares being the third largest of the year.

Fox Theaters crossed 11 to a new 1930 high on the announcement that William Fox had disposed of voting control in the parent company and that a settlement of tangled legal proceedings was in sight.

Opening of the Detroit aviation show provided an excuse for aggressive pool operations in the aviation issues. Aeronautical Industries, Allied Aviation, Aviation Securities, Consolidated Aircraft, Irving Air Chute, National Aviation and North American Aviation all reached new high records for the year. Pokker turned heavy on the announcement of substantial price cuts.

Oils made further progress on the upside on persistent rumors of crude oil and gasoline price increases. Gulf, Imperial of Canada, International Petroleum and Standard Oil of India sold at new peak prices for the year on gains ranging from fractions to nearly 4 points.

Public utilities fell back under the weight of heavy realizing. American Light & Traction dropped 4 points, American Gas & Electric 3 and Brazilian Light and Traction, Consolidated Gas of Baltimore, Electric Bond & Share and several others yielded a point or two.

A better demand was noted for some of the radio issues. Canadian Marconi was turned over in large volume and moved into a new high for the year. De Forest also sold at a new peak. Plymet Manufacturing rallied briskly on reports of a sharp upturn in orders from radio manufacturers. Among the many specialties to reach new high ground were Chesebrough Manufacturing, which soared nearly 20 points; Driver Harris, Aluminum Limited, Federal Screw, General Realty preferred, Loew's debenture rights, Merchants & Manufacturers and Lane Bryant.

The issue and sale of these Bonds have been authorized by the Interstate Commerce Commission.

BANKERS TRUST COMPANY, NEW YORK, TRUSTEE.

C. E. Denney, Esq., President of Erie Railroad Company, has summarized as follows his letter to us regarding this issue:

ERIE RAILROAD SYSTEM — The Erie Railroad System covers the so-called trunk line territory and serves the important gateways and traffic centers of Buffalo, Cleveland, Youngstown and Akron, and Scranton and the anthracite coal fields of Pennsylvania. Its main line from New York to Chicago has a high freight traffic density and, except for a distance of nine miles, is double-tracked throughout. The total mileage operated is 2,316 miles. In 1927 the management made plans for extensive improvements to motive power, rolling stock and road bed. This program has since been actively followed and has already resulted in substantial operating economies.

PURPOSE OF ISSUE — These $50,000,000 Bonds are being issued to provide for the retirement of $20,486,500 principal amount of bonds maturing this year, for the reimbursement of the Company's treasury for $5,442,250 of matured obligations heretofore acquired and for other corporate purposes including reimbursement for past expenditures for additions and betterments. That part of the proceeds not required for the retirement of the above-mentioned $20,486,500 bonds maturing in 1930 will be applied to the payment of $5,000,000 short term notes, toward the Company's 1930 budget of about $32,000,000 for additions and betterments, and to other corporate purposes.

EARNINGS

1925	$118,543,455	$21,698,418	$14,969,112	$6,729,306

During the five-year period covered by the above table, annual income applicable to fixed charges averaged 1.57 times total fixed charges. Income applicable to fixed charges in 1929 amounted to 1.81 times total fixed charges. As $17,574,500 bonds being refunded by this issue bear interest at the rate of 7%, a substantial saving in interest charges will result in respect of bonds issued for refunding purposes.

SECURITY — The Refunding and Improvement Mortgage, under which $100,000,000 of 5% bonds will be outstanding upon the issuance of these Series of 1930 Bonds, is a direct lien on the entire 858 miles owned in fee, including the important mileage crossing the State of New York from Piermont on the Hudson River to Dunkirk on Lake Erie. It is also a lien upon the Company's rights by stock ownership and/or leasehold in 1,284 miles of road, or substantially all the rest of the mileage of the System. The Mortgage is further secured by a lien on the capital stock of the Pennsylvania Coal Company, which leased as of January 1, 1930 to The Pittston Company, the anthracite coal properties formerly operated by it and Hillside Coal and Iron Company. The lien of the Refunding and Improvement Mortgage on the above-mentioned mileage, leasehold and other rights, and pledged stock is subject to the liens, so far as they attach, of underlying mortgages and a collateral trust indenture securing $161,374,200 bonds outstanding in the hands of the public.

EQUITY — The Company's capital stock, consisting of $47,904,400 par value First Preferred Stock, $16,000,000 par value Second Preferred Stock, and $151,116,700 par value Common Stock, has an aggregate indicated market value, based on current quotations, of approximately $129,000,000. In 1929 dividend payments at the rate of 4% per annum were resumed on both the First Preferred and Second Preferred Stocks.

The foregoing is subject to the more complete statements contained in the circular, a copy of which may be obtained upon request.

THE ABOVE BONDS ARE OFFERED, SUBJECT TO PRIOR SALE AND TO CONDITIONS STATED BELOW, AT 95½% AND ACCRUED INTEREST, TO YIELD OVER 5.25% TO MATURITY.

The right is reserved to reject any or all applications and also, in any case, to allot a smaller amount than applied for. All applications will be received subject to the due issue and sale of the Bonds as planned, and to approval by counsel of the form and validity of the related documents and proceedings.

The amounts due on confirmed sales will be payable at the office of J. P. Morgan & Co., in New York funds to their order, and the date of payment (on or about April 24, 1930) will be stated in the confirmations of sale. Temporary Bonds, exchangeable for definitive Bonds when received, are to be delivered.

Wall Street Briefs

New York, April 7 (A.P.).—The visible supply of American grain shows the following changes in bushels: Wheat decreased 2,757,000; corn decreased 197,000; oats decreased 480,000; rye decreased 10,000; barley decreased 294,000.

Cotton goods were steady with demand better for printed fabrics and rayon mixtures. Raw silk irregular with the weight of Japanese stocks a factor. Silk merchandise is in moderate demand. More business is being placed on men's and women's wear worsteds.

Samuel S. Walker was reelected president of the Joliet & Chicago Railroad Co., today after a proxy battle between the Walker interests and a group representing the Chicago & Alton Railroad, which leases the former line. Walker's retention in the presidency enabled a stockholders' protective committee to retain control of the Joliet & Chicago, which has a suit pending against the Alton. The latter road has sought the withdrawal of this action and its representatives representatives solicited proxies with this end in view.

Ticker service of the Chicago Stock Exchange soon will be extended to Pittsburgh, the second Pennsylvania city to receive Chicago quotations direct. The circuit was extended to Philadelphia last fall.

A seat on the Chicago Stock Exchange was sold today to Samuel Ungerleider, partner of the New York brokerage house of Samuel Ungerleider & Co.

The net railway operating income of the class I railroads of the country for the first two months of the year aggregated $115,169,125, which was at the annual rate of return of 3.88 per cent on the property investment, the Bureau of Railway Economics reported today. The aggregate for the first two months was $161,914,617, or 5.60 per cent on the property investment.

March sales of the Childs Co. amounted to $2,351,691, compared with $2,408,961 in March, 1929. There were two less stores in operation this year than during March, 1929.

Members of the New York Cotton Exchange have voted for the closing of the exchange on Good Friday, April 18, and on Saturday, April 19.

Sears, Roebuck & Co. reports that the sales of its ready-to-build homes during the first quarter were 12 per cent greater than those of the corresponding period in 1929.

Steel ingot production for the first quarter of the year fell short by more than 1,700,000 tons of that of the corresponding quarter of 1929, according to the American Iron & Steel Institute. March output totaled 4,288,985 tons, compared with 5,058,258 in March, 1929, and that for the first quarter amounted to 12,143,406 tons, as against 13,874,612 tons in the first quarter of last year. The report further showed that the average rate of operations for the quarter just ended was 80.42 per cent of rated capacity, as contrasted with 91.88 for the first quarter of 1929, and the approximate daily output 157,707 tons for the quarter, compared with 180,190 tons in 1929.

The Eureka Vacuum Cleaner Co., of Detroit, did not earn all of its common stock dividend requirements during the first quarter, Fred Wardell, president, said today, but the directors felt that they would be justified in paying the dividend due at this time from surplus, "while waiting for general business conditions to clarify."

Holders of United States Steel Corporation common stock numbered 124,069 when the books were closed for the March dividend, an increase of 6,113 during the past three months. On March 31, 1929, stockholders numbered 103,571.

Fifth Ave. Fashions
NEW YORK

The new French undies with the moulded bodice are indispensable to wear 'neath the slim silhoutte frock.

This princess combination is very popular with the smart young things. The extreme fullness in the panties quite takes the place of a slip worn with woolen and heavier crepe silk frocks.

Style No. 132 can be had in sizes 16, 18, 20 years, 36, 38, 40 and 42 inches bust.

Inclosed is 15 cents. Please send to

Chinese Diplomat Gets Carnegie Fellowship

The Carnegie Endowment for International Peace has awarded a fellowship in international law for 1930-31 to Yuen-li Liang, Third Secretary of the Chinese Legation, a student of the graduate school of American University. Eleven other persons, none of whom reside in Washington, also were awarded fellowships.

The stipend of the fellowship range from $1,000 to $1,800. Liang is now in Europe as secretary to the Chinese Minister, Chao-Chu Wu, who is attending The Hague world conference. He expects to return in time, however, to receive a master's degree in June from American University.

NEWS OF LATEST HAPPENINGS IN MARYLAND AND VIRGINIA

ALEXANDRIA COUNCIL OPPOSES FARE RAISE

Rate Increases Within City by Bus or Rail Lines Are Condemned.

WILL SEEK STATE'S AID

THE WASHINGTON POST BUREAU.
312 S. Washington St., Alexandria, Va.
Phone Alexandria 523.

Resolutions adopted last night by the Alexandria City Council placed that body squarely on record as opposing any increase in rates within the City of Alexandria by the A., B. & W. bus line and the Alexandria, Washington & Mount Vernon Railway.

By its action the city council instructed the city manager and the city attorney to appear before the State Corporation Commission at Richmond at its scheduled hearing at 10 o'clock this morning upon the application of the bus line and the railway for an increase in rates.

The two city officials were authorized "to inform the commission of the provisoins of the franchise granted by the city to the railway company" and to oppose rate boosts in Alexandria.

Committee's Opposition Withdrawn.

A resolution to the effect that no opposition be offered to the increased schedule of fares between Alexandria, Washington, and intermediate points, which Robert L. May, owner of the A. B. & W. Bus Line and the Washington-Alexandria Electric Railway, was adopted yesterday by a special committee composed of members of the Chamber of Commerce and representatives of other bodies. The resolution also provided that the special committee send a representative to Richmond to appear before the State Corporation Commission today and petition that body to deny any delay that may be sought, and to render a decision at the earliest possible moment.

This special committee is composed of ten members, of whom six voted for the resolution and four against it. Harry Kennedy, John Barton Phillips, the newly elected president of the chamber of commerce; Robert E. Knight and Frank Michelbach, merchants, voted against the resolution, while those favoring it were Frank W. Noxon, chairman of the special committee; Fred C. Goodnow, retiring president of the chamber of commerce; Harry Hammond, Benedict Weil, George F. Downham and George M. Reynolds. The resolution was proposed by Mr. Noxon, who expressed his hope that the newly elected board of directors of the chamber of commerce would take a stand in favor of the resolution.

Compromises Are Made.

The original proposition of Mr. May was to charge a minimum fare of 10 cents on both the bus and railway, with 15 cents straight fare between Alexandria and Washington, eight tokens, good on either line, to be sold for $1. This schedule has been modified to provide for a rate of 10 cents within the city limits of Alexandria, with four tokens for 25 cents, and the eight tokens for $1 to Washington. The fare between intermediate points is to remain at 10 cents.

At least two, and probably three, committees wil go to Richmond today to oppose Mr. May's petition for the increased fares. These are a citizens' committee headed by Harry F. Kennedy; the Alexandria Citizens Association, headed by John Barton Phillips, and a delegation from the Potomac Freight Yards.

The citizens' committee adopted a resolution Thursday night, asking Mr. May to defer his application for increased fares for 90 days while the joint operation of the two transportation lines could be tested, but he refused to consider this. Benedict Weil stated in the meeting yesterday that Mr. May was "unwilling to experiment with his money."

John Barton Phillips, in discussing the statement attributed to Mr. May to the effect that the railway is a losing proposition, asked Mr. May if he would be willing to sell the line at the price he paid, to which Mr. May replied that he could not consider the matter offhand, but would like to think it over.

Says Action Fatal Mistake.

Harry F. Kennedy told the committee that it was "fooling with dynamite" in supporting the raise in rates, and that the chamber of commerce is opposing the commuters, and that he wished it understood that he was voting "no" to the resolution. John Barton Phillips stated he thought the action as proposed was a fatal mistake. He agreed that Mr. May is entitled to a fair return on his investment, but believed the facts were not properly before the committee. He thought there should be a "cooling off" period, as the proposed increase was a surprise to the public.

John Barton Phillips was elected president of the Alexandria Chamber of Commerce yesterday at a meeting of the board of directors. Other officers chosen were L. H. Dudley, vice president, and J. T. Preston, secretary-treasurer, this being Mr. Preston's twenty-fourth consecutive term.

William B. McGroarty, industrial agent of the Southern Railway, was elected a member of the board of directors, in accordance with a provision of the by-laws, and Fred C. Goodnow was elected national councilor, representing the local chamber in the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

A committee will be appointed later to take up the matter of a membership drive. The first meeting of the entire membership will be held at 8 o'clock Monday night, April 28, and after that the meetings will be held at 8 p. m., the second Tuesday in each month. The board of directors will meet monthly at 3 p. m. the third Monday, the first regular meeting of the board being on April 21.

The Alexandria Rotary Club will celebrate its second anniversary today at the regular weekly luncheon meeting at the George Mason Hotel at 12:30 o'clock, when two newspapermen from Washington, George Rothwell Brown and Col. Frank Morgan, will be special guests. Francis H. Pannon is chairman for the entertainment program, assisted by "Dutch" Herris, Judge W. S. Snow and Blair McLeod. Each member is to bring a guest and birthday presents will be distributed, with an extra present for the club member whose birthday is nearest the club's organization anniversary. Miss Christine West will sing, accompanied by Mrs. Anna Meeks.

The funeral of William E. Riner, aged 46 years, who died on Saturday in Baltimore, will be held at 2 o'clock this afternoon from the Cunningham Funeral Home, 809 Cameron street, conducted by the Rev. Pierce S. Ellis, pastor of the First Baptist Church. Burial will be in Bethel Cemetery.

Capt. W. Cameron Roberts has announced the order of drills for the local military company, Company I, 183d Infantry, Virginia National Guard, for April, and also the date of the annual Federal inspection, April 24. Drills will be held each Monday night from 7:30 to 9 o'clock and will have special bearing on the inspection. No leave of absence from drills will be granted this month, except in cases of extreme importance.

The annual meeting with election of officers of the Alexandria Business and Professional Women's Club will be held this evening, beginning at 7 o'clock, at the George Mason Hotel.

TORNADO DESCENDS ON EASTERN SHORE

RAIN, HAIL, SNOW FALL

Special to The Washington Post.

Chestertown, Md., April 7.—The first tornado to hit the upper Eastern Shore in 50 years struck the northern section of Kent County about 1 o'clock this afternoon and completely razed a large barn on the farm near Kennedysville owned by Miss Elizabeth Pennington and her sister, Mrs. George Sutton, and tenanted by John C. Sutton. Debris from the barn and an adjoining stable was blown a mile over the countryside, while a large silo was twisted off its foundation and lifted high in the air. Four calves in the stable were unhurt, although the roof collapsed on them, and a vicious bull stood still while his pen was blown away from him, leaving him standing in the open. The wind first hit a large apple orchard, razing numerous trees before it dipped again to strike the building.

Rain, hail, snow and a severe thunderstorm accompanied the blow, which also demolished a barn on the farm of James French, near the village of Worton. The path of the tornado, which was about 50 feet, narrowly missed the dwelling on the Sutton farm, raising into the air before reaching the farm of George Sutton across the road. Trees were blown down all over Kent County. Numerous boats along the Chesapeake Bay and Chester River water front were blown up on shore, some of them damaged. Damage on the Sutton farm is estimated at $2,000, not covered by wind insurance.

Easton, Md., April 7.—Easton and vicinity was visited this afternoon by one of the heaviest tornadoes that has struck this section in years, the wind, a gale, tearing houses off their underpinning, roofs off houses.

The storm was the heaviest at Hambleton, a village 6 miles from Easton, where the wind blew the end out of Cortney Valliant's garage, the roof off of Walter Hugh's residence and ripped the roof off of Charles W. Sullivan's large cattle barn. Trees in yards were uprooted but no loss of life to persons or live stock has been reported.

Lynchburg Woman Dies Of Automobile Injuries

Special to The Washington Post.

Lynchburg, Va., April 7.—Mrs. Belle Haynes Montgomery, 69, who was hurt in an automobile accident Saturday in Cumberland County, died Sunday at the Southside Community Hospital, Farmville, and her body has been brought home for burial Tuesday afternoon. She was a native of Lynchburg and member of the First Presbyterian Church.

Surviving are her husband, a daughter, Mrs. W. L. Harrison, of Richmond, and four sons, W. B., jr.; L. L.; F. T., and P. H. Montgomery, all of Lynchburg.

CUMBERLAND SLATE PASSED BY COUNCIL

Organization Meeting Sees Tilt Over Commissioner Blye's Transfer.

KOON IS IN NINTH TERM

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., April 7.—The appointments slate of Councilmen Joseph H. Griffin, Samuel Wertheimer and John G. Shearer went through without a hitch at the organization meeting of the mayor and city council today when commissionerships were allotted as follows:

Police and fire, John G. Shearer; streets and public property, Joseph H. Griffin; water and light, Herbert Lee Blye; finance and revenue, Samuel Wertheimer. Commissioner Blye protested the action of his colleagues in transferring him from the police and fire department to the water and light. He said he had never been consulted as to a change. He was answered by Councilman Griffin, who said the incoming members were aware of the situation in Mr. Blye's department the past two years, involving constant friction between Commissioner Blye and Chief of Police Oscar A. Eyerman.

Mr. Blye retorted that just because differences existed in a department between a superior and a subordinate it did not follow that the superior should be removed. Mayor Thomas W. Koon commented that the new council was not starting off with a very cooperative spirit. Mayor Koon entered upon his ninth term as mayor.

Theodore F. Shaffer, a coal operator, was appointed city collector to succeed Herman D. Billmeyer, who received the votes of Mayor Koon and Commissioner Blye. The crowded council chamber applauded the mayor's remarks. Other appointments, all for two years, follow:

City clerk, Samuel E. Griminger, succeeding H. Raymond Shertzer; city attorney, Charles S. Heskett, reappointed; city auditor, Jesse K. Goodhand, reappointed; assistant city collector, Miss E. Veronica Cosgrove, reappointed; member of board of health, Dr. Edwin B. Claybrook, reappointed; city engineer, Ralph B. Rizer, reappointed; assistant engineer, John E Marcan, reappointed; street superintendent, John H. Ayers, succeeding Julius Camm; water superintendent, William C. Korns, reappointed; water inspectors, George B. McLaughlin and James W. Miller; city plumber, Martin J. Connelly, reappointed; timekeeper and warehouse storekeeper, William J. Mills

Park commissioner, Charles H. Wickard, reappointed; park attendant, Ernest Hartman; police clerk, D. Newton Brown; member of civil service board, George Henderson; clark to mayor, Miss Helen King; clerk to city engineer, Miss Reba Weber; weighmaster, Drew P. Spearman; watchmen at reservoir, John Farrell and J. O. Summers; watchmen at city warehouse, William W. Barnard and William W. Graham; custodians of city hall, Nicholas Schade and George Rank; custodian of police station, Jesse O. Page; humane officer, Herbert F. McCoy; engineering department, Lorenzo Sutton, Fay Hall, Mortimer C. Shaidt, A. Jackson Cronwell, William Dyche, Joseph H. Griffin, jr., W. Ward Rosennerklem and William Rice.

C. C. Wise Is Moorefield Mayor.

Moorefield, W. Va., April 7 (Special).—C. C. Wise, a former mayor here, was named by city council at a special session today to fill the unexpired term of M. M. Warwood, who died ten days ago. Mr. Warwood had been elected two weeks earlier for his second successive term.

MERRIFIELD DRIVER IS HELD IN COLLISION

G. O. P. CHIEFTAINS MEET

FAIRFAX BUREAU OF THE POST.
P. O. Box 245, Fairfax, Va.
Phone Clarendon 919-J-1.

Thomas P. Johnson, of Merrifield, who, several persons have alleged, is the same person that received so much notoriety week before last by being complainant to a suit asking the court to restrain the Fairfax County Board of Supervisors and county engineer from doing work on private roads and streets in subdivisions, was arrested late Saturday night and charged of driving while drunk.

According to statements of persons that attended the preliminary hearing before Justice of the Peace J. T. Moling, the car Johnson was driving was in a collision with a car driven by Mrs. M. Dungan, of 1006 Massachusetts avenue northwest, Washington, on the Lee highway near Chimney Villa. Several words passed between them as to who was to blame before Special Officer Paul Herman, of Falls Church, arrived on the scene. He took them before Justice Moling at Falls Church where they were joined by Deputy Sheriff Henry Magarity, of Fairfax County, who had been notified.

It was further stated that a warrant was sworn out by Mrs. Dungan but was dismissed when Johnson gave her $50 to settle the damages to her car and drop the charges. Deputy Sheriff Magarity then preferred charges of driving while drunk. Justice Moling held Johnson for the action of the grand jury at the May term of the circuit court under a $500 bond. Mrs. Dungan was also placed under a personal bond to appear before the grand jury as a witness for the Commonwealth.

The Fairfax County Republican committee held a meeting at the home of Hugh Sauls at Fairfax Saturday night. There was a general discussion of plans for the coming congressional campaign in the Eighth Virginia district. A resolution was adopted favoring a Republican candidate in the field for the office of representative in Congress from this district. Representatives from every precinct in the county were present at the meeting and were of the opinion that a meeting of the full district committeemen should be called immediately to place a candidate in the field against the four candidates of the Democratic party.

The district committee met yesterday in the George Mason Hotel in Alexandria, when practically every district of all the counties and the City of Alexandria comprising the Eighth congressional district, were represented. It was unanimously voted to place a candidate in the race for the office of representative from this district. A convention will be held in the Orange County Courthouse on Thursday, May 14, for the purpose of nominating a candidate for the Republican ticket and to elect a district chairman, secretary and the members from the district to the State Republican committee.

D. B. Simerly, of Arlington County, was arrested by Deputy Sheriff W. A. Wheeler on the Lee highway near Falls Church for operating a car while under the influence of intoxicating liquor. He was taken before Justice of Peace J. T. Moling at Falls Church, who held him for the action of the grand jury.

The Fairfax County Bar Association will hold its regular quarterly meeting tomorrow night in the office of Commonwealth Attorney Wilson M. Farr, in Fairfax.

Reports for last week show that nine out of sixteen physicians engaged in active practice in Fairfax County have reported 4 cases of mumps, 21 of whooping cough and 98 cases of influenza during the past week. The influenza cases show a great increase over any other week this year, but no locality in the county is in danger of an epidemic at this time.

Divisional Superintendent of Schools Wilbert T. Woodson has received a letter from Harris Hart, State Superintendent of Public Instruction, in which he states that in connection with the distribution of the elementary school fund, the State is faced with the dilemma of having more standard schools than the amount of money set aside for this purpose will adequately provide. It has therefore become necessary to reduce the appropriation to each standard room. The elementary school fund is being forwarded to the local school authorities in accordance with the schedule of standard rooms at the rate of $63 per room.

Fairfax County has 93 accredited rooms this year and will receive $5,859, of which $630 will go to the town of Falls Church. This is $30 more than was received last year, when the county had only 87 accredited rooms. At the present time Fairfax County has 107 elementary teachers.

Vernon Cockerille, town sergeant of Herndon, Va., has issued a warning stating that from now on all colored men and women must be off the streets of the town by 9 o'clock at night.

Game Warden A. B. Carter has been busy during the past week stocking a number of streams throughout Fairfax County with 400,000 young yellow perch. The fish were obtained from the Federal Government hatcheries at Fort Humphreys. On account of bass being in Cub Run, Bull Run and Occoquan waters, small fish were not placed in these streams.

County Agent H. B. Derr has been sending letters to persons in Fairfax County urging them to spray their fruit trees. The letter states that the spraying of fruit trees is necessary in order to obtain good fruit.

For the past several years the agent has conducted a spray service by sending out notices at opportune times. He gives the name and the number of the spray and the proper material to use to control the diseases and insects.

The Rev. Arthur F. Roebuck, a student of the Virginia Seminary, is conducting a Lenten preaching mission each night this week at 8 o'clock in Sharon Chapel on the Franconia road near Alexandria. He has conducted several services at the mission previous to this time. In June he plans to return to the missionary district in western Nebraska, where he is to continue his ministry, so this will be the last opportunity his friends will have of hearing him preach.

At the present time the mission is in charge of Skardon D'Aubert, assisted by James Valliant and W. L. Hargrave. Special music has been provided for the Lenten services.

Old Sharon Mission is the oldest of all the missions that are connected with the Theological Seminary. It was founded in 1848. Among the well-known ministers in their student days who were attached to the mission are: Bishop Phillips Brooks, the Right Rev. Henry St. George Tucker, present Bishop of Virginia; Bishop Remington of the missionary district of eastern Oregon; Dr. W. Cosby Bell, a professor at the seminary; Dr. Russell Bowie, of Grace Church, New York City, and Dr. Berryman Green present dean of the seminary.

The program at Christian Endeavor meeting tonight at the Calvary Baptist Church at Lincolnia will be in charge of Mrs. C. E. Howdershell.

There will be a meeting tonight of the Community Builders Circle of King's Daughters and Sons at Cameron Valley.

There will be a meeting of the Centerville Grange tomorrow night in the auditorium of the Oakton High School.

At the meeting of the Dranesville district Percheron Breeders Association Sable Brockman was elected president, Herbert Wine, secretary-treasurer, William Riley, manager, and J. A. Wheeler, assistant manager.

The Parent-Teacher Association at Falls Church has postponed its meeting scheduled for this afternoon in order that the members may complete plans for entertainment of the school teachers from district H at the teachers' meeting i nthe Madison School in Falls Church, Friday and Saturday. Nearly all of the school leagues and parent-teacher associations of Fairfax County are assisting.

GRAND JURY TO OPEN COUNTY QUIZ AGAIN

OTHER CASES HANDLED

Having disposed of seevral criminal cases which cropped up during its ten-day recess, the Montgomery County grand jury today is expected to resume its investigation of the county government.

The grand jury reconvened yesterday after the recess, which was taken to enable States Attorney Robert B Peter, jr., to complete the prosecution of several cases which were before the court in which the defendants languished in jail.

The investigation of the county government was undertaken by the inquisitorial body at the instance of Maj. E. Brooke Lee, county Democratic leader, and the board of county commissioners, who asked that charges of inefficiency and mishandling of county funds published by the Montgomery Independent, a Rockville newspaper, be investigated. The county officials told the grand jury that they believed indictments should be returned against the accused county officials or for criminal libel against the newspaper officials.

It is understood that several county officials who previously have testified, will be recalled today. Several other witnesses are scheduled to appear, but whether or not they have been called in connection with the county investigation was not revealed. The grand jury session is expected to continue for several more days.

Striking Students Return to School

Special to The Washington Post.

Cumberland, Md., April 7.—The 135 students of Allegany High School, boys and girls, who walked out on a self-given holiday on Monday, March 31, returned to school today, the one week's suspension having been lifted by Principal George F. Reiter.

The students left school at the luncheon recess when a holiday was not declared in celebration of the school's State basketball championship, won the previous Friday when Cambridge was defeated by Allegany at Chestertown, 55-14.

Returning to school last Tuesday morning, the entire group was suspended. On the day they were suspended, the students offered a public apology. Principal Reiter said that any athletic awards held by the members of the group would not be jeopardized and letters to be awarded would not be affected by the "strike." The members of the group will spend an extra period of 45 minutes at the close of each school day in making up the work they missed.

Former Virginia College Head Expires in Atlanta

Atlanta, Ga., April 7 (A.P.).—Sam D. Jones, 73, lawyer, executive in Birmingham, Ala., and former president of Virginia Intermont College, Bristol, Va., died here today.

He was a native of Campbell County, Va., and attended Virginia Polytechnic Institute and Richmond University.

LAWYERS ENDORSE JESSE FOR JUDGE

SCHOOL TO GIVE COMEDY

BUREAU OF THE POST.
Tel. Clar. 509. Clarendon, Va.

The Arlington County Bar Association at its meeting held yesterday at Clarendon indorsed Col. Charles T. Jesse, former member of the House of Delegates and its retiring president, for appointment as judge of the circuit court of the Sixteenth judicial circuit to succeed Judge Howard W. Smith, whose resignation is expected daily.

The Alexandria Bar Association has already indorsed Col. Jesse for the judgeship and he is said to have considerable support in the other two counties of the circuit, Prince William and Farfax Counties.

The indorsement of Col. Jesse was made over the combined opposition of three lawyers, members of the local bar, who have been mentioned for the appointment to the office, all of whom were present.

Amos C. Crounse was unanimously elected president. Other officers are Claude O. Thomas, vice president and W. Thomas French, secretary-treasurer.

The members of the executive committee are Amos C. Crounse, W Thomas French, Claude O. Thomas and H. W. Dudley.

The following members were elected as members of the grievance committee: Frank L. Ball, chairman; Emery N. Hosmer and Harry R. Thomas. Those on the legislative committee are Walter U. Varney, chairman; Hugh Reid and B. M. Hedrick.

Owing to the illness of Edward Duncan, chairman of the county board of supervisors, the special meeting announced for yesterday was postponed.

The meeting having been called to consider the bids which have been received and opened for the purchase of a number of trucks for the county road and scavenger department, it was stated by other members of the board that it was hardly possible that any action would be taken until the regular meeting to be held Tuesday, April 15.

The monthly meeting of the Clarendon Citizens Association scheduled for tonight has been postponed until Friday night, April 18, according to an announcement made last night by President E. Lester Bennett.

It is planned to have the officers of the Arlington County Civic Federation attend the next meeting, which will be held in the rooms of the Arlington County Chamber of Commerce in the Rees Building at Clarendon.

Raymond V. Long, State school architect, who was scheduled to come to Arlington County yesterday to make a recheck on the preliminary plans for the proposed additions to a number of the county school buildings in order that he might submit to the county school board complete preliminary plans with costs, will reach the county tomorrow, according to an announcement made yesterday by County School Superintendent Fletcher Kemp.

The Arlington Community Library will be open to the public today at 2 o'clock, according to an announcement made last night by the president, Mrs. J. B. Lowell.

The library building is located adjacent to the Patrick Henry School, on the Bingham road.

There will be a meeting of the Library Club tomorrow in the library room at 1 o'clock. Mrs. Lowell will preside.

Mrs. Mae Jacobs, superintendent of public welfare in Arlington County and vice president of the Institute of Social Workers in Virginia, will, in company with Mrs. M. A. Rudasill, county child nurse, attend the annual conference of the Institute, to be held in Roanoke, April 23, 24 and 25.

Plans looking to the planting of shade trees and the general beautification of the State and county highways will be the principal discussion at the meeting of the Arlington County Garden Club, to be held tomorrow night at the Ashton Heights Woman's Clubhouse at 8 o'clock.

I. M. Anderson will discuss the preparations of the garden for spring planting.

The students of the Washington-Lee High School will on Friday night in the school auditorium present the comedy entitled "A Little Clodhopper." The play is being given under the direction of H. T. Stuckey.

Walter U. Varney is announced as the principal speaker.

MARYLAND WOMAN TO RUN FOR HOUSE

Berwyn Democrat Changes Former Dry Position; Backs Ritchie.

SAYS RUM LAW MENACE

Reversing her former dry position, Mrs. Virginia Peters Parkhurst, president of the Berwyn Democratic Victory Club and prominent feminist, yesterday announced her candidacy for a seat in the Maryland House of delegates from Prince Georges County. She filed her certificate of candidacy yesterday with the supervisors of elections at Upper Marlboro.

Mrs. Parkhurst announces that she is heartily in support of Gov. Albert C. Ritchie and pledges herself to carry out his policies. In a statement given out last night she declares that she was a supporter of "the noble experiment" but now feels that prohibition has proven a failure and voices her belief that the eighteenth amendment is a grave menace; that it paves the way for Federal usurpation; endangers th espirit of American freedom, right and justice and is in reality a club for political expediency and political patronage. "In blindness of good faith, we placed this question into our Federal Constitution and in the full light of decency and self-respect we shall acknowledge our mistake and take it out," she says.

In addition to opposing prohibition, Mrs. Parkhurst announces that she plans to work for better roads, schools and old-age pensions and that she proposes to introduce a bill providing for a traffic court to administer prompt justice to motor vehicle offenders saving the mtwo and three days wait.

Man Is Badly Hurt As Car Overturns

Frank Money Is Taken to Hospital With Ear Nearly Severed.

Frank Money, 35, of Twining City, D. C., was seriously injured last night by the overturning several times of an automobile after crashing into a telephone pole on the Cedar Hill road in nearby Maryland, about one-half mile from the District line.

Otto W. Kuell, 46, of 30 Fourteenth street northeast, driver of the car, and his 18-year-old son, William, both escaped injury. Prince Georges County Policeman Frank Prince quoted the driver as declaring that he was temporarily blinded by the lights of an approaching car.

Man Sought in Highway Death Offers Evidence

Richmond, Va., April 7 (A.P.).—State officials said they had been informed today that Roy Bruno, of Miami Beach, Fla., wanted in this State in connection with an investigation with the death of two men and the injuring of a third on the Washington-Richmond Highway Friday night, had been located in New York City.

A communication from Bruno, received by officials here, stated he had learned that he was sought, but that he was merely an eyewitness to the accident, which claimed the lives of J. A. Varner, of Baltimore, and Larry A. Barentzen, of Miami. Bruno said the death car was driven by a woman. He added that he would be glad to cooperate in the case as a witness. State officials have turned the matter over to authorities of Caroline County, in which the accident occurred.

GRAND JURY MEETS TO HEAR BOMB CASE

OTHER HEARINGS ARE DUE

The Prince Georges County grand jury convened yesterday at Upper Marlboro with one of the chief items of its investigation the bombing New Year's Day of the Hall home in Seat Pleasant, which resulted in the deaths of pretty Naomi Hall Brady, 18 years old; her sister, Dorothy Hall, and Thomas Hall, her baby brother.

After the selection of the grand jury, Chief Judge W. Mitchell Digges warned it that it should not permit the circumstances of the crime to sway its sober judgment.

"One of the cases to be investigated by you is a case that has created not only county and State wide, but Nation wide attention," he said, in his charge to the grand jury. "That is the crime of murder, the perpetrator of which ought to be brought to trial, and the swiftness and sureness with which the criminal law should act, and I know it will act in this county if the proper elements are presented, is the surest preventive of such offenses in the future.

Excuse for Crime Denied.

"The crime such as I am now speaking of, that of sending innocent people de/.-dealing infernal machines and bombs, is one for which there can be no possible excuse. However, in such a crime, diabolical and horrible as it is, when men who are men having blood coursing hotly through their veins naturally seek to unravel and punish the guilty, it is the very time when calm and deliberate judgment is necessary."

Joseph H. Blandford was chosen foreman of the grand jury. The other members are Milton R. Brooke, Eugene Allen, William D. Blandford, Milton R. Whittington, George A. Wyvill, Stewart B. Shaw, Bernard W. Tombs, George C. Taylor, Walter C. Cross, William H. Cusick, Henry T. Baldwin, Francis O. Abbott, Albert R. Brown, Eugene Entwistle, Thomas M. Taylor, Walter E. Hardester, Aaron L. Mehring, Pinkney A. Earnshaw, Theron L. Dudley, Charles D. Hessner, John Smith and James A. Crawford.

Lawrence Leroy Brady, Washington automobile mechanic, is in the Marlboro Jail, being held in connection with the bombing on a charge of murder. His brother, Herman Brady, husband of Naomi, is held on bond as a State witness.

Manslaughter Charges Heard.

Charges of manslaughter against Edward Rawlings, Bethesda, Md., taxi driver, alleged to have been the driver of the taxicab which struck and fatally injured Paul Goode at Capitol Heights in November and then sped from the scene, were heard yesterday by the grand jury.

There are 69 other names on the recognizance list and 16 criminal cases already scheduled for trial. The court will hear a heavy docket of civil cases while the grand jury is in session, thus freeing State's Attorney J. Frank Parham for duty with the grand jury.

It is expected that the bombing case will be reached by the grand jury within a few days and that, should an indictment follow, the trial will take place near the end of the month.

Man Is Critically Hurt In Clarksburg Air Crash

Special to The Washington Post.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 7.—Wilbur Winters, 28, a parachute jumper, of Columbus, Ohio, was in a critical condition today in a hospital here and Dr. R. L. Jackson, local aviator, was recovering from injuries as the result of an airplane smash yesterday at the East Clarksburg Airport near Bridgeport.

Jackson, who was arrested for flying passengers without a pilot's license and held for a hearing, was operating the plane when motor trouble occurred and it went into a nose dive and plunged to the ground, barely missing housetops. The plane was demolished.

Sudden Death Claims West Virginia Farmer

Special to The Washington Post.

Charles Town, W. Va., April 7.—Walter Cain, 49, a farmer near Kearneysville, died suddenly today. He was a native of Warren County, Va. Surviving are his widow and eight sons.

The interment will take place Wednesday at Paynes Chapel, Berkeley County.

Miller Is Chosen Head Of Bethesda Chamber

J. J. Miller was elected president of the Bethesda Chamber of Commerce last night at its annual meeting in the county building. Merle Thorpe, editor of the Nation's Business, was chosen first vice president.

Other officers are John Imirie, second vice president; T. Earle Hampton, secretary, and Wade Imirie, treasurer. The Officers take their posts immediately.

Austin O. Weedon, Attorney, Is Dead

Warrenton Man Who Served Five Terms as Mayor Dies of Long Illness.

Special to The Washington Post.

Warrenton, Va., April 7.—Austin O. Weedon, 70, attorney-at-law of Warrenton, and president of the Bar Association of Fauquier County, died at his home here at 4:30 this morning after an illness that had kept him from active practice for a number of years. For five consecutive terms he served as mayor of Warrenton, refusing to be a candidate for re-election in 1924. For the last 20 years he has practiced law in Warrenton and prior to that had a law office at Brentsville, in Prince William County. He was also at one time principal of the old Ruffner School for Boys in Manassas.

He is survived by his widow and one sister, Miss Ella Weedon. Funeral services will be held at St. James Episcopal Church Wednesday with burial in Warrenton Cemetery.

At the time of his death he was chairman of the Fauquier Democratic committee and chairman of the board of directors of the Peoples National Bank of Warrenton.

Daily O'Currences

By JOHN DALY

LUELLA came in all wet an disheveled.

"Where've you been?" I asked, as she kicked her rubbers off, threw her mackintosh, or whatever she calls it, in the hall cupboard. She looked, really, as if she had just come back from a polar expedition.

"Cherry blossoms," mumbled Luella, and from the way she mouthed the words I knew something had happened.

"Oh, you went to see the cherry blossoms?"

"Yeah"

"They tell me they're beautiful——"

"Who told you?" queried Luella.

* * * *

"A LITTLE bird."

"It had to be a bird," complained Luella. "Only birds can see the cherry blossoms this year."

"How's that?"

"Traffic!" shouted Luella.

"Oh, traffic!"

"Yes, traffic," she repeated, "and when I say traffic, I mean the entire United States of America cherry-blossom bound——"

"You don't say so!"

"I do say so, and if you doubt me you ought to go down and try to see the cherry blossoms."

POOR Luella. She had a time of it. It was 9 o'clock in the morning when she went to see the cherry blossoms and 6 o'clock at night when sh geot back—and she hasn't seen 'em yet.

"You'd think," I remarked, "that the rain would keep people away——"

"No, these people," she sighed, "nothing in the world could keep them away. They just had to see the cherry blossoms, rain or no rain——"

"And did they?"

"Did they what?"

"Did they see the cherry blossoms?" She looked at me and laughed, her first let-down. "Of course not," she said, "nobody saw anything but license plates. We got in a traffic jam——"

* * * *

"SO you said."

"And all we did was sit and play honky-honk."

"Honky-honk? What's that? A Japanese game?"

"No, it's strictly an American game. You take a hundred or so cars, get 'em in a jam and then the game begins. Honky-honk, honk, honk!"

Imagine that.
